Rte. 53 extension hangs in limbo

by TIM MORAN

The state has no money for it, legislators oppose making it a toll road and opponents are actively working to kill it.

"It is a political hot potato . . . the extension of Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road north to Grayslake. The super highway probably will not be built in the near future.

To the U.S. government, it is known as Federal Aid Project 432, a proposal calling for a six-lane thoroughfare to Ill. Rte. 22 in southern Lake County, with four lanes from there to Ill. Rte. 120, just south of Grayslake.

To state transportation officials, it is an important part of the Illinois highway system. To local officials, however, it is a project for which questions of cost and need are a long way from being resolved.

"FAP 432 CURRENTLY is unfunded. We also are awaiting the results of the Illinois Transportation Study Commission hearings in fall of 1976. No action has been taken to date on their findings. The legislature has done nothing," Anthony Osnacz of the Ill. Dept. of Transportation said.

FAP 432 was identified by the transportation study commission as a high priority, one of the most needed segments of the Illinois Supplemental Freeway System.

The commission recommended dropping or downgrading much of the remainder of the supplemental freeway sysem, but FAP 432 should be built, the commission recommended, either as a freeway or possibly as a tollroad.

Lloyd Simonson, director of fiscal analysis for the Illinois Transportation Study Commission, said he did not think funding would come from the legislature until after the 1978 elections.

The study commission's report called for increased gasoline taxes, Simonson said. "Now is not the time to talk of significant tax increases. There has been no action at the executive or legislative levels. I see no way anyone is going to address an increase in taxes before the 1978 elections," Simonson said.

TO BUILD THE road as a toll road, legislation would have to be introduced, Simonson said.

Legislators in the 32nd district, through which the majority of the road would travel, won't want it built as a toll road.

"I really don't feel that the route is appropriate as a toll road. It generally runs parallel to the Tri-state Toll road," Rep. Donald Deuster, R-Mundelein said.

Deuster said he has mixed feelings about the road as a freeway. "From a

Dist. 26 merger candidates narrow

BY HOLLY HANSON

The field of candidates willing to explore consolidation with River Trails Dist. 26 has been narrowed to one.

In a joint resolution, the Wheeling Township Dist. 21 Board of Education has announced it "sees no advantage at this time in any consolidation efforts."

Board members agreed, however, to share information about finances and educational programs with Dist. 26.

The move leaves only Mount Prospect Dist. 57, one of the two districts Dist. 26 recently named as those with which it would most like to consolidate, as a possible candidate for merger. Two years ago, Dist. 26 and Dist. 57 formed a committee to discuss a possible merger, but took no formal action.

The two districts together include most Mount Prospect elementary schools, while Dist. 21 has schools in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect and Wheeling.

"This puts us back where we started," Dist. 26 Supt. John Fridlund said. "We're right back with Dist. 57. Maybe we shouldn't have gone through this."

FRIDLUND, WHO is an advocate of large school districts, said the Dist. 21 announcement "kind of sets us back a little."

"I still consider (districts of) 10,000 a viable alternative, and people who fall short of that should be willing to look at a viable alternative (merging) and by looking at it, should be willing to change their minds," Fridlund said.

Dist. 21, with about 8,000 students, has a fairly stable enrollment with some growth projected in the next few years. However, Dist. 26, with 2,300 students, and Dist. 57, with 2,600, both face steady declines nn enrollment.

Of the three districts, Dist. 26 suffers the most severe financial crunch, and has been investigating the effects of consolidation as a possible solution to money troubles.

The board has formed a committee to study consolidation. Its purpose, chairwoman Sylvia Lurie has said, is to decide whether consolidation with a nearby district would improve or harm the educational program.

DIST. 26 Board Pres. Leora Rosen said Dist. 26 is approaching consolidation "very cautiously," in part because board members believe they owe it to residents to look into "something other than the status quo."

Mrs. Rosen said she does not know

Officials warn airlines against flying in storms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air safety officials noting an alarming jump in the number of crashes caused by thunderstorms, have warned airlines against putting pressure on pilots to fly through marginal weather just to stay on schedule.

The National Transportation Safety Board said airlines also should tell pilots to delay takeoffs or landings during thunderstorms, abort landings whenever rough weather upsets an approach and use on-board radar to go around storms rather than dodge through them.

Better methods also must be found to get updated weather information to pilots, who often must rely on their own radar to find storms and frequently are unable to judge storm hazards because of workload or radar limitations, the board said.

IN A LETTER to 42 airline presidents, safety board chief Webster Todd said a recent study of crashes caused by storms showed "comparatively few pilots are self-motivated to fly into thunderstorms because of competitiveness, overconfidence, underestimation of the situation and a desire to get home."

Todd said some evidence was found, however, that pressure to stay on schedule does cause "the overzealous pilot" to fly into marginal weather.

"Consequently," he said, "we urge air carrier management to exercise care in presenting its policies or procedures to avoid influencing the pilot's judgment in this regard."

The safety board said nine airline crashes during thunderstorms caused a total 251 deaths between 1972 and 1976. By contrast, it said, there were only two thunderstorm crashes with no fatalities between 1964 and 1971.

"These statistics clearly indicate an alarming increase in this type of accident — an increase which must be reversed," Todd said.

BOTH THE worst air disaster of this year and the worst single-plane crash in U.S. history involved crashes during thunderstorms, safety board records showed.

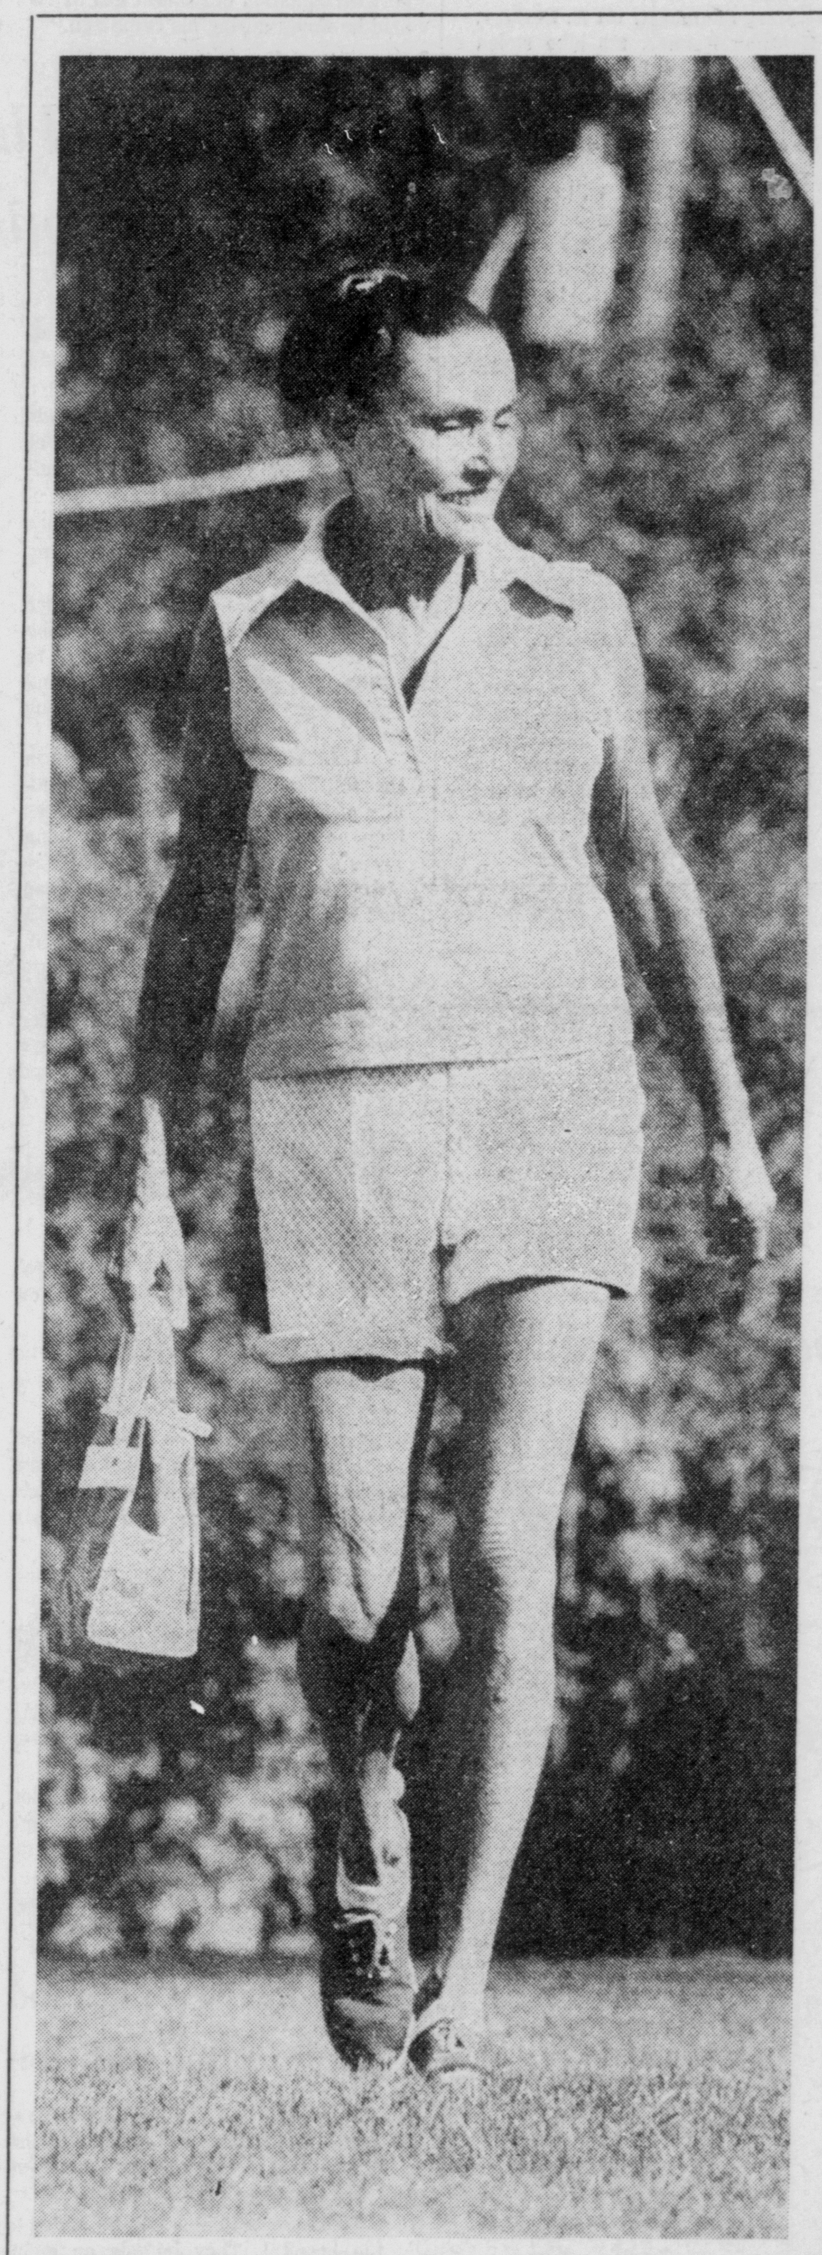

This year's disaster — a Southern Airways DC9 crash April 4 at New Hope, Ga., in which both of the plane's engines were lost because of the storm — killed 62 aboard the jetliner and eight on the ground.

The worst single aircraft crash occurred June 24, 1975, when an Eastern Airlines Boeing 727 flew through a storm just short of the runway at New York's John F. Kennedy airport and was shoved into the ground by the wind. It killed 112 persons.

SAFETY BOARD officials said they did not know why there has been such a sharp jump in crashes caused by thunderstorms, although one factor might be an increase in the use of jets. Jets respond more slowly than propeller planes to demands for emergency power.

One eventual solution to the problem will be the development of more sophisticated equipment to measure thunderstorm turbulence and the rate and direction of storm movement, Todd told the airlines. He said such efforts are several years from completion.

"Since the problem is immediate," Todd said, "we believe that interim measures should be taken by leaders in the air carrier industry to reduce the likelihood of thunderstorm-related accidents in both the terminal and en route areas."

ELYNOR BERKSON, "the walking woman of Mount Prospect," is known as Ellie B. to those who see her hiking frequently through the village. Mrs. Berkson, 250 W. Parliament Pl., walks between 10 and 15 miles a day — rain or shine.

'Ellie B.' just keeps on truckin' through life

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

She's known throughout the village as "the walking woman of Mount Prospect."

She goes nearly everywhere on foot — at least if her destination is within a reasonable distance, between 10 and 15 miles.

Unless she's carrying a bundle of packages, she refuses rides from friends and neighbors who offer her lifts when they pass her on the street.

Walking provides a spiritual high for Elynor Berkson, 250 Parliament Pl. And she often avoids cars and public transportation because "I've done it all of my life."

Mrs. Berkson, who says only that she's "over 50," contends health and physical fitness are important to her, but she does not necessarily walk to keep in shape. She stays at a trim 110 pounds (she's 5 foot 5) by swimming and playing tennis.

"I DON'T DO IT for the exercise," Mrs. Berkson says, who is known along the route as "Ellie B." "It really energizes me. I don't get that from any pills or tranquilizers or anything else. It's part of my format of living now. Wherever my feet can take me I will get there by foot. I only use the car when I have to go into the city. I can't stand driving. There are too many cars."

She smiles and waves at people she sees on her ventures from her condominium apartment at the Old Orchard Colony Country complex to downtown Mount Prospect or the Des Plaines YMCA. And she's made many new friends since she moved to the village three years ago and began hiking throughout the Northwest suburban area.

"It's one way of connecting or linking up with people to exchange philosophies rather than sit in an office all day," says Mrs. Berkson who does some part-time office and sales work. "People have gotten away from the spiritual and emotional part of life and that's so important. We'll exchange the time of day then pretty soon it gets deeper and we talk about just about everything. I think it's a gift of God to be flexed for other people's feelings."

It's not a slow-paced walk. It's not a leisurely stroll. It's a brisk invigorating step — almost a run. Then it turns into a jog. A rapid walk for about 100 paces then a jog for the same length — 10 or 15 miles each day.

SHE ACKNOWLEDGES those who pass her on bicycles and in cars. She stops to chat with

Many complain about services

Most Americans rate their neighborhoods high

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four out of five Americans consider their neighborhoods good places to live, but nearly half have complaints about the services they receive, a government study said Sunday.

A survey of 72.5 million households, both owner-occupied and rented, showed 82.5 per cent rated their neighborhoods excellent or good while just 2.4 per cent considered their neighborhoods poor.

Slightly more than 92 per cent of those households with annual incomes above $25,000 said they were pleased with where they live, while 74 per cent with incomes of $5,000 or less said with incomes of $5,000 or less said they were happy with their neighborhoods.

ACCORDING to the study, almost half of the persons had complaints about at least one of six basic services, including transportation, schools, shopping facilities, police and fire protection and hospitals and health clinics.

Transportation was by far the biggest irritant with 36 per cent of the respondents saying it was inadequate. The service that most pleased residents was schools, with just 3.6 per cent saying they were below par.

Surprisingly, more than 81 per cent said they had no crime problem in their neighborhood. Of those who said crime was in evidence where they live, 4 per cent said the situation was so bad they wanted to move away, the study said.

Crime also was a problem to both low and high-income families.

ABOUT 19 per cent of households with annual incomes below $5,000 listed crime as a neighborhood problem. The same percentage of households earning at least $25,000 also said they had crime in the vicinity of their home.

The survey, conducted jointly by the Census Bureau and the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, asked people to list any of 12 specific conditions that existed in the vicinity of their homes.

Those reported most often were street or highway noise, heavy traffic and inadequate street lighting.

Tough review for energy program

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Governors from Jimmy Carter's homeland have gathered for a critical review of the President's energy program and his handling of issues such as agriculture and the Panama Canal.

The agenda for the 43rd annual meeting of the Southern Governor's Conference emphasizes Carter's energy program, and is packed with speakers who oppose the program, particularly the continued price regulation of natural gas.

Governors of the nation's three leading energy producing states — Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma — will push for adoption by the conference of a resolution urging Carter to go along with a phased deregulation of natural gas prices as a method of stimulating new energy exploration and development in the United States.

ENERGY ADVISERS FOR the governor attending the conference met Sunday afternoon, and the resolutions committee which will consider deregulation and other issues meets at 7:30 a.m. today — the first official item of business on the convention agenda.

There have been indications that some of the Southern governors believe Carter betrayed a campaign promise on energy.

South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards said most of the Southern governors consistently have supported deregulation, and added, "I would hope that President Carter would support deregulation of natural gas as he said he would during his campaign."

Speakers for the session include top executive officers for Exxon Co., U.S.A., General Motors Corp., and the E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., Inc.

BERT LANCE, director of the Office of Management and Budget, is scheduled to give the Carter administration's response to criticisms of its energy programs at the conference's closing business session on Wednesday.

The governors from 17 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands began arriving during the weekend, and attended social events Sunday evening.

Lousiana Gov. Edwin Edwards is expected to be the chief proponent at the conference of a resolution opposing ratification of any treaty that would reduce the United States' control over the Panama Canal.

Edwards won approval by the Louisiana legislature of a similar resolution, and has asked other state legislatures to take such stands.

"Not only do our commerce and security lie in the balance, but the security of other nations depends on our use of the canal," Edwards said.

Hard not to be drippy

AROUND THE NATION: Thundershowers are expected in the southern Plains region, the Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes region. Elsewhre fair weather is forecast.

AROUND THE STATE: North: Mostly cloudy, chance of showers. High in the lower 80s, low in the upper 50s to lower 60s. South: Cloudy, thunderstorms likely. High mid 80s, low in 70s.

SATELLITE PHOTO TAKEN at noon Sunday shows a broad band of clouds and thunderstorms stretching from the upper Mississippi Valley to the southern Plains. Thunderstorms dot Gulf Coastal sections from Texas to Missisippi. Middle clouds extend from Utah and Idaho across the central Rockies into the high Plains, and a few thunderstorms are present over northeastern Colorado and western Nebraska. Dense layed clouds shroud most of the Pacific Northwest.

Tree toppled by high winds in Gurnee; one killed

From Herald News Services

High winds toppled a tree north of Chicago Sunday, killing one woman and injuring four other persons.

Police in Gurnee said high winds caused the tree to fall on a number of people attending a concert at a community festival in Viking Park.

Police were withholding identification of the dead woman pending notification of her family.

Thundershowers from the upper Great Lakes to the Mississippi Valley caused sweltering temperatures to plunge, and portions of Oklahoma and Iowa were awash from pounding rains.

AN ESTIMATED 8 inches of rain in the southwestern Oklahoma community of Cache caused water to rise as high as four feet in some low lying areas.

Authorities put a bedridden woman and her husband in the front end of a giant loader to rescue them from rushing floodwaters in their home outside of town early in the morning.

"Someone called a front-end loader which has a big bucket on it and we went in there and took grandma and the mattress and all and carried her out the window and put her in the bucket of the front-end loader," Comanche County Sheriff's dispatcher John Johnson said of Mrs. Johnny McClung.

No injuries were reported and property damage estimates were not available, authorities said.

Further north, Red Oak, Iowa, was drenched also with an estimated eight inches of rain, causing some street and stream flooding in the area.

DES MOINES, which a month ago was staggering through a crippling drought, was the latest city to have its August rainfall record shattered. Iowa's capital city had received 10.81 inches as of Sunday, eclipsing the 10.47 inches that doused the city back in 1954.

Also setting records this month were Baton Rouge and Shreveport, La., Concordia, Kans., and Erie, Pa.

Thundershowers brought relief to much of the Midwest which sweltered in an unexpected heat blast Saturday. Temperatures in the 60s and 70s were the norm instead of the stifling 90s of the previous day.

First aid classes to begin at beginning of October

Red Cross first aid classes will begin the first week of October at five Northwest suburban locations.

New information on how to cope with poisoning will be included in the classes which run for three hours one evening or afternoon a week for six weeks.

Instruction is free, but books and materials cost $2.65.

In addition to first aid for poisoning, classes teach skills needed to help choking victims, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, procedures for coping with bleeding, shock and fractures and other life-saving information.

Classes will begin at the following locations and be repeated on the same evening of the week from 7 to 10 p.m. for six consecutive weeks:

Des Plaines. Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Tuesday, Oct. 4. Telephone 296-3376.

Elgin. First Baptist Church, 1735 Highland St., Tuesday, Oct. 4. Telephone 741-5005.

Mount Prospect. Prospect High School, 910 Kensington Rd., Thursday, Oct. 6. Telephone 253-1700.

Palatine. Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quenton Rd., Thursday, Oct. 6. Telephone 359-7233.

Persons must be at least 13 years old to register.

Fund-raiser planned for hospital addition

Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, has announced plans to raise $6.5 million to help pay for the continued expansion of the hospital.

Four new buildings will be added to the hospital. They include an eight-story addition to the hospital's west wing, a new surgery and emergency section, a new health education center and auditorium, and a new ambulatory care center.

Remodeling and expansion of outpatient services, the installation of new equipment and expanded computer services also is planned.

All of the expansion work has been approved by government health care planners, the hospital said.

The campaign, called Dimensions '79, will stress the hospital's new patient services, said Joseph Antonello Jr., chairman of the development committee. More than $2.8 million of the $6.5 million goal already has been pledged or received.

Public education to prevent illness, early disease detection, patient education on illness management and the education of health care professionals to meet community needs are the direction of the hospital's new programs, Antonello said.

Carter begins effort to push canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Carter administration will woo businessmen with interests in the Panama Canal and call back campaign volunteers to work in an effort to win public support for the two new treaties, administration sources said Sunday.

With one source acknowledging that "we're starting way behind the 8-ball," the White House has set up a task force headed by Hamilton Jordan, the President's top aide, to handle the job of getting treaty support.

"One of the problems we have is that there's no real base of support for a Panama Canal treaty," one source said. "There's not a group of people who have it as their top agenda item. So we're having to go out and find people who will work to help us get passage."

THESE STEPS are being taken:

• President Carter, Vice President Walter Mondale, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance, Defense Sec. Harold Brown and White House congressional liaison Frank Moore wil make "a concerted effort" to keep Congress informed on the treaties and the negotiations.

• A lot of attention on the treaties will flow from the signing ceremony in Washington Sept. 7. "From 10 to 20" heads of state will be here, with Deputy Appointments Sec. Phil Wise and Chief of Protocol Evan Dobelle working on logistics.

• Carter has said he intends to make his second fireside chat "some time in the not too distance future" to explain the treaties.

• Appeals are being made to campaign volunteers to rally grass roots support. The sources were not specific in what they have in mind.

• Appeals are being made to persons "whose vested interests are involved" in the campaign, such as manufacturers, port authorities and others "who understand the realities of the canal and the trade situation."

Particular attention is being paid to southern and southeastern states having major trade ties with Latin America.

Last Tuesday, such representatives from Mississippi and Kentucky, including Governors Clifford Finch and Julian Carroll, were invited to Washington for briefings by Carter, Brown, negotiator Ellsworth Bunker and National Security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

"We'll be doing more of the same with representatives from several other states," the source said. "Hopefully they'll go back to their home states and will bring together their colleagues and acquaintances for meetings where we will provide speakers."

THE SOURCE said although former President Gerald R. Ford and former Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger had made statements in support of the treaties, there were no plans to ask them to make speeches.

Another source said the administration considers "most surprising and encouraging" a statement by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, an opponent of the treaties, that some sort of new agreement is needed to head off turmoil and unrest.

Concerning Carter's own efforts, the source said, "the most important thing he can do is to stay on the telephone and meet with people and use his own personal influence to explain . . . when you actually hear and see the President, it just has more effect than reading the newspaper."

Vance tells Carter '72 pact to guide talks with Chinese

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sec. of State Cyrus Vance reported to President Carter Sunday he made clear to mainland Chinese leaders the United States wil continue to be guided by the Shanghai Communique in dealing with China.

The communique, issued Feb. 27, 1972, during President Richard Nixon's visit to China, contained agreement on the need for increased contacts between the two countries and eventual withdrawal of U.S. troops from Taiwan.

Carter and Vance also agreed that the secretary of state's visit to China Aug. 22-26 was "a good beginning, but it would be premature, at this point, to draw firm conclusions from it."

CARTER WAS briefed for 75 minuts by Vance on his trip. Also present were Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Defense Sec. Harold Brown, White House Press Sec. Jody Powell and National Security Adviser Zeigniew Brzezinski.

Vance said the talks were carried out "in a uniformly serious and constructive atmosphere." He said he considered the talks to have been "very useful and important in establishing effective communications between senior officials of the two governments which will continue in the future."

In a statement issued by Powell, the White House said:

"The secretary made clear to the Chinese leadership that our relationship with the People's Republic or China will continue to be guided by the Shanghai Communique and is central to our global policy. The secretary explained in Peking the positions of the Carter administration on many important matters, global and bilateral, including normalization. The Chinese side presented its views in an equally straight-forward manner.

"The President and the secretary agreed that the Peking visit was a good beginnng, but that it would be premature, at this point, to draw firm conclusions from it. The President and the secretary anticipate additional constructive meetings with the Chinese side in the weeks and months ahead."

THE STATEMENT said Vance's meeting with Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan was in keeping with Carter's "emphasis on close consultation with Japan on all matters of mutual concern."

According to the statement, Vance discussed with the Japanese the Peking meetings, relations with the Assoc. of Southeast Asian Nations, the Tokai Mura reprocessing plant, global economics, changes in the world economy since the London summit, the Middle East, the arms limitation talks with the Soviet union, southern Africa, civil aviation and ways of accelerating action on the Tokyo round of the multilateral trade negotiations.

In welcoming Vance home Saturday, Carter said the trip, although its objectives were "deliberately limited," had been "highly successful." Vance echoed that it has been "good and useful."

Carter also said Chinese Premier Hua Kuo-feng and Vice Premier Teng Hsiad-ping had sent word to him they felt the discussions had been fruitful.

Damaged embassy back in contact

MOSCOE (UPI)—The crippled U.S. Embassy Sunday installed a vital new communications lifeline airlifted to Moscow to replace the system destroyed by a fire that ravaged the building's upper floors.

Re-establishment of channels to Washington and other embassies abroad was the embassy's No. 1 priority following the fire Friday night that swept through the top four floors of the 10-story chancery building.

Ambassador Malcolm Toon blamed the blaze on "an electrical fault."

Although top secret military documents were kept in the damaged area, Toon said there appeared to be "no compromise of security."

UNTIL THE emergency communications equipment arrived from Bonn, the embassy's only contact with Washington was via one telex and one telephone line.

"This allows us to do everything we've done before, reach every place we need to — but not at full volume. We will be sending and receiving only what is absolutely essential," an embassy spokesman said.

Two U.S. structural engineers, four Navy Seabees and four Marines were arriving Sunday from outside the Soviet Union to begin an expert examination of the damage the spokesman said.

"We should know by tomorrow afternoon how serious the situation is," he added. "It all looks to me like a disaster area but it's hard to tell what you can repair by putting up new partitions and what you have to rip down to put in new beams."

TOON ESTIMATED at a news conference late Saturday, about 10 hours after the eight-hour blaze was brought under control by U.S. Marines and Soviet firemen, that it would take three to five months to put the top floors of the building back into full use.

The fire gutted the eighth floor housing economic, agriculture and press offices and burned through sections of the ninth floor, where Toon's office is located. Offices on the seventh floor and the tenth floor offices of the defense attaches suffered extensive water damage and half the roof coliapsed.

Following withdrawal of the last Soviet firemen Satuday, all embassy staff below the senior counsellor and attache levels were assigned three-hour shifts around the clock to patrol the damaged floors, checking for any new outbreak of fire or structural collapse.

"So far we haven't had any emergencies," the spokesman said Sunday night.

Presley signature traded for land

• A Texas home builder who admired Elvis Presley has traded a parcel of land for a Presley signature "just to get the autograph off the market." The autograph was offered at an auction by Paul Gunther, 33, of Seattle, who placed it on the block to spruce up a weekend garage sale. The only bid came by telegram from Dan Murphy, 35, of Amarillo, Texas, who later telephoned to confirm his offer of a lot on LBJ Lake near Austin or a piece of land off Lake Lavon north of Dallas. "I did it just to get the autograph off the market," Murphy said. "It's sad that a person's autograph would go on the market, and of all people, Elvis Presley's." Gunther, who is receiving workman's compensation because of a back injury, said he wasn't sure whether he would sell the land or keep it. He said the lots, both suitable for development, were valued at between $3,500 and $12,000.

However, Dr. John Najarian said Humphrey will not be released from the hospital today and declined to reveal when the former vice president will leave. It was expected to be early this week. Humphrey will spend a week recuperating after his release from the hospital and then begin chemotherapy, which doctors say can hold the cancer in check for months or years. He plans to return to Washington to resume his work in the U.S. Senate early next month.

Death of Mormon leader marked today

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Monday is the 100th anniversary of the deah of Brigham Young, who led the dramatic westward trek of the Mormons to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake.

Young died at his home Aug. 29, 1977, at the age of 76, almost exactly 30 years after the first wagonloads of Mormon pioneers entered the desert valley...

Many of his 27 wives and 57 children and thousands of Mormons mourned the passing of the "prophet, seer and revelator."

WHEN THE pioneers arrived in Utah, the valley was a wasteland. But under Young's direction, the hard land yielded as the Mormons built canals, imported plants and livestock, built railroads and telegraph lines and established industry.

Young was the first territorial governor before Utah became a state nearly 20 years after his death.

Although he had only eight days of formal schooling, Young established the university in Provo, Utah, that bears his name and founded Deseret University, now the University of Utah.

HE WAS A pioneer in agriculture, setting up an experimental farm on the outskirts of Salt Lake City where work was done to find crops that could survive Utah's arid summers and cold winters.

The farm, near the monument that commemorates the Mormons' entrance into the valley, currently is being restored and worked. Mormon irrigation turned the arid valley into a viable agricultural area.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints has prospered since its first members pulled their handcarts and wagons into the valley.

IN 1877 THERE were 145,000 members, mostly in the Utah Territory, with some in Idaho Territory and also in what later became Arizona. There now are nearly four million Mormons around the world.

Young was known as a prophet and statesman to his followers and as a despot to many anti-Mormons of his period. He defied federal government troops attempting to control the region, and the church's practice of polygamy angered many people.

Young was the church's second president, assuming the leadership after a mob killed founder Joseph Smith in Carthage, Ill., in 1844.

IN 1846, YOUNG led the "Saints" from their capitol of Nauvoo, Ill., to escape further persecution. The city was sacked after they left and the church's first temple was destroyed.

The trek across the plains was considered one of the significant migrations in U.S. history, accomplished despite tough terrain, hostile Indians and long distance.

Young was nstrumental in establishing peaceful coexistence with the Indians and brought thousands of colonists from all parts of the world to settle in the West.

Playwright George Bernard Shaw wrote of him: "Brigham Young lived . . . to become immortal in history as an American Moses by leading his people through the wilderness into an unpromised land."

U.S. action after U.N. vote unsure: Puerto Ricans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Puerto Rican leaders say the U.S. government seems unsure what it will do if a United Nations committee votes this week to declare Puerto Rico an oppressed colony with a right to freedom.

After years of ignoring similar resolutions under U.S. pressure, the U.N. Decolonization Committee seems headed toward a vote — possibly by Friday — on a Cuban-sponsored resolution declaring the island commonwealth to be a "colony" with a "right to self-determination and independence."

Supporters, buoyed by unexpected support from Puerto Rican witnesses, predict they may get as many as 16 of the 24 committee members to vote for the resolution.

STATE DEPT. officials said committee approval would assure eventual ratification by the General Assembly — in effect putting the United States under U.N. mandate to organize a popular Puerto Rican vote on the independence issue.

The U.S. position has been that the status of Puerto Rico is an internal U.S. affair and not a legitimate subject for U.N. intervention.

It has always been able to persuade the committee to shelve Cuban resolutions on the issue, and, in 1975, then-U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan was reported to have warned committee members the United States would regard any vote in favor of such a resolution as an unfriendly act.

What apparently shifted momentum in favor of the Cubans — and threw U.S. officials off balance — is that a number of Puerto Ricans, including some who favor U.S. statehood or even continued commonwealth status, have testified in favor of the resolution.

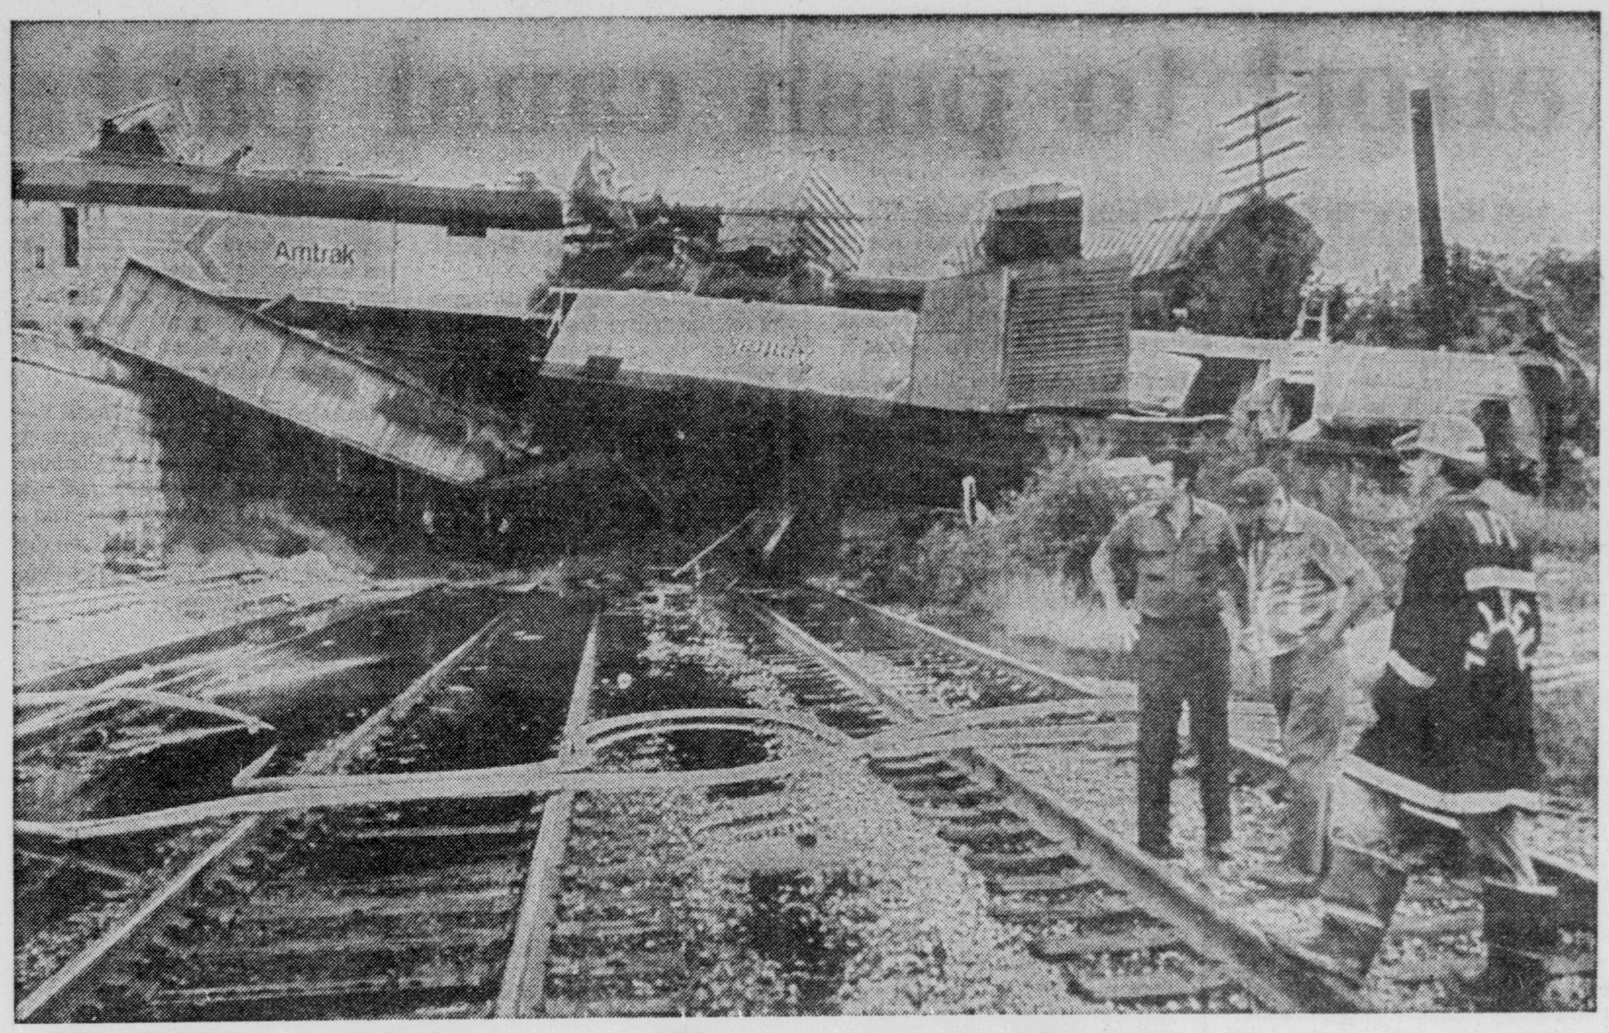

Their motives are obscured by Puerto Rican politics, but commonwealth Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo told reporters in Washington last week he has been interrogated at length on the situation by Assistant Secretaries of State C. William Maynes and Terence Todman.

"APPARENTLY, confusion was created at the committee by the advent of pro-statehood and New Progressive Party members coming to testify," Romero said, "and I was asked if that represents the party."

Romero, whose New Progressive Party favors statehood status for Puerto Rico, said he offered to declare in writing that he has no more control over what individual NPP party members do than mainland Republicans and Democrats have over their own members.

He said Maynes and Todman made clear the United States will maintain that the U.N. has no legal right to intervene, but "they were elusive . . . as to what is being done behind the scenes."

He said he assured them his government intends to hold no early independence vote regardless of what the U.N. does.

Chicago's $16,000 helps ERA funding

More than $16,000 was raised to finance the Equal Rights Amendment in Illinois during the Chicago leg of a National march in 33 states Saturday. About 100 ERH supporters participated in the eight-mile walk, organized by the Chicago chapter of the National Organization for Women, in blistering heat along the shores of Lake Michigan. About 100 marchers made efforts to raise more than $250,000 to help pay ERA lobbyists and other bills to finance the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution to ban discrimination on the basis of sex.

Karen Bohning, former president of the local chapter of NOW, said marchers had sponsors to kick in funds for each mile they walked. "Governor Thompson and Mayor Bilandic will have to use their clout to get us the six extra votes we need (in Illinois) to pass this," State Rep. Ellis Levin, D-Chicago, told the marchers.

Cops to meet Palaggi pals

Chicago police said Sunday they will meet this week with one of two former partners of James Palaggi, 46, formerly of Oak Lawn, whose body was found in a van Thursday in an apparent gangland-style killing. Palaggi, Richard Ferrar, Oak Lawn, and Peter Bressanelli, whose last known address was in Chicago, had owned the New Era Auto Shop, Kankakee. Police said they participated in a stolen auto parts operation and authorities have theorized there is an underworld war for control of such operations, frequently referred to as the "chop shop" racket.

Police said a meeting had been arranged with Bressanelli through his attorney. Bressanelli was fired from the Chicago Police Department after being arrested in 1975 when Kankakee County sheriff's police found a stolen car in the junkyard he owned with Palaggi. Homicide Sgt. John J. Healy said Ferrara, 36, has been missing for two months and police believe he may have been crushed inside a car being compacted into scrap metal. He said Bressanelli may be the next to be killed.

No new leads in Slusser case

No new leads were reported Sunday in the Lisa Slusser murder case. Lisa was found stabbed to death Friday along the Des Plaines river. She was reported missing Wednesday after failing to return from a bicycle ride near her home at 2704 Ganster Road in Waukegan. Visitation for Lisa will be today from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the chapel at 1521 Washington St., Waukegan. Services will be at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at Our Lady of Humility Church, 1801 Wadsworth Rd., Zion.

Shotgun blast kills Chicago man

A 24-year-old man said to be a member of a street gang was killed by a shutgun blast early Sunday as he sat on the front porch steps of a house where he was attending a party. Homicide investigator John M. Dahlberg said Ramon Maldonado had been in and out of the Latin Kings gang and that the shooting was apparently street gang related. Dahlberg said Maldonado was sitting with his wife when two men walked up and "took exception to his being there." He said the men returned with a shotgun about 15 minutes later and shot Maldonado in the chest.

Rostenkowski 'won't deny friends'

U.S. Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski, D-Ill. has acknowledged thousanls of dollars from his congressional payroll have paid for services from a family lawyer and business associate. "I won't deny I try to do things for my friends," he said Saturday in response to newspaper inquiries into his payroll practices. Congressmen have a yearly staff budget of $255,144. Rostenkowski, deputy majority House whip, said he has been paying longtime family attorney Leonard Levin about $7,500 a year to handle legal work for his congressional district office. He said Levin has been working about six hours a week in his office for about four years.

"I had people coming into my office asking general legal questions," Rostenkowski explained of Levin who works in the office about two nights a week plus some Saturdays. The congressman said he also paid Daniel J. Shannon $3,005 in 1972 for two months research work on tax bills before the House Ways and Means Committee. Shannon, now president of the Teamster union's Central States Pension Fund, at the time was president of the Chicago Park District and was in the process of acquiring half of Rostenkowski's interest in a limited partnership.

Train wreck price tag passes $1.5 million mark

LAGRANGE, (UPI) — Damage from the collision of an Amtrak passenger train with derailed cars of a Burlington Northern freight train near LaGrange was put at more than $1.5 million Sunday.

Thirty-two persons were injured in the crash Saturday that sent an Amtrak engine and several freight cars plunging 30 feet to railroad tracks below. The only person critically injured, Clyde Hugher, Galesburg, was listed in good condition at Loyola University Medical Center Sunday with internal injuries.

PETER BRIGGS, a spokesman for Burlington, said damage estimates were $500,000 to Burlington equipment, $450,000 to the overpass on which the collision occurred and $15,000 to tracks.

Amtrack officials put the damage to the two locomotives on its 13-car "Zephyr" train at $600,000.

Briggs said investigators have not yet determined the cause of the freight train derailment that led to the collision with the Amtrak train that was heading for California with 192 passengers.

He said that although the tracks had been cleared of damaged equipment by Sunday afternoon, it would be Tuesday before trains would roll again over even one of the tracks.

That will cause a disruption in the Burlington's commuter service. Briggs said 15,000 to 18,000 commuters will travel by train from Aurora to LaGrange where buses will take them to Brookfield to board other trains.

"My friends think I'm weird because I am so athletic," Mrs. Berkson says. But those who once may have thought her strange now admire her and look forward to her visits.

"I thought she was crazy," says William Steiner, grounds superintendent at the Old Orchard Country Club. "But I think it's great. I saw her walking on the course one day and asked her what she was doing. Now I see her walking everywhere. She walks like crazy."

Steiner's conversations with Mrs. Berkson usually center around plants and wildlife. But she manages to have something different to say to everyone she meets. When she occasionally walks to Mount Prospect's Chicago and North Western Ry. station to "pick up" her husband, she talks to the ticket agent about her family. When she walks to the Mount Prospect Public Library, she talks to the librarians about new books or controversial authors.

Weather conditions don't bother Mrs. Berkson. If it's hot and sunny, she'll don a pair of shorts, a sleeveless blouse and some tennis shoes. It it's below zero and snowing, she'll dress for the occasion with earmuffs and scarf and be on her way.

"She just came up to me and introuced herself," says Helen Maltezos, 1110 Alder Ln., Mount Prospect, who met Mrs. Berkson one day in a coffee shop at the Randhurst Shopping Center.

The two have rendezvoused at Randhurst several times since that first meeting.

"She walks all over," Mrs. Maltezos says. "She's very outgoing, very friendly, vivacious. I love to walk myself but I can't because of my tight schedule. I think it's great. I think it's wonderful."

Pharmacist has "tried them all..." ...discovers weight control program that really works!

Pharmacist Dan Smith of Burger's Drug Store in St. Charles, Illinois is a NaturSlim "believer" after losing 18 pounds in just two weeks. After hearing so much about the NaturSlim program from customers and seeing the excellent results they were having, Dan decided to try it himself.

"In my many years as a pharmacist, I've seen and tried numerous weight-loss plans, but none have worked as well for me as NaturSlim. And NaturSlim is very nutritional too!"

After three months, Dan has not regained any of the lost pounds either, as so often happens when "rebounding" from starvation diet plans. He maintains his weight by taking NaturSlim once daily . . . and eating normally otherwise.

Dan says, "It was surprisingly easy, too! I didn't have to attend any weigh-ins, starve myself or do any special exercises."

With the NaturSlim program, there are no shots, drugs or long lists of forbidden foods. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day.

The next time you are in the St. Charles area, stop by Burger's Drugs and see Dan yourself. He'll tell you personally what he thinks about NaturSlim!

HOW TO SHOP FOR A MATTRESS

1. Pay attention to all the radio and TV ads by the big name manufacturers. Each one will tell you what famous medical group or orthopedic society or surgical committee designed that particular mattress.

2. Go to a retail store and find the famous Bleepy "This A Pedic" or the Blurpo "Bumpy Rest" and poke it with your fingers. Use all four fingers because you can't really tell how it feels by poking with just two fingers.

3. By all means do not lie down on it because you might be a little embarrassed to have people see you lying on a mattress in a real store. Besides, that way you can get a bigger surprise the first time you try to sleep on it. Anyway, if it's one of those Pedic kinds, the salesman would probably just as soon you wouldn't find out how hard it really is.

4. Don't act shocked when the salesman tells you the King size set is only $500.00. After all, the super deluxe model is only $50.00 or $100.00 or more.

5. Before you make a final decision, go to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. We have a small showroom in the front of the factory, and we want our customers to lie down on our comfortable mattresses. And if you just happen to doze off for awhile, we won't even bother you — until closing time of course.

Lutheran Home asks delay in zone hearing today

The attorney for the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights has asked that today's scheduled zoning board hearing on plans for the controversial Luther Village project be postponed until Oct. 24.

The retirement village is planned for a 53-acre site north of the present Lutheran Home at 800 W. Oakton St.

The project has been opposed by residents in the area who object to its density and the five-story apartment buildings included in the original plans submitted by Lutheran Home officials last winter.

William Moore, attorney for the Lutheran Home, said revisions of the plans will reduce the original density of the project from 14 units per acre and lower the height of the buildings.

THE REQUEST for postponement of the zoning board hearing is the second since April 18.

"The architect has started implementing the changes," Moore said, "but these things take time. Each time you modify a building or move something 50 feet there is a lot of money involved and decisions have to be made."

Plan commission members recommended last January that the village board approve the rezoning request from a single-family to an institutional district if the maximum height of the apartments is lowered to four stories and the number of connected units is reduced from eight to six.

THE ORIGINAL plans for Luther Village called for 250 one-story townhouses and 500 units of two-to five-story apartment buildings.

Opponents of the retirement village proposal have compared the project with the Lincoln Green low-and moderate-income housing project proposed for a site near St. Viator High School in 1971.

The village's refusal to rezone land for Lincoln Green was upheld in January by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The village's main argument in the Lincoln Green court tests was that the multifamily development would hurt property values in the surrounding residential neighborhoods. Many residents living near the proposed Luther Village insist the retirement village should be rejected for the same reason.

Increase of 4.2 per cent

Dist. 25 approves $14 million budget

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

A $14 million budget for the 1977-78 school year has been approved by the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education.

The budget reflects a 4.2 per cent increase in expenditures over last year with inflation in salary, insurance, utility and supply costs accounting for most of the increase, Business Mgr. Dan Suffoletto told residents at Thursday's budget hearing.

Although the district's tentative budget for this coming school year reflected the borrowing of $1 million in tax anticipation warrants, the adopted budget shows no such borrowing.

BECAUSE OF this the district will have little cash to carry forward into 1978-79, but will have the borrowing option available then when it is needed most, Supt. Donald Strong said.

"Really it's immaterial because we're going to be in trouble the second year either way," Suffoletto said.

Despite tremendous gains in the district's tax base, Dist. 25 still will have to borrow between $2 million and $2.5 million in 1978-79 n order to make ends meet, Strong said.

While the Wheeling Township quadrennial reassessment coupled with a 48-cent voter-approved tax rate increase will yield the district an additional $2.3 million in revenue this year, the district's state aid is expected to fall off by $1.8 million, he said.

THE STATE AID loss comes because the district's enrollment is declining at the same time its tax base is increasing. Under the Illinois state aid formula, the more equalized assessed valuation a district has behind each child, the less money it receives from the state.

The $500,000 net gain in revenue the district will receive will be eaten up by salary increases, still leaving the district to pay inflation-increased supply, insurance and utility costs, Suffoletto said. This says nothing of repaying the $1.6 million debt the district already has incurred, he said.

"The district is not fat or suddenly rich," Strong told residents questioning why the district has financial problems when their property tax bills are skyrocketing and enrollment is declining. "The impact of a better local tax base is that it relieves the state from a significant part of the burden of educating kids in Arlington Heights."

Strong said the district has tightened its belt wherever possible and that the budget is "running lean."

EXPENDITURES IN the education fund will rise 6.4 per ctnt in 1977-78, from $10.3 million last year to $10.9 million.

Salaries for teachers, administrators and secretaries account for more than $8 million of the education fund's expenditures, an almost 8 per cent increase over last year, Suffoletto said.

A loan of $360,726 from the district's working cash fund will be necessary to balance expenditures and revenues in the education fund, he said.

The budget also includes:

- Building fund, $932,000 compared to last year's $845,000.
- Bond and interest fund, $1.4 million compared to last year's $1.8 million.
- Retirement fund, $250,000 compared to last year's $235,000.
- Transportation fund, $436,000 compared to last year's $1.8 million.

State election unit sets hearing on proposed bill

The Illinois Election Law Commission will conduct a hearing Sept. 8 for citizens and groups that wish to speak on the Consolidated Elections Bill now awaiting Gov. James R. Thompson's signature.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, co-chairman of the commission, will conduct the meeting, set for 10 a.m. at Stouffer's Oak Brook Inn, 2100 Spring Rd., Oak Brook.

The bill would limit the number of elections held in Illinois to five in a two-year period. If it is signed by the governor, it will take effect Dec. 1, 1978.

The bill has come under criticism from municipal clerks because it would place control of all elections, including local elections, in the hands of the county clerk's office rather than local clerks.

The bill also has been attacked by local officials because it would cut in half the four-year terms of mayors, village presidents, clerks and city treasurers elected in April.

"This is a comprehensive piece of legislation whcch has some kinks that need to be ironed out," Graham said. "Before the legislature starts amending, I want the public to have a chance to offer some input into it."

Persons who wish to speak at the hearing should contact Graham's office by writing to 307 Capitol Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706, or calling 217-782-5832.

Scarsdale to get new streetlights

New streetlights costing $509,000 will be installed in the Scarsdale subdivision in September and October.

About 100 obsolete fixtures installed in the 1920s were removed from the area this week by public works employes, William Bachem of the village's engineering department said.

They will be replaced in September and October with mercury-vapor lights mounted in lantern-type fixtures atop 15-foot high concrete poles.

The new lights will be paid with motor fuel tax funds received by the village.

Attempts to replace the streetlights in Scarsdale have been delayed three years. Residents first opposed the original plan to install sodium-vapor lights. The system selected by the Scarsdale Property Owners Assn. later was rejected by the state for not meeting state illumination requirements.

However, after those plans were modified slightly and resubmitted, the lighting system.

State approval was required for the village to spend motor fuel tax funds on the project.

if consolidation would be advantageous to the district, emphasizing that the size of a district is less important than the education it is able to provide.

"The total numbers aren't as important as what kind of district would be created," she said. "I think for our size we have a good district, but we want to know what other advantages can accrue if we get a little bigger."

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said that Dist. 21 has not slammed the door on consolidation for the future, but said the board seems to have no interest in it now.

"Districts should always be trading information, to find what data is really available," Gill said. "Consolidation is always something that has to be considered."

Owner hot over arrest of trucker

by PAT DOYLE

The owner of a warehouse in Elk Grove Village believes $1,455 is a lot to pay for making a wrong turn.

Richard A. Hollander of Hollander Storage and Moving Co., 1801 Pratt Blvd., says the village is using its ordinances improperly, and wants it to change its policy.

Hollander asked for the change after truck driver Gene Stanley of New Jersey missed a turn last week to Hollander's warehouse, became confused and drove into a residential neighborhood.

Police saw the truck, found that it weighed 38,300 pounds and was 14,300 pounds heavier than allowed. They arrested Stanley.

Stanley's bond was set at $1,455, equal to the fine and court costs he would pay if convicted. Stanley didn't have it.

THE DRIVER CALLED Allied Van Lines in Jersey City, N.J., a firm with which he had contracted to haul furniture to Hollander's warehouse.

But it was after 5 p.m. in New Jersey and Allied couldn't get a certified check written in time to bail out Stanley.

Hollander lent Stanley $1,400 and the driver was released.

STANLEY HAD TO STAY here until Thursday, when he appeared at a hearing in the village branch of Cook County Circuit Court. The case was continued to a later date and is being handled by a local attorney for Allied.

The inconvenience and cost of driving on the wrong street in Elk Grove Village bothers Hollander as well as the drivers and their companies.

"Some of the affiliates I do business with say they have truckers who won't come back here anymore," Hollander said.

He accused the village of instructing the police department to enforce the letter of the law without leniency.

The law itself was not intended to be used this way, he said.

HOLLANDER'S criticism centers on the village policy of assessing a 10-cent fine for each pound a truck is overweight. Most village residential streets have a weight limit of 24,000 pounds. Trucks are barred entirely from some streets.

Under that policy, a semitrailer truck carrying the maximum load of 73,000 pounds could cost a driver $4,900 if he drives on the wrong street.

The law is needed to keep truckers from hauling heavy loads regularly on roads that can't support the weight of their loads. It also is meant to ensure that truckers will buy licenses for hauling certain weights, Hollander said.

"They're using this law to keep trucks out of a certain area rather than to restrict the weight they are carrying," Hollander said.

THERE IS NOTHING wrong with trying to keep trucks out of a residential area, Hollander said. But a $250 fine would serve the same purpose, he said.

Stanley was westbound on Oakton Street and was supposed to turn left onto Busse Road and continue on to Pratt Boulevard. He missed the turn at Busse. He continued west on Oakton and noticed a sign restricting truck traffic west of Kent Avenue, Hollander said.

Because Kent is a deadend street he decided not to pull in there and instead continued on to Wildwood Road, where he was stopped by police.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek supports the system, but suggests Hollander send a letter to the judiciary, planning and zoning committee explaining his complaint and remedy.

"I feel it's an excellent policy," Zettek said. "We try to restrict trucks from coming into a residential neighborhood."

3 teens held in school breakins

Three Northwest suburban residents were arrested by Mount Prospect police during the weekend in connection with the burglary of two schools.

Ralph S. Barnes, 18, of 912 Greenfield Ct., Mount Prospect; Michele L. Patterson, 17, of 107 Babcock Dr., Palatine; and a 16-year-old juvenile from Arlington Heights were each charged with two counts of burglary for allegedly breaking into Prospect High School, 801 Kensington Rd., and Westbrook School, 105 S. Busse Rd., both in Mount Prospect.

The three are accused of entering Prospect High School about 2 a.m. and breaking into the assistant principal's office where they went through desks and files. A maintenance man told police he heard someone in the office, then saw three persons leave the building.

The three also are accused of breaking into Westbrook School at 2:17 a.m. where a security alarm brought police to the scene. Patrolmen Anthony Jalachoulis apprehended the juvenile. Sgt. Richard Yost arrested Barnes.

Through questioning, Ms. Patterson was implicated in the burglaries and was picked up by police about three hours later, authorities said.

All three suspects allegedly admitted to the burglaries.

The juvenile has been taken by police to the Cook County Juvenile Detention Center in Chicago. Barnes and Patterson were held by Mount Prospect police Sunday for a bond hearing today.

No hope for peace in Mideast: Syria

Syria's information minister says there is not "one glimmer of hope" of reconvening the Geneva Middle East peace talks and his country is prepared for war. "Taking into consideration Israel's daily statements indicating its refusal to withdraw from (occupied) Arab lands, we do not think there is one glimmer of hope that the Geneva conference will convene," Ahmad Iskandar Ahmad told the Beirut English-language weekly Monday morning. The interview was released Sunday. "When the fighting is imposed," he said "we are ready to defend our rights and our lands, and we are fully equipped to fight with the same courage which we exhibited in the October war of 1973."

Spanish cops halt Basque march

Spanish riot police firing smoke flares and rubber bullets Sunday prevented nearly 10,000 Basque nationalists from marching into the town of Pamplona. The demonstrators came from a rally in a rain-soaked field where at least 40,000 Basques gathered to push demands for home rule and celebrate the end of a 1,125-mile "March for Freedom" sponsored by leftist and separatist groups that crisscrossed the restive northern region. The marchers approached Pampola in four columns but were ordered to go to the field four miles away. Thousands of police stood by and helicopters hovered overhead.

At the end of the rally, an estimated 10,000 protesters decided to try to force their way into Pamplona. Police repelled several attempts. According to early reports, nobody was injured seriously. But police arrested several marchers for carrying propaganda leaflets from such outlawed groups as the revolutionary "Basque Homeland and Liberty" (ETA).

Quake rocks island of Sardinia

An "extraordinary and exceptional" earthquake shook the Italian island of Sardinia Sunday, the Rome National Geophysics Institute announced. No casualties or damage were reported. Dr. Calvino Gasperini said the Tremor measuring 5.2 on the open-ended Richter scale — powerful enough to cause considerable damage — hit the island at 11:46 a.m. (5:46 a.m. EDT). "The event is to be considered extraordinary and exceptional because Sardinia is not normally subject to tremors," Gasperini said.

U.N. asked: halt Horn fighting

Ethiopia appealed to the United Nations Sunday to halt the fight ing on he Horn of Africa, claiming it was the victim of a massive invasion "on all fronts." At the same time, Addis Ababa established special "revolutioniary operations committees" in another step to streamline its own war machine. Somalia again charged Ethiopia was hiring mercenary troops mainly from Greece, and said many of these fighters already had arrived in Addis Baba. Ethiopia consistently has denied these charges. Official Radio Ethiopia charged reactionary neighboring countries and troops "are currently conducting a massive invasion on Ethiopia on all fronts (in the southeastern Ogaden desert and in Northern Eritrea province)," and urged the United Nations to re-establish peace in the area.

Lance should quit: Proxmire

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who cast the lone dissenting vote at Bert Lance's confirmation hearings, said Sunday Lance should not resign now under fire but he should "step aside" in the future from his job as budget director. Proxmire said Lance lacks the skills to head the Office of Management and Budget and "he doesn't run that office right now." He said Lance's "subordinates" are performing the day-to-day job of running OMB and Lance has had no government experience which qualifies him for the job of holding down government spending. "I think I was right in voting against him," said Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, on CBS-TV's Face the Nation program. "I wouldn't say he should resign. I think there would be a feeling that if Mr. Lance left now, in the next week or so, that he was drummed out because of a lack of integrity and I think he's a man of high integrity. "He's a man of deep religious principles and I think he lives those principles," Proxmire said."But I do hope there will come a time when Mr. Lance can step aside."

Voyager I launch set back 2 days

The launch of Voyager I has been set back at least two days because of problems aboard Voyager II, now more than 4.4 million miles from earth and headed for the outer planets, a Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesman said Sunday. Voyager I was scheduled for launch Sept. 3, but it has been postponed until at least Sept. 5 while scientists at JPL study computer problems aboard the first spaceprobe. Voyager I, despite its later launch date, is to arrive at giant Jupiter four months ahead of Voyager II by flying a faster trajectory.

"They are studying 10 pictures of the starfield sent back Saturday by Voyager II," Frank Bristow of JPL said. "They also took a look at the science boom and it seems to be in place, but they are making a more careful analysis." A loss of data shortly after the launch has left scientists in doubt as to the position of the seven-foot long boom holding a pod of cameras and science instruments. Voyager II's main computer aborted a command from Eath earlier when it was told to blow the dust cover from the science instruments and make a revolution at the same time. "It closed the sequence down," Bristow said, "because it saw the attitude control shifting back and forth from the main system to the back-up."

Soviet military buildup cited

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown says the Soviet Union's military and civil defense preparations could mislead Soviet leaders into thinking their country could survive a nuclear war. Brown, in a copyrighted interview in U.S News & World Report, said the Soviets, military build-up so far has not shifted the strategy balance against the United States, but he warned if the present trends continue "then I think the situation five years down the road could be a serious one." Brown said there is a "potential danger" the Soviets are preparing to fight a nuclear war rather than simply deter one. "I can't say whether that's the Soviet doctrine and plan. I'm not sure that their own political leaders know themselves. But I believe that they are building up military forces that might mislead them into thinking that such a strategy was feasible for them," Brown said.

VFW chief says Carter anti-Vet

Wasylik, interviwed on ABC's "Issues and Answers," said Carday the Carter administration is anti-veteran. Wasylik said the administration is considering elimination of a preference for veterans who apply for civil service jobs. Wasylik said veterans deserve the preference to "catch up" for time spent in the military. Opponents of the policy say it reduces job opportunities for minorities and women.

Wasylik, interviewed on ABS's "Issues and Answers," sail Carter has indicated he wants only "worthy" veterans — those severely injured in the line of duty — to be eligible for some benefits. But Wasylik said all veterans who served honorably are worthy and the concept is "insulting to all veterans."

London air strike delays 'minimal'

LONDON (UPI) — Officials at London's two major airports said planes were landing and taking off with minimal delays Sunday despite a strike by air traffic control assistants, now in its third day.

The situation was different at provincial airports, where some flights were delayed up to 17 hours.

But at London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports, airline cancellation of 40 per cent of some flights plus a sudden absence of passengers kept things quieter than normal on what is usually one of the busiest holidays of the year.

"MAYBE WE just planned it all too well," said a puzzled British Airways official. "But where have all the passengers gone?"

Airline and airport officials said delays were worsened by air controller slowdowns in France and Spain, although airport officials in Madrid officially denied there was any job action by controllers there.

In Paris, the French air traffic controllers union said the British control assistants had asked them and their Spanish colleagues to launch "coordinated action" to support their grievances.

A UNION spokesman said their representatives will meet today to consider the request.

The 800 French controllers began a 10-day slowdown Friday to press demands for less work and higher wages. But the action was not coordinated with the British strike.

Some airport workers estimated some 25,000 would-be passengers had decided the predicted chaos, congestion and delays would not be worth the fuss, and either stayed home or traveled another way.

OTHER WORKERS were busy soothing passengers who purposely showed up late, figuring that would be about right to catch delayed flights, only to discover the flights had left on time.

"It's not as bad as it could have been," a spokesman for Pan American said in New York. The other principal U.S. carrier, Trans World Airlines, said there "are surprisingly little delays," with only one of its seven flights canceled.

At airports like Glasgow and Manchester, airport congestion was severe. A spokesman at Glasgow airport said flight schedules there "have been knocked about worse" Sunday than on the first two strike days.

AT GATWICK, Laker Airways was having the worst trouble. Mainly a charter airline, its delays were cumulative — every new delay made the previous one worse. Some Laker flights were leaving 17 hours late.

But the bulk of those canceled were flights by British Airways, the state-owned airline, which cancelled 40 of its 300 domestic and European flights and seven long-haul flights, including one bound for New York and another to Los Angeles.

The control assistants want a wage increase won during negotiations with the Civil Aviation Authority in April 1975 but never paid because of the government's anti-inflation pay freeze.

A spokesman for the Civil Aviation Authority said Sunday, "We have no proposals to offer and there are no talks fixed at present" to end the dispute.

Comptroller denies blame in NYC crisis

NEW YORK (UPI) — City Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin Sunday vehemently denied any blame in the fiscal plight of New York City, saying that he repeatedly sounded an alarm that the city was plunging into fiscal chaos.

In fact, Goldin insisted a Securities and Exchange Commission report on the financial crisis issued last week which accused him and Mayor Abraham Beame of "deceptive practices" during the crisis was based extensively on his own statements and records.

"On more than 50 major occasions, in increasingly grave and urgent language, I warned the public about the city's worsening fiscal condition and budget practices," Goldin told a news conference at his Municipal Building office.

"The height of irony is that so many facts on which the SEC relies to support its claim of non-disclosure come from my own public statements and reports," he said.

Among its findings, the SEC said Goldin and Beame engaged in "deceptive practices" in late 1974 and early 1975 to sell city securities although they were aware that the city would be cut off from the credit market.

In mid-1975, the city's credit was cut off and New York nearly went into default until a state financial rescue package, later supplemented by a $3.2 billion-a-year, three-year federal loan package, was assembled.

Harper administration bonuses adjusted

by RENA WISH COHEN

One of the privileges of being a Harper College administrator seems to be disappearing.

For the first time in seven years, Harper administrators who earned bonuses for outstanding performance received the bonus on the same basis as nonadministrative employes: A $300 bonus, for example, meant $300 before federal and state payroll taxes were taken out. Previously the administrators' bonuses were paid on a net basis, and a $300 bonus meant the employe received that amount.

The change comes after an uproar among the Harper Board of Trustees a month ago, when board members found Harper officials had distributed $14,434.62 in administrators' bonuses instead of the $10,000 authorized by the board.

Harper Pres. Robert E. Lahti, whose office awards the bonuses, said he had interpreted the $10,000 figure to mean $10,000 after taxes, in accordance with a standing practice of awarding administrators' merit pay on a net basis.

OUTRAGED BOARD members rejected the explanation, insisting the administration had exceeded the $10,000 ceiling intended by the board by $4,434.62 — a 44 per cent overrun.

Board members also blasted the policy of having "different strokes for different folks" in giving net bonuses to administrators and gross amounts to other employes.

Haper officials have since adjusted the payroll to retrieve the $4,434.62 overpayment, and Board Chairwoman Shirley Munson said she expects bonuses for administrators and other staff members to be handled identically in the future.

"I think the administration got a fairly definite picture that that's what we want," Mrs. Munson said.

BOARD MEMBER David Tomchek, who uncovered the overpayment and net-gross discrepancy on a list of bonus checks, is satisfied that the error has been corrected but remains skeptical about two explanations of the overpayment by the administration. Those explanations were:

- That the administration actually "saved" money because the sum of raises and bonuses granted to Harper's 36 administrators was several thousand dollars less than the total $57,000 authorized by the board ($47,000 for raises, $10,000 for bonuses).
- That several persons on the $14,434.62 bonus list were not technically administrators, and that eliminating their bonuses from the list reduced the bonus total to either $11,554.62 (a July 15 calculation) or $12,130.62 (a July 19 figure.)

"IF (THE administration) didn't need $57,000 for administrators' salary increases, why did they ask for it?" Tomchek said. "I'm not satisfied with that explanation, and I'm not satisfied with those lower figures."

Tomchek also said he believes there was a $3,341 overpayment of merit bonuses to 90 clerical and other nonacademic employes — bonuses for which the board earmarked $17,500 but which totaled $20,841.

"That $3,341 is spread across so many people that it would cost more to recoup it than to let it go," Tomchek said. "But they overspent the (board's) allocation; there's no question about it."

HARPER ADMINISTRATION spokeswoman Elaine Stoermer denied Tomchek's charge. She said the $17,500 approved by the board was only for bonuses to employes who are paid out of the college's education fund, while the apparent overpayment reflects bonuses to bookstore and cafeteria employes, who are paid out of a fund for the college's self-supporting services.

Tomchek argued the administration asked for $17,500 in bonuses for "staff" and did not specify which fund the money would come from.

He said the board believed it had authorized a total of $17,500 for nonacademic bonuses, and that the administration had exceeded that figure.

$85.6 million in state taxes spent in area: Chapman

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has prepared a comeback to the popular question, What ever happened to my state taxes?"

Thw answer, she says, is that $85.6 million of state tax money was spent in the Northwest suburbs last year.

"Millions and millions of dollars, forked over to the state every year by taxpayers in this area, are coming back to local villages, libraries and school districts," Mrs. Chapman said.

Eugenia Chapman

"PEOPLE ARE concerned about their taxes now because of the property tax bills. Every dollar of the property tax is spent locally. The state doesn't get a single penny.

"Of the state tax money, the figures I have should provide some reassurance to the public that the state is concerned, that state funds are providing services in this area."

Mrs. Chapman said she did not know how much tax money Northwest suburban residents paid to the state.

The state departments of revenue, local government affairs and the comptroller's office also were unable to estimate the area's total tax bill.

STATE SPENDING is a bit easier to track down, although Mrs. Chapman said it took several months to compile the figures. This is what she found:

- Ten Northwest suburban cities and villages received $23.6 million in state tax money in 1976-77. Des Plaines got the most money, $4.6 million; Roselle the least, $700,442.
- Elementary school districts were paid $27.6 million, or about 50 per cent of their total budgets, by the state.
- High School Districts 214 and 211 received $23.3 million. Harper College was paid $4.35 million.
- Road resurfacing, traffic signals and intersection improvements in the area consumed $736,118 of state tax dollars.
- The department of conservation spent $523,000 to buy land; another $347,771 was channeled into mental health programs; $229,480 was spent on police and fire training; and $54,320 in state-paid-for library services were provided.

"I am not trying to paint only a bright picture. A lot of work still needs to be done in directing state spending and I think we in this area need to be active," Mrs. Chapman said.

She disagreed with the philosophy that state spending should match, dollar-for-dollar, the amount of state taxes collected from the Northwest suburbs.

Illinois residents pay state income, sales, motor fuel, liquor and cigarette taxes.

NORTRAN planning maps of bus routes

Bus-riders in the Northwest suburbs will soon be able to get an up-to-date map of North Suburban Mass Transit District routes.

The map will include a three-color representation of all routes on one side, with schedule information on the other side.

The map will be available after Sept. 1 from all NORTRAN drivers or by writing to NORTRAN, 900 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines, 60017. It will also be at village halls and railroad stations in the region.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

THE LADOWS ARE hooked on fishing. The Mount Prospect family, Jeff, Kathy, and their father, John Ladow, spend an afternoon at a pond in Potawatomi Woods, east of Wheeling, where time passes slowly, worries and cares disappear and the fishing is easy.

Operating room hazards reported

Staffs in hospital operating rooms run an increased risk of developing health problems, probably because of chronic exposure to anesthetic gases, the Journal of the American Medical Assn. reports today.

Female physicians who work in the operating room have a risk of miscarriage 26 per cent above average, and a 38 per cent greater likelihood of giving birth to a malformed infant, the article reports.

Men working in operating rooms have an above average risk of liver disease and an increased frequency of birth defects in their offspring.

THE REPORT is based on three studies done in Glasgow, Scotland, and at Stanford University in California.

"We believe the comparison of these three studies strongly suggests that the practice of anesthesia, specifically among those working in the operating room, is associated with an increased risk of congenital abnormality for the live-born children of both exposed men and women," said Dr. Alastair A. Spence, a Glasgow physician who participated in the study.

Hospitals should take "active steps to reduce the level of pollution in all operating rooms," he said.

But officials at two Northwest suburban hospitals played down the problem and said they already have ventilation and vacuum systems that control anesthetics.

Don Smith, director of support services at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, said a gas evacuation system removes anesthetic gases from the room. Air samples are taken regularly and are sent to a laboratory for testing, he said.

"THERE HAVE been other articles published before, but as far as I'm concerned there has never been proven documentation of the hazard," said Pat Heuer, director of operating rooms at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

Machines that administer anesthetic at the hospital are equipped with a vacuum "scavenger" which exhausts escaping gas, Mrs. Heuer said.

Also, the air in the operating room is exchanged 18 times an hour. Fresh air brought in is filtered several times so it is free of contaminants, she said.

The Illinois Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals includes control of anesthetics in its inspection of hospitals, Mrs. Heuer said.

"With the "scavenger" system we have and the fresh air in the room completely changed 18 times an hour, I feel we have an adequate protection," she said.

Rep. Aspin disputes Navy projections for fleet size

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin Sunday disputed the Navy's claim its dwindling fleet will start to expand again next year, and said the service has been muffing such predictions for years.

"The evidence is clear that the Navy does not know how to make reasonable projections," the Wisconsin Democrat, a frequent Pentagon critic, said in releasing a study of the Navy forecasts.

"The continual foul-up in estimates of fleet size is caused by two types of errors: overestimates of the number of new ships to be delivered to the fleet and underestimates of ship retirements."

NAVY SPOKESMEN acknowledged there have been delays in new ship deliveries, but said many factors are involved and "the fault does not always lie with the Navy or the contractor."

As to the pace of ship retirements, the Navy said it does not always have enough money to maintain projected fleet strengths and "unforeseeen emerging purposes" sometimes force ships to be disposed of so the funds can be used elsewhere.

The Navy now has 468 ships in active service, the smallest number since before World War II. It had a fleet of more than 1,000 ships a decade ago.

In March, the service predicted fleet strength would bottom out at 462 next year and swing into an upward trend that would reach 536 ships in 1983 with an eventual goal of 600.

But Aspin said next year's estimate already has been revised downward to 455 ships.

HE SAID the fleet actually may be no bigger in 1983 than it is now and said it would take "a miracle to meet the 536-ship goal that year.

Aspin said between 1971 and 1975 Navy ships were delivered on schedule only 30 per cent of the time. He said money was not the problem because Congress provided all necessary funds, and added, "responsibility must lie with the shipyards . . . and the Navy itself."

Ship retirements, he said, have been 56 per cent higher than projected because of "major errors" in planning.

In a four-year period ending last year, Aspin said, 303 ships were retired from service compared to the original estimate of only 194 retirements.

Aspin called for management improvements by the Navy and shipyards to speed deliveries, and said the Navy should "slow the decline and speed the turnaround by not accelerating its retirement schedules."

CIA go-between linked to JFK assassination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dutch journalist William Oltmans said Sunday he will meet with a Justice Dept. official today to discuss safety guarantees for a person he said was a CIA go-between in the John F. Kennedy assassination.

The alleged go-between is the second of two men whom Oltman said were involved in a conspiracy to kill Kennedy.

"If de Mohrenschildt (the first man) could be considered a World War II bomb, the new witness is an H-bomb," Oltmans sa.d.

George de Mohrenschildt, a friend of Lee Harvey Oswald, was the subject of a book Oltmans wrote about Kennedy's death.

DE MOHRENSCHILDT, who was questioned by the Warren Commission, was shot to death with a 20-guage shot gun last March in Palm Beach, Fla.

Authorities called the death a suicide but Oltmans said two men visited de Morhenschildt before his death. "De Morhenschildt sought protection from the wrong people," said Oltmans.

Oltmans described his new "witness" as a "key man" between the CIA in Washington and persons in Dallas. He refused to give his name for security reasons.

"He is a key man in the execution of the assassination in Dallas. De Morhenschildt was a minor figure.

"I could not go any further than saying I think he is connected with the CIA," Oltmans said.

OLTMANS SAID since his last "witness" died, he wanted "sufficient guarantees (the new witness) would stay alive" and sought them from President Carter in mid-June. The request moved through White House offices, to presidential aide Hamilton Jordan, and then was passed to Robert Keuch, Oltmans said.

In Texas murder trial

Socialite tells of loves, drugs

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — For five days the flashy blonde socialite sat in the witness stand, alternately tearful and tense as attorneys grilled her about her drug habit, her love life, her hazy memory.

She admitted she had taken up to 200 tablets a week of the pain-killing drug Percodan and was probably addicted. She acknowledged that shortly before she filed for divorce from her husband she began a relationship with a boyfriend, and then later asked a lover to move in with her.

She conceded her memory was poor concerning some of the events the night her lover and daughter were shot to death in a sensational Fort Worth society murder.

At week's end it almost appeared as though Priscilla Davis, rather than her estranged husband, T. Cullen Davis, was on trial.

SHE IS THE state's star witness in the murder trial of her millionaire husband, who is accused of shooting to death Mrs. Davis' daughter by a previous marriage, 12-year-old Andrea Wilborn. Davis also faces charges of murdering Mrs. Davis' lover, Stan Farr, and wounding both Mrs. Davis and a family friend.

Testimony enters its second week today.

Mrs. Davis — wearing a stylish assortment of frocks, gaucho pants and sweaters to the witness stand — has told the story of how she and Farr returned to the mansion that night and Davis stepped from the shadows, shooting her in the chest. She has told the jury he then killed Farr.

Because her testimony is a key to the case against Davis, defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes spent five days last week attempting to punch holes in her account.

Haynes led Mrs. Davis through a recounting of her 200-pill a week Percodan habit, and she admitted she was probably addicted at one time. He pressed her about her alleged use of cocaine and other drugs, but Judge George Dowlen finally limited further discussion of the subject.

He attempted to introduce evidence that W.T. Rufner, one of Mrs. Davis' former boyfriends, had a violent temper and once threw a potted plant at her while she was bathing.

RUFNER WAS the same man pictured in a poster-sized photo standing almost nude next to a scantily clad Mrs. Davis. Haynes had tried to introduce the photo as evidence a day earlier.

Dowlen ruled both the photo and the account of Mrs. Davis' love life with Rufner as inadmissible. Discussions about both were held while the jury was out of the courtroom.

During earlier testimony Saturday, Mrs. Davis said she was taking 50 tablets of the pain-killing drug Percodan every eight to 10 days in the months prior to the killings.

Haynes also produced documents showing she was buying up to 250 tablets of the drug each month during that period...

Asked if she had taken any Percodan the night of the shooting, she said, "I don't remember particularly taking any. I took a couple of Excedrin. I may have taken one. I don't recall."

More may survive cancer: official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National Cancer Institute Director Arthur Upton predicted Sunday improved survival rates for common types of cancers in the coming decade.

"New animal models (for testing), new compounds and new combinations in addition to surgery are being brought into play," said Upton on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"The initial results are encouraging, so that I would predict that within the coming decade we will see advances in some of the more common forms (of cancer)," he said.

Arthur Upton

UPTON SAID some cancer cures bordering on the "miraculous" have been discovered in recent years in treating diseases with very rapid cell division, such as acute leukemia in children.

"These changes I think to those of us who got into this business 20 years ago border on the miraculous," he said.

But he said five-year survival rate for more common, slow-growing tumors in adults will require new strategies.

A study on cancer from 1967-73 found that despite the $800 million a year spent on the cancer research, little progress has been made. Only 41 per cent of all white cancer patients survived five years from the time their disease was discovered during the latest five-year period surveyed, compared with 40 per cent during the 1960-66 period and 39 per cent during 1950-59.

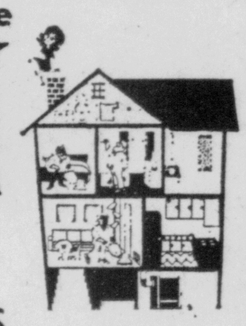

UPTON ALSO said he believes saccharin should be sold by pharmacists to persons who believe they need it, but not put into the foods available at grocery stores.

He said he expects a meeting at National Cancer Institute this week to examine the latest evidence of alleged cancer risks for young women undergoing routine breast X-rays. Some studies indicated the X-rays themselves may cause cancer.

Upton also said he will be meeting this week with federal officials to determine whether Laetrile, the controversial drug from apricot pits, should be tested in animals to determine whether it cures cancer.

Escaped convict, hostage missing

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UPI) — Authorities frustrated by a lack of leads expressed growing fears Sunday for the safety of a woman abducted by a prison work farm walkaway described by a relative as "a regular wild man."

Although nationwide bulletins were issued for the arrest of Douglas Henry, 22, of Lansing, state police speculated he probably was hiding in the sparsely populated Upper Peninsula with his hostage, Evelyn VanTassel, 58.

Henry's criminal record involves mostly petty crimes, but Lansing police said he had a potential for violence. The kidnaper's stepfather, Ralph D. Henry, Lainsburg, Mich., described Henry as extremely unstable.

"All I'm doing is praying for that poor woman," the stepfather said. "He's a regular wild man. When something sets him off, he goes absolutely crazy."

Troopers, local police officers and FBI agents combed back roads, cabins, motels and other potential hiding places hoping at least to find Mrs. VanTassel unharmed.

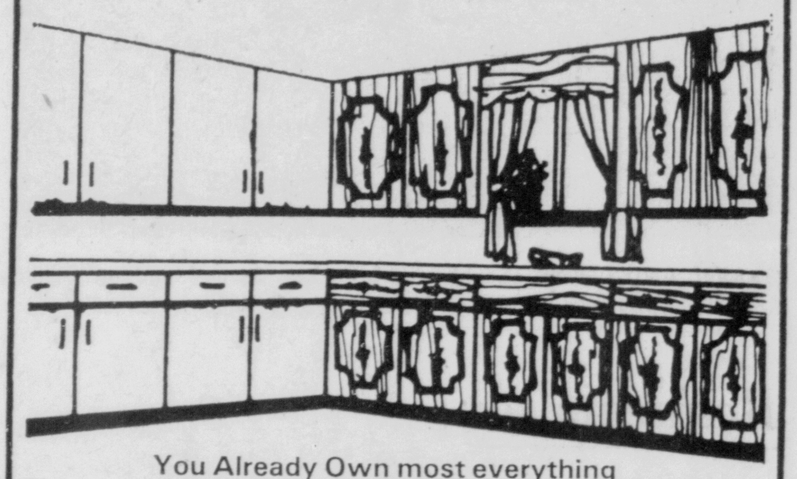

HER HUSBAND, Leo, 65, a retired Northern Michigan University vice president, said the couple surprised the hiding convict Thursday at their cabin where they were to meet a furnace repairman.

The repairman arrived but left without suspecting trouble when Henry said his services weren't needed. Henry tied VanTassel to a tree and abducted the woman at knifepoint. VanTassel eventually freed himself and notified authorities. "They either got completely out of the area or are still in the Upper Peninsula," said State Police Sgt. Daryl Prudom. "We hope she's still alive. It wouldn't do any good for him to do away with her."

Citizens band radio clubs in the Upper Peninsula and Wisconsin were asked to look for the blue Volkswagen Dasher used by Henry for his getaway.

Henry walked away from the Marquette State Prison's Magnum work farm last Monday. He was serving six to 15 years for a breaking and entering conviction in Lansing. Even though he was a farm trusty, he was described as armed and dangerous.

No motive found in N.J. sniper slayings and suicide

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — The parents of Emile Benoist were questioned by authorities but were unable to offer a possible motive for their son's sniper ambush slayings of six persons and his own suicide, Warren County Prosecutor James A. Tirrell Jr. said Sunday.

A neighbor of the family said Benoist and his mother, Frances, had argued loudly shortly before he went on the shooting spree Friday night, but the prosecutor said investigators had found nothing to support that report.

Benoist, a tattooed ex-Marine, shot and killed himself with a rifle after fatally wounding six males, age 14 to 38, as they cycled, jogged or strolled along a railroad spur in Hackettstown and adjacent Mansfield Township, authorities said.

BENOIST, A onetime amateur boxer, was described by acquaintances as a troubled person with past arrests on weapons and drunken driving charges.

Early in 1976, police rushed Benoist to a hospital for treatment of multiple slashes on his head and chest, friends said. He refused to say how he received the wounds.

Benoist's father, also named Emile, who once served as a councilman in this rural community 50 miles west of New York City, told reporters he mourned for the victims.

"I'm very sorry for those parents of the people that were killed," he said. "I just ask God's forgiveness on behalf of my son."

Friends of the young man described him as a "tough guy" with a muscular build who could be rough with those he disliked. He kept his hair short, occasionally shaving his head or wearing a "Mohican" haircut with a single shock of hair from the forehead to the back of the neck.

"HE WAS A good friend if he liked you but if he didn't, watch out," said a 15-year-old neighbor, Bob Cannon.

Benoist smoked marijuana and drank beer with friends and frequently was seen on street corners early in the mornings, his acquaintances said. He had 10 tattoos, lifted weights and boxed in the Golden Gloves program as a teen-ager.

His former girlfriend, Vickie Walker, 19, said Benoist had problems "like everyone else. He had depressions, but he wasn't crazy. I just can't believe it."

Jim Ainsworth, a postman who lived next to the Benoists' Cape Cod home, said neighbors rarely mixed with young Emile. "He was the kind of person you tried to avoid. And we did," he said.

Convicts locked in cells after racial disturbance

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — San Quentin convicts were locked in their cells Sunday, in the aftermath of another outbreak of racial violence in which a guard shot and killed a white inmate who was stabbing a black prisoner.

Racial violence between black and white inmates left three convicts dead in July. A "lockdown" of the prison, which had lasted for a month after the July killings, was reimposed Saturday, only 10 days after it was lifted.

Officials said Peter Savas, 24, a white convict doing time for burglary, was shot fatally by the guard Saturday morning as he and another white inmate, Ronald Hendricks, 25, were assaulting James Williams, 31, a black prisoner.

SAN QUENTIN administrative officer Michael Madding said guards saw Savas sitting on top of Williams stabbing him with a prison-made knife in the upper yard where the men had been exercising.

Madding said a guard fired a warning shot and that Hendricks stopped fighting. But he said Savas continued to assault the "black inmate with a weapon in his hand."

As Savas kept on stabbing Williams with the metal knife, the guard shot him in the shoulder. Savas died in the prison hospital.

Williams was hospitalized with multiple stab wounds to his chest and abdomen, and Madding said Sunday his condition was "satisfactory." Hendricks was treated for a cut on the wrist.

AUTHORITIES recovered a second hand-made knife after the incident. Prison officials immediately ordered all prisoners to their cells after the fatal shooting.

Madding said it was not immediately known whether the Saturday incident stemmed from July's gang-related killings. There have been numerous racial disturbances at the prison in recent months.

After the July slayings, the worst violence in five years at San Quentin, many trouble-prone convicts were transferred to other prisons.

Rte. 53 extension remains hot potato for politicians transportation point of view, our little roads are saturated with people passing through. If it were built, people could proceed at a high rate of speed and safety," Deuster said.

Deuster said he respects the concerns of Long Grove officials, however, who feel the road would be a magnet for development and would destroy ecologically significant areas.

REP. BETTY Lou Reed, R-Deerfield said she does not favor building Rte. 53 as a toll road or a freeway. "I have to stick with my constituents. I happen to enjoy the rural atmosphere of Long Grove and I'm not interested in seeing Rte. 53 as a freeway, tollway or anything else," she said.

Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, said he believes the project should be scaled down and built without tolls. "Why have toll roads all over the place? The rest of the state is all free and we have tolls; it's not right. It should be scaled down; it's too elaborate a road. We don't need six lanes," Pierce said.

The Village of Long Grove opposes the project and continues to be active although freeway plans remain dormant.

Long Grove Mayor Robert Coffin has proposed an alternative to FAP 432 that would terminate Rte. 53 at Lake-Cook Road and improve Rte. 12 from Lake-Cook Road to Quentin Road.

Traffic then could go west to Rte. 12 or east to the Tri-State Tollroad, Coffin said.

Osnacz said IDOT is working on Coffin's suggestion and it would be addressed in the environmental impact statement for the road.

COFFIN, MEANWHILE, is trying to get an appointment with Gov. James R. Thompson to argue against any move to build the road as a toll road.

Projects such as a major highway gravitate to open space communities such as Long Grove because they can be built without knocking down existing buildings, Coffin said.

He said Long Grove is identified by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission as an open space area.

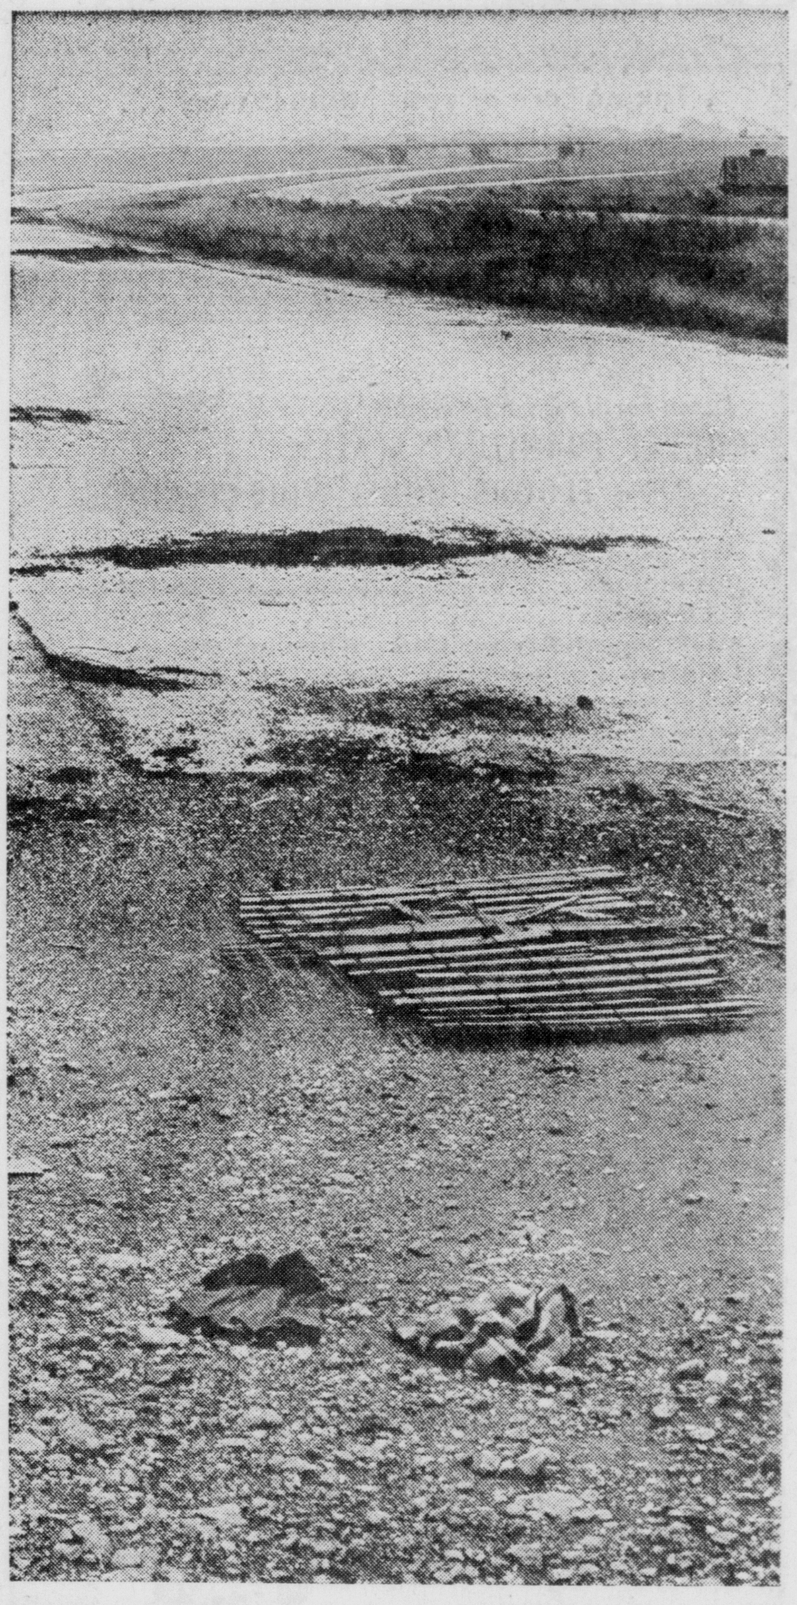

"It would cease being a green area if the highway is built. It would put considerable pressure to develop on the territory adjacent to the roadway and would cause the destruction of considerable areas of marsh," Coffin said.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District objects to the project because it destroys large areas of flood retention land, Coffin said.

The marshes also are ground water recharge areas and help to maintain well levels in the area. Coffin said. "We would be destroying the water we drink," he said.

THE VILLAGE of Lake Zurich is in favor of the road but is apprehensive about the phasing of construction.

The first phase would be built to Rte. 22, which runs through Lake Zurich. Mayor Henry Paulus of Lake Zurich said he hopes the delay at Rte. 22 would be short so a bottleneck would not occur in Lake Zurich similar to the one currently at Dundee Road.

GRAVEL AND DEBRIS abound where Ill. Rte. 53 now ends at Dundee Road. Highway traffic must exit via a ramp at Dundee.

14-year background for Rte. 53

Following is an account of Ill. Rt. 53's progress:

- December 1963: The state highway is opened to traffic from the Northwest Tollway to Kirchoff Road.
- November 1970: New Ill. Rte. 53 opens from Kirchoff Road to Dundee Road. Traffic now must exit via a ramp to Dundee where Rte 53 ends.
- December 1971: Ill. Rte. 53 opens from York Road to the Northwest Tollway.
- December 1975: Federal Highway Administration approves a draft environmental impact study for proposed Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road to Grayslake.
- September 1976: Illinois Transportation Study Commission holds public hearing to monitor views on the proposed Lake County extension of Rte. 53.
- March 1977: Commission recommends to the Illinois General Assembly that the Rte. 53 extension from Dundee Road to Grayslake should be built as a tollroad.
- January 1978: Projected date for completion by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation of the final environmental impact study of the Rte. 53 proposal.

Projection shows 95,000 vehicles a day on route

by ROD COVEY

Is the proposed extension of Illinois Rte. 53 from Dundee Road north to Grayslake really needed? Why do state officials put such emphasis on the controversial project?

"For all intents and purposes, that corridor has the highest projected traffic flow volume in the six-county area outside of Chicago," said Frederick A. Schoenfeld, executive director of the Illinois Transportation Study Commission.

"The 1995 estimate was 6,840 vehicles per hour, or 95,000 vehicles per day," he said.

"THE CRITERION required for consideration for freeway construction was 2,500 vehicles per hour" along the 14-mile stretch of Lake County, he said. Schoenfeld said that the traffic flow projection was nearly three times the amount needed for consideration.

For this reason the commission recommended to the Illinois General Assembly in March that the new highway be built, he said.

"The traffic already is there and is going to continue to grow, Schoenfeld said. "Otherwise you have an increase in traffic congestion on local access roads, an increase in cost to maintain those roads and an increase in accident rates."

"At public hearings in Palatine, large numbers of people strenously opposed" the project, he said. "The commission considered those objections but came to the conclusion that the facility was needed."

SCHOENFELD SAID the proposed Rte. 53 extension into Lake County is one of the most important projects in the Illinois Supplemental Freeway Program. The program was developed in the late 1960s as a master plan to build new state highways to augment existing interstate routes, he said.

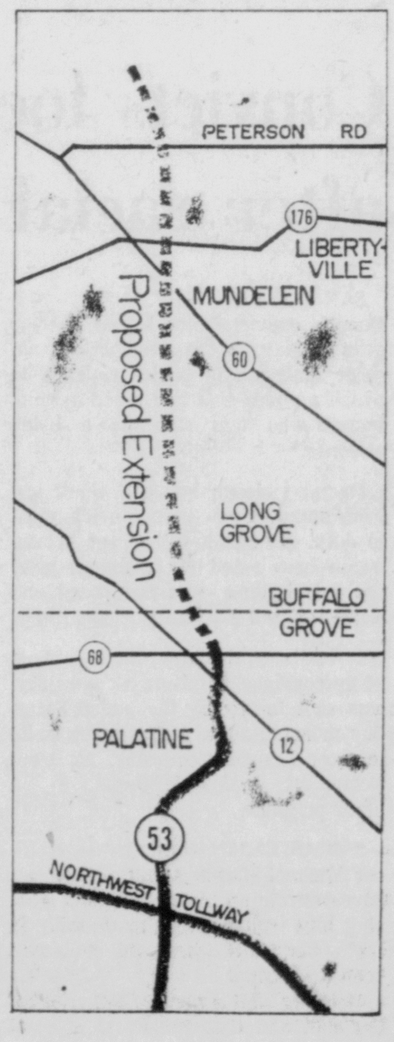

The commission presented the legislature with a study package suggesting ways to finance the Rte. 53 extension, Schoenfeld said. Although motor fuel tax increases suggested in the package probably won't be acceptable to voters, a proposal to build the state road as a tollway was suggested and now is being considered, he said.

Before making the recommendations to the General Assembly, Schoenfeld said the commission hired a consultant to review the state's supplemental highway system corridors regarding projected traffic.

The consultant concluded Rte. 53 — or Federal Aid Project 432 — had one of the highest traffic projections in the state, Schoenfeld said. This led to the recommendation the state road should become a full freeway system.

Schoenfeld said the legislature took no action during its spring session because of a lack of federal support.

"The thing now is in limbo," he said.

Residents say

Extension would ease congestion

It's a pretty sorry mess right now," said Janice A. Semeyn, 1319 Cascade Ln., Palatine.

She was referring to the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Dundee Road, near the residential community where she lives. "It's a terrible bottleneck there during rush hours," she said.

Ill. Rte. 53 ends just south of the border of Lake and Cook counties. Northbound traffic is forced to exit via the ramp at Dundee Road.

Ms. Semeyn advocates completion of Ill. Rte. 53 north through Lake County as a means to ease heavy traffic on Dundee Road. the extension also would make traffic flow smoother for commuters to the north, she said.

A NEIGHBOR, Alfred N. Eide, 1194 Barberry Ln., agreed.

"We have such a problem with traffic. Sometimes I have to sit for 15 minutes (at the nearby intersection of Baldwin and Dundee roads) to get out," he said.

Although he said a traffic light at the Baldwin-Dundee intersection would help, Rte. 53 should be extended north.

Residental and commercial growth will take place in the semiopen area whether the road is completed or not, Eide said.

"TO ME, it's six of one and a half-dozen of the other," said Palatine resident Connie Rogers, 1645 Rainbow Bay.

She said she wouldn't mind if the highway passed through her townhome complex, which is adjacent to the short stretch of uncompleted Rte. 53 north of Dundee Road. "I've lived near expressways before, and they don't bother me, she said.

However, the planned extension of the state road north to Grayslake doesn't stand much of a chance of ever being completed, she said.

"There's too much money and too much power in the Long Grove area," Ms. Rogers said.

The residential communities in southern Lake County, through which the proposed Rte. 53 extension will run, will be able to block the state's efforts, James F. Pokuta, 1634 Waterford Ln., Palatine said.

POKUTA SAID plans to extend the state road should be abandoned. He said he is upset about the stretch of uncompleted highway at the end of Rte. 53.

"Right now it's just a dumpyard and it's a waste of money, to tell the truth," he said.

Construction of the short strip of road at the end of existing Rte. 53 and the various studies required before additional work can continue "is a waste of the state's tax dollars," he said.

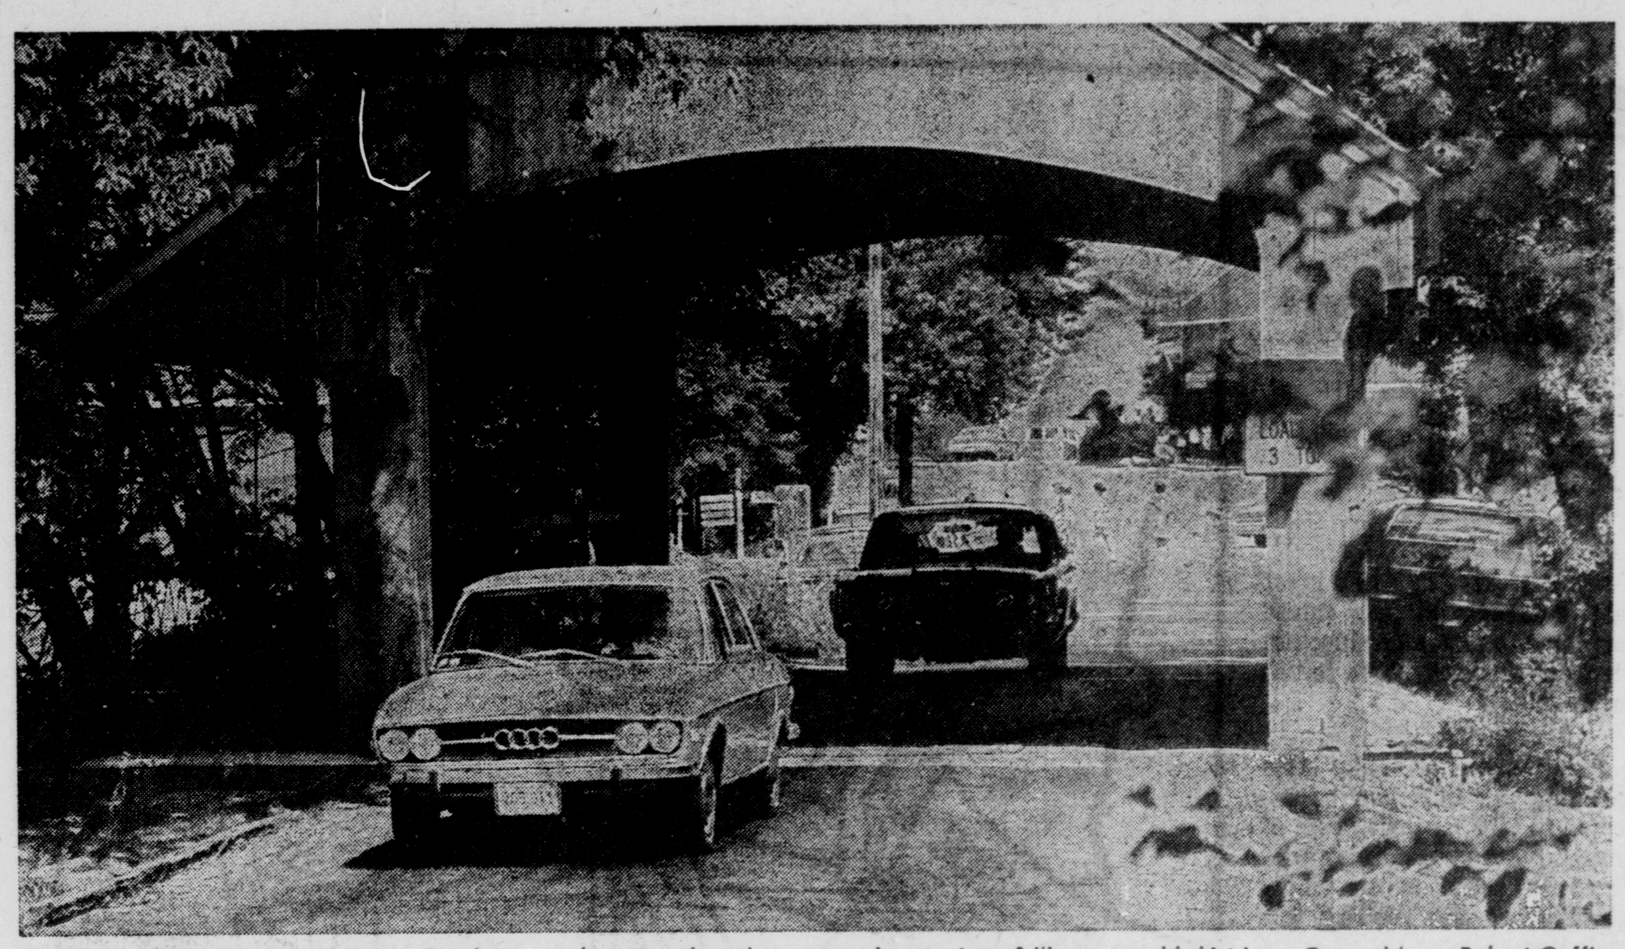

"I just don't think there's a necessity for additional construction right now," Pokuta said. "Rand Road should just be widened."

ANOTHER LOCAL resident opposes the extension, but for different reasons.

"For people now, they can walk their animals and kids can play" in the area near the end of the highway, said Carl Strauss, 1940 Cambridge Ct., Palatine. "It won't be that way for long" if construction is resumed, he said.

The extension of Rte. 53 also would have a divisive effect on his community, Strauss said. "Big roads tend to separate a region into two sides and access becomes more difficult."

The proposed north leg of Rte. 53 also would cause numerous housing developments "to spring up along the way," he said.

COVERED BRIDGE on Long Grove Road is more in keeping with the community's rural character than the proposed extension of Ill. Rte. 53, a interstate-type highway, which would skirt Long Grove. Mayor Robert Coffin strongly opposes extension of the highway.

Long Grove not for highways, he says

Mayor wants to keep town green

"We shall not be a place to run highways," said Long Grove Mayor Robert Coffin.

Coffin has led the village's battle against plans to extend Ill. Rte. 53 from Dundee Road north to Grayslake and through a western portion of Long Grove, since the idea was conceived more than 10 years ago.

Today he is more confident than ever. Both economics and ecology are on his team, he said.

"The plans are not moving rapidly because there is not the funding" for the proposed 14-mile stretch, the cost of which he estimated at $100 million.

COFFIN'S PROPOSAL — to terminate Rte. 53 at Lake-Cook Road, then route traffic west to an improved U.S. Rte. 12 and east to the Tri-state Tollway — stands a better chance for state approval due to lower required cost, he said.

"I think it's attractive to them now for that reason," he said.

"At a meeting with (Illinois Sec. of Transportation John D.) Cramer, he gave us ample time to express ourselves," Coffin said. "And in a recent letter he has said our proposal is under consideration."

The mayor's concern about the proposed expressway is its negative impact on the village and surrounding areas.

"The proposed route would cut through the village in what is a very important ecological area," he said.

LONG GROVE is at the tip of one of metropolitan Chicago's "green fingers" designated by Northeast Illinois Planning Commission's master plan for growth, Coffin said.

These areas should be left with low density, with two or more acres between each dwelling according to the master plan, he said.

Under the NIPC plan, major development is concentrated along existing major highway and railroad routes, such as Northwest Highway, Coffin said. But the planned Rte. 53 extension through Long Grove would bring mass commercial and residential development to the area, he said.

"In effect, one governmental body would be destroying what another is building," he said.

In addition, "it would bring considerable zoning pressures on communities to the north," Coffin said.

A MAJOR CONCERN about the proposed state road extension is its possible effect on the area's wetlands through which it would run, the mayor said.

"This would have the net effect of destroying the area's natural water retention basins," he said.

"There are extensive marshes which act as recharge areas for local wells and as storage for flood waters, he said. Destruction of this natural water retention capability could cause drainage problems for communities to the south, such as Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District with the Lake County Forest Preserve District is planning to construct a major retention basin — a partially empty lake — at the corner of Arlington Heights and Checkers roads, Coffin said.

The proposed Lake County extension of Rte. 53 "would destroy part of Buffalo Creek's natural water retention capacity and thus overtax the designed capacity of the planned retention basin," he said.

HUD examining denial of aid to Arkansas town

WAHSINGTON (UPI) — Madison, Ark., is a small town full of low-income black people. It recently sought federal aid but was turned down because the application was not up to par.

The case has caused something of a furor and now the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development is investigating the situation.

The town applied for $250,000 in community development funds to build a new water storage tank, rehabilitate housing, pave streets and buy land for low-rent units for the elderly.

The request was turned down in Little Rock, where Sterling Cockrill, the HUD area director, said it was the way Madison asked that led to the decision.

In applying for the funds, Madison was required to submit something called a "pre-application" outlining the city's needs and its proposed projects.

A HUD computer, which ranks such applications, rejected Madison's, and Cockrill said there is no appeal.

That set off the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing and the Center for National Policy Review. They filed a complaint with HUD on behalf of Madison, charging that rejection was "arbitrary, capricious and otherwise in violation" of the law, under which community development grants are awarded.

HUD said it will provide a full report on the matter after its Dallas regional office reviews the case.

"The city of Madison lacks essential services and facilities and decent standard housing," the complaint said. It said the town is reliant on federal community development funds to eliminate a health and fire hazard caused by lack of an adequate water and sewer system.

In its complaint, the Committee Against Discrimination noted that Cockrill made clear there is no appeal procedure available, and that a HUD memorandum concluded that "second guessing of the judgment used in ratings (of applications) could go on forever and the best interests of all concerned are served by the finality of the computer printout."

Alexian fund-raiser Wednesday

The Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, invites the public to its annual fund-raiser, Tournament Day, Wednesday at the Indian Lakes Country Club, Bloomingdale.

Money from the benefit will be used to buy a neurocamera used in microscopic surgery. A goal of $12,000 has been set.

Tee-off times for golf can be made between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. Tennis players can reserve court time from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

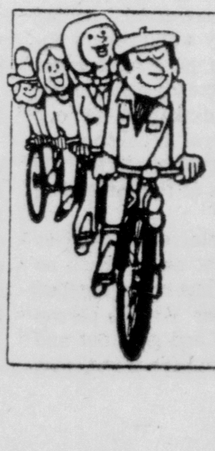

A luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. with a fall and winter fashion show immediately following.

Bridge will begin about 2:30 p.m. and dinner will be at 8 p.m.

A raffle will be conducted with a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond as first prize, a CB radio as second prize and charcoal grill as third prize. Raffle tickets cost $1.

Reservations for Tournament Day can be made by calling Brother Louis Roncoli at the hospital, 437-5500, ext. 454.

Ticket prices are $15 a person for golf, $7 a person for one hour of tennis court time, $10 a person for luncheon tickets and $20 each for dinner.

Officials should consider uses for empty schools

Residents of the Miner Junior High School area of Arlington Heights have lost their fight to keep their school open, but their diligent work on the issue appears to be leading them to a victory in the other portion of their quest: to keep Roosevelt University from renting the building.

The Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education last week voted to close the school in June. Miner, 1101 E. Miner St., is the first Northwest suburban junior high to be closed because of declining enrollment.

Board members have wisely said they will pay close attention to the preferences of Miner area residents when deciding what to do with the vacant school — a cloud that has hung over the closing issue ever since Chicago's Roosevelt University expressed a desire to lease Miner as a branch campus.

Rather than just protest the inconvenience and heartbreak of their school closing — after all, nobody wants their school to close — Miner residents worked hard and long gathering evidence to show why Roosevelt is incompatible with their area.

When residents of Thomas Junior High, 303 E. Thomas St., which Roosevelt slated as its second leasing preference, began a similar protest, the board wisely divorced the school closing from the Roosevelt issue. The board vowed to close a school solely on its values as a district facility.

The board then voted to keep the newer, larger Thomas open — and close Miner. It still is faced with the issue that may have concerned the Miner residents as much or more than the closing — what will be done with the empty building next June.

Board members have said they will take the Miner residents' wishes to heart, and at least one member gives Roosevelt only a "slim chance" of being a renter.

The problem is that Roosevelt has been the only agency to express any interest in the building.

We urge the leaders of the Arlington Heights area — and all other Northwest suburban officials who now are living with 11 closed schools — to give a great deal of thought to their future needs and to take a hard look at what use they may have for an empty school.

Taxpayers facing skyrocketing tax bills can be expected to turn up their noses at financing expansion projects for taxing bodies when empty schoolhouses are dotting the landscape.

Arlington Heights officials should be especially concerned about the Miner residents who recently formed a homeowners' association to deal with what they consider to be a number of problems near their homes.

The residents are unhappy about the park district erecting tall floodlights over a local baseball diamond and proposing a band shell for neighboring Recreation Park. They also are concerned about problems with businesses and industry in the area. With the additional burden of an empty junior high, officials should be sensitive to this area.

As for Roosevelt, we believe a branch campus of the school would be an asset to the Northwest suburbs and would complement community college degree programs.

If Roosevelt is not chosen to be Miner's tenant, we urge university officials to continue seeking a site in the Northwest suburbs.

Will there be life after Miner?

Proof of life hereafter not an impossible story

Jim Bishop

A bunch of drinking reporters were lounging in a New York saloon. Someone asked, "What's the story you'd like to cover?" The winner was: "Proof of a life hereafter." An impossible assignment? Several groups of psychologists, in separate studies, are trying to prove it.

No one has returned from true death. In the past 20 years, medical science has determined that our many organs and cells die separate deaths. The brain, for example, cannot survive as a thinking instrument if it is deprived of oxygen for 240 seconds. Kidneys and other organs can function for much longer periods.

Elisabeth Kubler-Ross has interviewed many persons who returned from the edge of death. Some had been pronounced dead. This is also true of Dr. Raymond Moody Jr., who wrote "Life After Life." Karl Osis and Erlunder Haraldsson traveled through America and India interviewing doctors, nurses and patients.

All had a clinical interest in patients who were not on hallucinating drugs, such as morphine, and who had not experienced fevers high enough to induce coma. Ten per cent sustained kidney failure or brain injuries sufficient to cause aberrant thinking.

PSYCHOTICS AND hysterics hear voices. None of the 750 persons interviewed heard a voice. Almost all had visions. At the moment closest to death, many reported seeing persons long dead. Others saw loved ones clearly.

Three out of four saw a dead member of the family "come to take me away." None of the dying were frightened. Some, as Daniel Goleman wrote in "Psychology Today," heard themselves pronounced dead by a doctor. Some of the experiences in India and America were identical: the sensation of being drawn through a long black object, and suddenly finding oneself looking down at one's own body.

Several hundred of these watched doctors and nurses trying to revive them. As the doctors work, a man finds himself in a gathering group of friends and parents long dead. Sometimes it appears as though a beam of light is asking a non-verbal question.

It is at this point that he takes an interest in the work of the doctors on his "dead" body. In almost all cases interviewed, he resists the revival. He does not want to return. In all of these case histories, the patient was returned to the living.

A Chicago woman saw herself die. She too felt herself float free of her body and she watched a dispute between doctors who said her heart and breathing had stopped and others who worked to start her heart again. They worked for three hours.

She returned to life and lived a year and a half. The focal point of interest in the separate work of Kubler-Ross, Haraldsson and Osis, and Moody is the similarity of experience among those of dissimilar cultures and faiths. They become detached from their bodies; they watch the medical work; they are drawn through a dark space toward a light; they meet a dead relative or friend.

MEDICAL SKEPTICS point out that none of those interviewed survived a true death. They believe that all such patients were hallucinating or dreaming. They make no attempt to account for the similarity of experience in persons as far apart as Boston and Bombay, some of whom had no religious beliefs.

True death has to mean complete cessation of heart and brain activity for several minutes. Proof would require a flat electrocardiogram and a flat electroencephalogram. There is no time to set both up in an intensive care unit where a patient has just "expired."

Doctors are present to save life, not to test death. And yet Kubler-Ross feels so hopeful after her many interviews that she wrote a book called, "Death: The Final Stage of Growth."

It is difficult for the living to subscribe to such optimism. Those who have deep religious convictions have the finest refuge. My mother called "John! John!" (her husband) twice. Twelve years later, my brother John sat at dad's bedside watching his Adam's apple move up and down.

A touch on his hand brought a small smile. He refused to open his eyes to see who touched. Whatever his state, he did not want to be disturbed. When Grandma Bishop died, she told a young priest, "Go away." Grandma Tier said, "Bury me in a nice lavender dress."

They know the answer. I do not . . .

Now is time for Bert Lance to resign

Much of the debate over Budget Director T. Bert Lance and his outsize bank loans has missed the point. Lance should get out of the Administration — not because there is any evidence that he has done something illegal but simply because he has demonstrated that he does not deserve public trust and confidence.

Relations between small banks and their big-city correspondents are an ill-lighted, loosely-policed area of the financial world. There is no indication that Lance was violating any law when he floated loans for himself from his bank's correspondents. But in doing so, he obviously took advantage of his position to promote his own interests.

In the U.S., the President and his official family help set the moral tone for the nation. They cannot be satisfied with just obeying the laws.

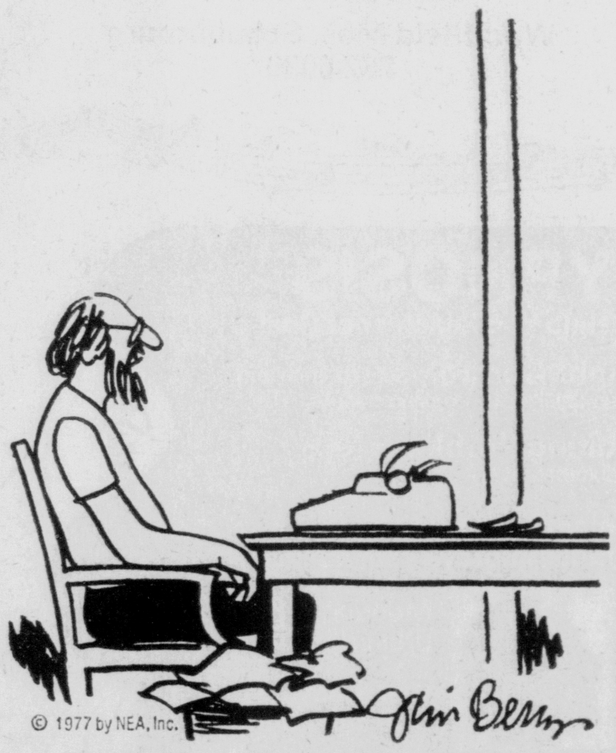

Lance is typical of a kind of man who is often found near the top in business as well as in politics, a man who sees nothing wrong with looking out for himself or in cutting corners to achieve his objectives. The sight of these men exercising power is one reason that large numbers of young people have concluded that the whole American system — political and economic — is a gigantic fraud.

President Carter made a serious mistake when he came to Lance's defense. The warm endorsement of his Georgia friend was particularly jarring after the President's widely publicized promises to get the best men with the highest standards of conduct for his Administration.

The Office of Management and Budget is a crucial part of the executive machinery. It needs a capable director whose personal integrity is beyond question. The record of questionable loans and overdrafts disqualifies Lance for the job. If he does not offer his resignation voluntarily, President Carter should ask for it.

5th Amendment could stifle IRS

The local revolt against the recent exorbitant raise in real estate taxes may be the beginning of a more devastating revolt brewing with regard to our income tax.

According to C. V. Myers, economist and publisher of "Myers Finance and Energy," the Internal Revenue Service on the one hand, and the Fifth Amendment on the other are on a collision course. Anyone who files a Form 1040 with his name, date, social security number and address is entitled to invoke the Fifth Amendment on each and every succeeding question, thus denying to the IRS the information without which it is helpless under the law.

Myers cites as an example the case of Harold Francisco who did not pay taxes for five years and who pleaded the Fifth Amendment on each and every question on his tax returns. The IRS sought an order to compel him to surrender all his records. When the court struck down the order, the IRS dropped the case.

Also, Myers points put, there is the landmark case of Roy D. Garner vs. USA. In this case the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a taxpayer has the right to claim the Fifth Amendment against self incrimination.

The implication of all this, Myers suggests, staggers the mind. If the Fifth Amendment is to hold sway in the courts, thousands, then hundreds of thousands, then millions will begin pleading the Fifth on their tax returns. Soon we could arrive at the position where all those who filed complete tax returns would have to consider themselves suckers. This would be the end of the IRS, our power hungry bureaucrats and the taxing ability of the United States government.

Perhaps Myer's observations will give the harassed taxpayer another weapon, besides the ballot box, to get rid of or curtail our expanding, inflationary, non-productive, free-spending, bureaucratic politicians.

Execution, abortion are the easy way

Capital punishment is okay. So is abortion. So say our legislators.

I say it is not. It is merely taking the easy way out on both issues.

We have child rapists and murderers and people who commit other heinous crimes. Our prisons are filling up. The cost of keeping these men incarcerated is astronomical. Killing the offenders is only a temporary solution. Irresponsible parents, corrupt businessmen and greedy politicians setting the wrong examples for our youths, and a general breakdown of the morality this country started out with, are the causes of the increasing crime.

Execution is no deterrent. Countries have been doing that as far back as history goes, but it has never stopped the same crimes later. When a person has a warped mind and goes out and kills somebody, there is no way that a previous execution of somebody is going to un-warp his mind. We've got to confine the killers with no parole possibilities. Then we've got to clean up our acts professionally and at home to set decent examples. We have to suffer the tax burden to keep these people locked up. It's insane to let them back on the streets. They may rape and kill my daughter next.

The same is true of abortion. It's the easy way out. People not following the laws of God create unwanted babies. The killing of the babies is not going to solve the problem. In fact, it's going to contribute to the overall problem of other major crimes. Once we rationalize that human life is not to be preserved at all costs, our children will make further rationalizations regarding human life.

The main reason the legalizing of killing is wrong is the cycle it initates. It's a natural cycle like evaporation, condensation, precipitation. This cycle is: Ignorant legislation of morality brings moral decay, which brings physical and mental suffering, which brings revolution, which brings a new society born of the wisdom of the lessons learned, which brings affluence, which brings the greedy and ignorant to power and they legislate morality.

History has seen this cycle repetitiously.

The taking of a life is wrong, whether it's done in the electric chair or in a hospital room, and regardless what name you call it. If we allow these devaluations of human life, moral decay will escalate further and we will soon have no freedom and there will be no free country to escape to.

Canal not a giveaway

by SEN. JAMES McGUIRE
R-Idaho
Written for UPI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With justifiable pride and a great sense of accomplishment the United States opened the Panama Canal in 1914.

The dream of Columbus had been realized. The canal was universally acclaimed as an engineering marvel. It was the moonshot of its day. Where all others had failed, Yankee ingenuity and perseverance succeeded.

Under American jurisdiction the canal has operated efficiently and fairly for the benefit of all nations. Today it is an international waterway freely available to all world shipping.

Nearly 15,000 vessels of all nations go through the canal annually. The tolls are kept low and all income is used for maintenance and improvements to the canal.

PANAMA, A COUNTRY which owes its very existence to America's willingness to build the canal, has benefited enormously from this project.

American taxpayers have invested $6 billion in the canal and its military installations. The fact Panama has one of the highest per capita incomes in Latin America is almost solely the result of our canal.

Emotional tirades about Yankee imperialism cannot be allowed to obscure the fact U.S. control of the Panama Canal is at once a service to world trade and vital to our own national security.

Last month, four former chiefs of naval operations wrote the following to President Carter: "Our experience has been that as each crisis developed during our active service — World War II, Korea, Vietnam and the Cuban missile crisis — the value of the canal was forcefully emphasized by emergency transits of our naval units and massive logistic support for the armed forces.

"The canal provided operational flexibility and rapid mobility. In addition, there are the psychological advantages of this power potential. As Commander-in-Chief, you will find the ownership and sovereign control of the canal indispensable during periods of tension and conflict."

THE RECORD of political instability in Panama can hardly instill confidence in their ability to defend the canal. During the past 70 years their government changed hands 50 times — mostly by force. At the moment, Panama is governed by a left-wing dictator whose trademark is anti-U.S. sloganeering.

Under his rule, Panama's indebtedness has grown from $167 million to $1.5 billion. Freedom House, a respected organization which works for human rights, has listed Panama under the Torrijos regime as one of the "least free" nations on earth.

Far from stabilizing the situation in the area, a transfer of sovereignty over the canal to Panama would set up this tiny country with a combat force of only 1,600 as an irresistibly tempting target for Communist subversion.

Rather than give away the Panama Canal we should be seeking a positive approach toward helping the Panamanian people solve the problems of the area. Modernizing and improving the present lock system and the possibility of a new sea level canal are exciting projects which would do far more for the people of Panama than the Yankee-go-home demagoguery of the present regime.

Ruling weakens secret of government, press

Charles B. Seib

WASHINGTON — A three-judge federal appeals court took a disapproving look at a little conspiracy between the press and public officials recently. It didn't quite queer the deal, but it put a damper on it.

The conspiracy is one of several that permits officials to use the press anonymously. Its code word is "background," and it is a close relative of the "leak" and the "informed source."

In his opinion announcing the court's unanimous decision, Judge Carl McGowan gave what is probably the first judicial definition of a Washington "backgrounder."

The case before the court involved the State Dept., which is devoted to this form of sub-rosa public relations. The State Dept. backgrounder, McGowan said, "is designed to permit dissemination of information to the public, while simultaneously avoiding the risks associated with direct quotation of high-ranking government personnel or official attribution of sensitive statements to government sources identified by name."

Reporters who attend backgrounders are allowed to use what they hear, but they can't tell their customers who said it. They must attribute it to some faceless and nameless figure, like a "senior U.S. official." If the deal of the day provides for "deep background," they can't even do that.

McGOWAN SAID that while there don't seem to be written rules on backgrounders, "the parties apparently agree that the rules are generally known and observed." I am not so sure he's right about that. "More," a news business magazine, once asked 11 journalists to define "off the record," "background" and "deep background," and got 11 different answers. What the appeals court did was to rule that the key secret of a backgrounder — the connection between the words spoken and the official speaking — cannot be kept forever and the government cannot try to keep it by stamping the transcript "Secret" or "Confidential."

The ruling was handed down in a suit brought by Morton Halperin, a former National Security Council aide. He had tried to use the Freedom of Information Act to get the transcript of a 1974 backgrounder given by his old boss, Henry Kissinger. He asked for the transcript five months after Kissinger briefed more than 30 reporters — on background, of course — on U.S.-Russian arms talks. The State Dept. then said two pages were "confidential" and withheld them.

The reporters who attended the backgrounder did not have security clearances. Two, in fact, represented foreign news agencies. Nevertheless, the State Dept. said attribution of some of the remarks to Kissinger could "damage the national security." When he was unable to get this ruling reversed, Halperin sued.

WHILE THE appeals court gave the State Dept. one more chance to convince a lower court that national security hangs in the balance, it clearly was unimpressed by the government's case. It called the department's handling of the whole affair "almost incredible."

In a footnote, McGowan let go with a zinger at the bureaucrats:

"One would have thought that, in view of the deliberate and extensive, not to say daring, use it has made of that institution (the backgrounder) in the recent past, the department would have been peculiarly alert to the searching out of all possible legal ramifications bearing on the security of the disclosures made at such conferences."

He added that Halperin had "benefited the nation by making the department aware of the laws it must observe if these adventures are to be continued."

The decision will not end backgrounders. But it will make them less attractive to officials. It establishes that it is risky to keep transcripts of the sessions or even a record of the speaker and his topic.

Doing anything that doesn't produce at least a little paper for the files goes against the bureaucratic grain, so the backgrounder may fall from official favor. It should long since have fallen from favor with the press.

OF COURSE, it took three years to get this far in the Halperin case, and he still doesn't have the document he wants. Few people — and that includes news people — would be as persistent as he was.

Treaty would keep canal open for U.S. ships and make better foreign relations: Cranston

by SEN. ALAN CRANSTON
D-Calif
Written for UPI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiations on a Panama Canal treaty went through several discussion stages during the past 13 years. As a result, some misconceptions may have arisen.

I am convinced these will be dispelled when the facts of the treaty become more widely known.

For example, some people were justifiably concerned that we might have to give up our permanent right to protect the canal. At President Carter's insistence that this right was a "must" for the United States, the Panamanians finally agreed to it — just last May.

SIMILARLY, some people feared that with Panama in control, some other power might come in and construct a sea-level canal and cut us out. But the United States has gotten a firm treaty commitment that we will be directly involved in any sea-level canal or any modification to accommodate large modern warships and cargo ships that can't fit through the present waterway.

Still others felt that an abrupt transfer might disrupt efficient operation of the canal. The final treaty, however, continues over-all U.S. management until the end of this century.

The Panama Canal treaty will strengthen our national security interests in Panama and throughout Latin America.

Under its terms, the United States retains indefinitely the right to take whatever military action we deem necessary to defend the canal against any threat by a hostile nation. And the treaty guarantees the permanent and unconditional right of U.S. warships to pass through the canal — with priority in the event of an emergency.

WE NOT ONLY keep all of the authority we now have to assure an open, safe and efficient canal, but we pick up some new and valuable assets besides.

Under the treaty, Panama — now only an unwilling host — will have a greater stake in protecting the canal and keeping it open and neutral. So will other countries in Latin America that for seven decades have resented the U.S. claim that it "owns" a part of an independent nation in Central America.

U.S. national interests depend on the proper use and assured security of the canal, not upon its ownership. And U.S. national interests will be far more secure when Panama and other Latin American nations are our genuine friends and allies and are committed to similar, mutually beneficial goals.

Our highest and most dedicated military leaders — the Joint Chiefs of Staff — unanimously agree.

Ancient traditions linger at modern-day powwow

by NANCY GOTLER

They sleep in campers instead of buffalo-hide teepees, substitute turkey plumes for eagle feathers in their headdresses and wear cotton, not buckskin.

But for the 100 participants in this weekend's India powwow at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St., in Arlington Heights, little else has changed in 150 years.

The dance contests were sponsored by the Mascoutin Society, a Chicago area Indian lore group.

SATURDAY and Sunday the dancers, about half of whom are Indian, donned traditional costumes with modern variations, looking as their ancestors did when they were back on the plains in the days when they ruled the land.

As the sound of the rawhide drum begins to fill the arena, it is mixed with the drummers' slow, wailing chants whose meanings have been lost to time.

Moments later the dancers, wearing bright feathers, leggings, eagle claw necklaces and beaded moccasins, enter the ring stepping slowly and intently to the beat of the drum.

Young children follow the lead of their parents and girls, their hair wrapped in strands of beads and colored glass, swing fringed shawls as they dance.

SOME OF THE older members, like Paul Kuffel of Chicago, still wear the traditional golden eagle feathered headdresses and carry red-tailed hawk fans with beaded handles.

Kuffel, who had one of the most authentic costumes, wore a breastplate of deer leg bones used by warriors for protection and a necklace of eagle claws pointed toward his chest, signifying bravery.

He proudly danced with a 6-foot-coup stick or Indian flag, a stick with eagle feathers attached along one side.

"ACCORDING TO history, a man had to earn each of the feathers on a coup stick," Kuffel said. "When he collected at least 30 he could be installed as a subchief."

Kaffel gazed dejectedly at his coup stick with its 15 feathers and said, "I guess I'll never make it."

Then he picked up the stick and joined the others dancing in the ring.

Capitol crumbles as Congress squabbles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is the story that George Washington, worried over the cost of the Revolutionary War and the new nation's finances, obtained the cheapest sandstone he could find to build the U.S. Capitol.

Now part of the Capitol literally is crumbling.

And as is so often the case, the House and Senate disagree on what to do about it.

In the latest of a 11-year battle, the House wanted to fund a $55 million extension of the West Front which looks down the Mall toward the Washington Monument.

THE SENATE scoffed at the addition, maintaining only further restoration is needed.

In the end, just before the August recess, the two sides agreed on another, more detailed, study.

George White, the Capitol architect, said the building was known to have "poor stone" from the beginning and has gone through a number of traumatic changes — including burning by the British in 1814 and a series of modernizing measures such as air conditioning and new plumbing and electrical work.

Since 1864, just after the dome was enlarged, Capitol architects have been pushing for extension.

The Congress spent $11.4 million in 1961 to extend and restore the East Front, which faces toward the Supreme Court and Library of Congress. Now the West Front needs attention.

"There is enough evidence to indicate that it is unsafe, so the prudent thing to do — and everyone agrees with that — is to repair it," White told a House subcommittee.

"I don't think the collapse of that wall is imminent. If I did, since my office is right next to it, I think I would move."

WHITE BELIEVES there are only two basic alternatives — restoring the wall by drilling about 5,700 holes in it and squirting cement grout into the holes; or buttressing it by building another wall or structure against the building.

He clearly favors the latter approach.

White said grouting was "uncertain, expensive, has extremely limited cost benefits, and . . . would cause substantial disruption and possible mutilation of the interior as well as the exterior." White estimated the cost of restoration alone at $45 million — only $10 million less than it would cost to extend the building.

The cost factor bothered Rep. Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa.

"My biggest concern is not $55 million, it is appropriating $55 million and then finding out it is going to cost $155 million," he said.

REP. SAMUEL Stratton, D-N.Y., who has led the forces opposing extension of the building, does not think more office space is needed.

"If it's office space we need, why don't we just move the architect and his staff out of the 50 or so offices they occupy in the Capitol," Stratton said. "He's nothing but a glorified janitor anyway."

If that's not enough room, Stratton suggested using Statuary Hall, with its huge red drapes and statues of famous Americans.

Stratton says it looks like "a high class bordello."

Because funds for the Capitol Architect's Office, which would supervise such construction, was included in a $940 million appropriations bill to run the legislative branch, the lawmakers felt some compromise was needed before they went on their month-long August recess. When House-Senate conferees got together to try to find one, the Senate prevailed and the best the House could do was get yet another study. Stratton was happy.

"I have been fighting this extension . . . for about 11 years, but I think this is an ideal solution," he said. "Under it, we will, at last, have the facts on both proposals before us and so can vote one way or the other on the basis of facts."

Under the agreement, a new Commission on the West Central Front of the Capitol, headed by Vice President Walter Mondale, will be created to consider the issue. White, who has been a member of a similar commission in the past, will not be on this one.

ACCORDING TO Rep. George Shipley, D-Ill., the Senate conferees "felt, and the House agreed, that maybe there might be a little prejudice involved . . ."

The study is to include checking space utilization in the Capitol, and to make drawings and specifications for the various restoration and extension plans. They are to be made in such a way that the cost of each alternative can be ascertained.

Drawings and specifications are to be completed by March 1, 1978, and submitted for approval by the commission and the House and Senate Appropriations Committees before any invitations are sent out for bids on restoration or extension of the Capitol.

Whatever the decision, it will be some time before anything is done about the crumbling West Front.

3 weeks in former Nazi camp

Norway drunk drivers imprisoned

ILSENG, Norway (UPI) — Every day a small group of slightly confused men step off a train at the small forest village of Ilseng and ask the way to "Costa Del Ilseng."

After a 10-minute walk they are locked up for at least three weeks behind the red board walls of the Ilseng labor camp.

The former Nazi camp in eastern Norway was transformed into a convict colony for drunken drivers in 1963, and it is now known to most Norwegians as "Costa Del Ilseng."

It was given the name by inmates who hesitated to tell their friends and relatives — not to mention their bosses — that they were caught driving while drunk. So they say they are spending three weeks vacation at Costa Del Sol — a Spanish tourist area popular with Scandinavians.

But when they return to work with skin as pale as when they left, most have to admit they had been no further than "Costa Del Ilseng."

MOST DRUNKEN drivers are caught because they are involved in accidents or because their driving is so bad that police become suspicious.

Some are caught at random police road blocks. If a driver smells of alcohol he is rushed to a doctor for a blood test. Anyone with more than 0.5 per cent of alcohol in their blood automatically ends up at Ilseng or one of several other similar camps.

In addition, drivers lose their license for two years, and if they transgress three or four times they can lose their license for good.

To combine driving and drinking in Norway can also result in economic disaster. Insurance companies invalidate their coverage if a driver is drunk, even if the accident is not his fault.

The driver with alcohol in his blood automatically becomes responsible for paying the damages.

A 19-year-old at Ilseng said, "I don't mind three weeks here, but it will take me half my life to pay for two brand new cars."

Another inmate convicted four times said he must start paying off damages of about $20,000. He vowed he would never drive again, saying he smashed his last car when he left a farewell party with his friends the night before going to Ilseng.

More than 7,000 Norwegians a year spend three or more weeks in a labor camp or in regular prisons for drunken driving. Official statistics show there are more second offenses by drunken drivers than any other group of criminals.

ONE GUARD AT Ilseng said, "70 per cent of the inmates are expected back at the camps sooner or later."

Because blood tests are regarded as unquestionable evidence, hardly anyone is able to avoid a three-week imprisonment no matter what their position in society.

High ranking politicians, priests, police officers and business leaders are mixed with students, taxi drivers and others. All are dressed in the same brown or blue "Mao suits" with a number on the back.

"Here we are all alike," said one truck driver as he watched a professor showing him how to put up a basement brick wall.

A member of the royal family was said to have spent three weeks at Ilseng some years ago. He apparently found the retreat boring and he left his fellow inmates a television set.

THAT OLD BLACK and white television still provides the evening's entertainment. Radios are forbidden and newspapers are seldom available.

Another celebrity inmate was one of Norway's top lawyers. He obtained a one-day leave to make a speech at the Norwegian Lawyers Association.

There has been a debate recently whether the labor camps should continue or whether fines should be paid instead. But the authorities seem to agree that three weeks imprisonment is the way to punish drunks coming from all social classes.

Whether the inmates become more responsible is another question. Said one youth, "This place drives me to drink."

Elderly fight depression with flowers

by SCOTT FOSDICK

He not busy being born is busy dying, folksinger Bob Dylan wrote. It's as true in convalescent and nursing homes as it is anywhere. For many, such a home is a dismal place filled with fading dreams, waning spirits and aging bodies. In short, it is a place where people go to die.

There's a small group of residents in the Lutheran Home for the Aged in Arlington Heights that is furiously fighting that gloomy stereotype. They're fighting it with action, not words, and with flowers, not rhetoric.

The 19 members of the Lutheran Home Garden Club are most definitely busy being born, and busy with life.

You could see it in the arrangements they had on display at their recent flower show: Rich combinations of goldenrod, corn tassels and silver dollars; brilliant azaleas; exotic caladium with 5-inch wide scarlet leaves rimmed in deep green.

The 70-and 80-year-old gardeners coaxed these beauties out of the earth surrounding the home, and their success with their flowers is evident. What's more important, however, is the effect the flowers have had on the gardeners.

MINNIE'S PETUNIAS — Minnie Riewe leans against the wall of the Lutheran Home in Arlington Heights and tends her lush bed of petunias.

"THERE'S ONE woman who wouldn't do any work when she came here. She just complained all the time. No one could live with her," volunteer worker Marilyn Wachsmuth said.

"But then she started spending more time in her plot, and now she's a totally different person," she said.

Mrs. Wachsmuth, an active member of the Arlington Heights Garden Club, said she started helping elderly residents with their garden plots three years ago when she organized the Lutheran Home Garden Club. Though she has an avid interest in gardening, she said the real enjoyment comes in helping people lead creative lives.

"This is so rewarding, this work, working with these people," she said. "Some of them are all crippled-up, but they get in there and do quite a job."

A few of the garden club members are confined to wheelchairs, and have trouble planting the seeds and working the soil. With the help of a few friends and a long-handled hoe or two, however, they produce patches of petunias as lush as their more mobile neighbors.

THE NEW addition to the Lutheran Home now being built includes plans for raised plots especially designed for wheelchair gardeners. These narrow, waist-high gardens will have paths between them wide enough for wheelchairs so residents will be able to scoot close to their beloved begonias and reach out to snatch away threatening weeds.

In an institution as large as the Lutheran Home, with more than 400 residents, a small group like the garden club helps people get to know each other. That's the main attraction for Minnie Riewe, who came to the home a year ago. It gives her a chance to meet people in the group, and to provide a service at the home by beautifying the grounds and arranging funeral bouquets. It also gives her a reason to exercise in the sunshine, she said.

"It gets you out. If I didn't have a garden, I wouldn't get out," she said.

GETTING OUT to work the earth for a few minutes each day puts quite a lift into what might otherwise be a routine, even drab existence. It transforms pessimistic attitudes, and may even add years.

So the plots surrounding the Lutheran Home aren't just transient patches of protoplasm and mud. A quick glance into the cheerful, healthy faces of the men and women who tend them is enough to reveal that these plots are much more than flower gardens — they're victory gardens.

ROSA ROSACEAE — A rose smells sweet no matter what you call it, Helen Delkus discovers at the Third Annual Garden Club Flower Show.

Shawl is fashion plus

Sew simple

Dear Eunice Farmer: I must go to a resort city soon and was wondering what type of wrap I should wear with a formal gown. —Mrs. E. S. D.

Dear Mrs. E. S. D.: When you say "resort city," I'm sure you mean one that isn't extremely cold at night but is too chilly to go out without a wrap. If that's the case, you're lucky this year — shawls are so important in fashion that a lovely, lightweight shawl could be beautiful.

One of the most attractive shawls I have seen in a long time was made from 54-inch square of lightweight jersey. It was slashed at one corner diagonally through the center of the square, about two-thirds of the way to the opposite corner. All the edges were finished with a decorative hemming stitch you would have on your sewing machine. The slit made it much easier to drape around the shoulders and tie in place.

Dear Eunice Farmer: My cousin and I do a lot of sewing, especially with synthetic fabrics. One problem we are plagued by, though, is skipped stitches. No one seems to be able to help us. Can you? —Ruth E. J.

Dear Ruth: I have given some suggestions in the past, but because this has been such a problem with so many of my readers, I will attempt an answer again.

Your problem could be caused by many things, including your sewing machine. Hence, you should first see if your machine is clean and free of lint, especially in the bobbin case. You might carefully brush any lint out with a tiny brush that is designed for this purpose.

Second, have you used the proper needle (ball point for knits and straight for woven fabrics) and have you changed it often? Synthetics are hard on machine needless, so you must change them frequently.

Next, check the pressure foot. Often, you must have slightly more pressure for thin, synthetic knits than for woven fabrics.

You must also learn to hold your fabric slightly taut from in front of the needle as well as behind the needle as you switch.

Try these suggestions — they have worked for others.

This week's winner of the gold blazer buttons is Miss Margaret M. Szabo, 981 Marie Lane, Madison Heights, Mich., 48071. Her tip:

"Buy a small wallet or makeup bag and each time you make a new garment, add a small piece of the fabric. You never know when you're shopping how often you will find just the right accessory or need to match the color of your fabric. It's marvelous to always have it at your finger tips."

Dear Eunice Farmer: How can I sew the zipper of a bias cut skirt without wrinkling? —Delores D.

Dear Delores: We have discussed this before, but with all the bias skirts this fall, it bears repeating.

There is no easy way to apply a zipper in a bias garment without rippling, so I recommend you apply it to a side seam, rather than the center back or front. Be sure not to pull the fabric too taut, as it is cut on the bias but the tape of the zipper is cut on the straight grain. I would carefully take the time to baste in the zipper before machine stitching. This way, you can try the skirt on before the final stitching.

Another problem could be in the fitting — too often we depend on the stretch of the fabric to give us extra allowance. However, you must always ease a bias skirt onto the waistband to avoid the pulled look. Be sure to always allow at least an inch seamline instead of the conventional five-eighths inch. I allow about 1½ inch for bias seams so they hang much smoother.

Children of divorce need compassion from parents

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

For most couples, divorce is a painful, wrenching experience — both emotionally and financially. Attorney's fees, court battles and drastically altered lifestyles often add up to resentment and hostility on both sides.

And if the couple has children, the headaches are multiplied.

A seminar held Saturday in Niles, sponsored by Children Helped in Litigated Divorce (C.H.I.L.D.), took a look at those headaches and found what many of the participants already knew: even "friendly" divorces leave a mark on children, and communication between parents is the best way to alleviate the myriad conflicts that develop both before and after the decree.

In many divorce cases, the bickering over possessions, child support and alimony leave both spouses emotionally drained and depressed, noted Hilary Anderson, a daughter of divorced parents and the president of C.H.I.L.D., an organization aimed at increasing awareness of divorce's effect on children.

> "It's vital for a child to have contact with both parents. Even if one is an alcoholic, the child can be prepared for that. When parents attack each other, they're attacking the child too."

THE COUPLE'S desire to work through the divorce and start a new life often leaves their children on the sidelines, either ignored or used as pawns in a continuing battle.

"Many people see the effects of divorce as they do inflation — that they're inevitable," said Ms. Anderson. "But divorce hurts everybody, and we've got to start coming up with positive solutions."

One of the solutions discussed by the C.H.I.L.D. panel of attorneys, counselors and a juvenile court judge was the appointment of a separate lawyer to protect the children in a divorce case. The "guardian ad litem" would be particularly helpful in contested custody battles where an independent voice is needed, the panelists said.

Mary Heftel Hooton, a judge of the Cook County Circuit Court Juvenile Division, said appointment of independent legal representation for the children is becoming more common. But while guardian ad litems have traditionally taken a passive, advisory role, there are no legal guidelines for either the attorneys or judges who appoint them, she said.

THE DISADVANTAGE of the guardian ad litem system, she said, is two-fold. The added cost would have to be absorbed by the parents, already saddled with enormous legal fees, and the system could create more paperwork in an already over-burdened court system.

While the guardian ad litem may step in to mediate parents' differences in court, those differences often can be ironed out before the case reaches a judge. Divorce counseling through private sources or through the free Divorce Conciliation Service in Chicago may not save the marriage, but it can ease friction and eliminate custody fights, said attorney Georgiana Daskais.

"Many people turn off when they hear 'conciliation' service, but it isn't the same as 'reconciliation,'" noted Ms. Daskais. "Some marriages do work out after counseling, but even if they don't, counseling helps alleviate anxiety, and the child benefits as a result."

THE GUARDIAN ad litem and divorce counseling can help parents head off problems before the divorce decree. But much of the damage to the couple's children can occur after the papers are signed, said Dr. Marc Nissenson, a marital and family counselor and vice-president of C.H.I.L.D.

The observers at the C.H.I.L.D. seminar agreed. One mother outlined her hesitation to allow her 2-year-old son to visit her alcoholic ex-husband; another couple was concerned about a ex-wife's attempt to manipulate her children.

Many custody arguments arise after the decree because "the custodial parent would just as soon see the other parent disappear," said attorney Michelle Lowrance. "But two parents are important. The child should be on the doorstep (on the day of visitation) ready, willing and able to go."

ADDED Dr. Nissenson, "It's vital for a child to have contact with both parents. Even if one is an alcoholic, the child can be prepared for that. When parents attack each other, they're attacking the child, too."

Exceptions do occur, the panelists noted. If the ex-spouse can show circumstances have changed since the custody decision, he or she can request a court-appointed psychiatrist to evaluate the situation. Similarly, visitation privileges can be amended or revoked if a judge says it is in the child's best interest.

> "Many people see the effects of divorce as they do inflation — that they're inevitable. But divorce hurts everybody, and we've got to start coming up with positive solutions."

But for the most part, legal briefs and court dockets can and should be avoided, Dr. Nissenson maintained.

"Sometimes parents use each other as clubs with the child in the middle," he said. "They have to be sensitive. The problems won't go away, and the best alternative is to avoid court action and try to work out the differences."

The doctor says

Exercise, right foods may boost appetite

I am a 30-year-old female, weigh 126 and am 5 feet 8. I'm basically healthy and active. I can't gain more than three to five pounds at a time or keep them for very long. My appetite is poor most of the time, especially if I become upset. And I cannot eat fresh, raw vegetables and fruit. My mouth starts to itch and I break out in a rash on my face or arms. I also smoke about a pack of cigarettes a day.

What can I do to increase my appetite and gain weight? What can I eat in place of fresh raw fruit and vegetables that would be comparable in nutritional value? How can I decrease my smoking?

I am beginning to feel sluggish upon arising in the morning and am getting from seven to eight hours of sleep. I have already been to my family physician for vitamins.

Time may take care of your problem, and you may wish you could have the old problem of not gaining weight back again.

Your appetite might increase if you did quit smoking. Food might taste better too. Why don't you contact your nearest chapter of the American Heart Association or American Lung Association and see if they can tell you about local stop smoking clinics that you might join. A sincere desire to stop is often important in the success of such programs.

Fresh raw fruits and vegetables are seldom high caloric foods. If you want to gain weight these are not the foods you need to emphasize in your diet. Rather you want starches, fats and sweets, the high calorie foods — if you are sure you want to add fat to your torso. Muscles result from strength type exercises. Your emphasis on "fresh and raw" makes me wonder if you can tolerate canned or cooked fruits and vegetables. If so, they may be your next best substitute. If not, you need to get bulk some place and you can get that from whole cereals or bran. You can get some potassium from milk and milk products, although it is not as good a source as fresh fruits and you might need vitamin supplements if you truly cannot use fruits and vegetables. They are of the four basic food groups for a reason.

To give you a better idea of a balanced diet I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, New York N.Y. 10019, The values for the different vitamins and minerals you diet should include are listed in it as well as which foods contain them.

If you are not as active as you think you are, a regular exercise program, preferably doing something you enjoy, may stimulate your appetite. The best example here is a good walk before mealtime. Housework doesn't usually take a lot of physical energy, no matter how tiring it may become. Regular exercise may also give you more energy. But I doubt you will get much help unless you stop cigarettes and if you are a coffee drinker, stop or cut down on it as well.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally, but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column).

Metric mixup solved: liter larger than quart

Humble Pie Department: Am I embarrassed! A quart liquid container does NOT hold more than a liter-sized one. In fact, a liter equals 33.8 ounces, while a quart is 32 ounces. The tip from a reader I passed on to you was fine in intent: she wanted to alert people that some bottlers are ahead of the government deadline in using metric containers. I did check out her tip, as I check all that are printed. And I worked with a conversion table. My error was in simple math. Many readers wrote delightful letters correcting me, some trying to let me off the hook by suggesting I'd confused dry with liquid liter equivalents — which is another story. I apologize, and promise to inform myself about the metric system. Guess we all should. It'll be OUR system very soon.

Dear Roberta: Does everyone know that removing skin from fruits or vegetables can be very easy if one first submerges the produce in very hot or barely simmering water for about a minute? —Polly Chu.

Many probably didn't know. And it's a good reminder for the rest of us. I want to add a small piece of advice to yours. Unless the produce is being prepared for cooking, dunk each piece in one at a time. Otherwise, one has to work too fast and risks injury trying to keep the interiors fresh and uncooked.

Dear Roberta: Found several packets of seeds for the garden that we completely forgot about. Should I pitch them out, or are they savable? —Charlene Isom

As long as they're kept in a cool, dry place, seeds for flowers, fruits, or vegetables can be used next planting season. Seal them in a plastic bag or put them in a tightly closed bottle, and keep in the refrigerator.

Women's meet sparks controversy

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

The big National Women's Conference, ordered by Congress and backed by $5 million in tax funds, will give Texas some fireworks in November.

The Equal Rights Amendment people will battle the stop E.R.A. people.

The two groups also will speak out on opposing sides of woman's right to freedom over her reproductive organs. That will include the torrid crusade brewing over Uncle Sam's refusal to pay for abortions sought by the poor of the land.

Dr. Kathryn F. Clarenbach, Executive Director of the Conference, made those points during an interview. The Professor of Political Science is on leave from the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Dr. Clarenbach headed the Wisconsin Commission on the Status of Women and was a founding member of the National Organization for Women.

You may be surprised to hear there's going to be a National Women's Conference — an official one which will report to President Carter and Congress.

You may think decks were cleared of women's issues from coast to coast during the nation's observance of International Women's Year.

"A lot of persons thought that," Dr. Clarenbach said. "It just isn't so."

Public Law 94-167 called for the National Conference, stating that it was to be preceded by state meetings, each state electing official delegates to the national gathering starting Nov. 18 in Houston.

"The law," Dr. Clarenbach said, "stated that the purpose of all this would be to bring together the widest possible range of American women to do a number of things."

She listed the things:

• To assess the contribution of women to the development of the country and to celebrate these contributions.

• To identify barriers that stand in the way of women's full participation in American life and to recommend to Congress and President Carter ways of removing those barriers.

• To pay attention to the potential of women in achieving world peace and international understanding.

More than 100,000 women attended the state meetings, starting in January. Some 1,442 elected delegates will participate in the National Conference.

The kickoff state meetings brought to the surface friction among various female groups over woman issues such as the E.R.A. and abortion and equal opportunity.

These concerned — in addition to reproductive freedom and E.R.A. — law enforcement, women in power, teen-age pregnancy, older women, students, affirmative action, and much more.

"State meetings showed the extreme right wing is making use of the conferences to build its own constituencies and strengths," Dr. Clarenbach said. "Their targets go way beyond the women's issues."

"These right wing people seem to be trying to attract more persons to their fold.

"It is sad to see. One of the most apparent things I observed at state meetings was the total dependence of these women on a few leaders telling them when to vote, how to vote.

Besides being against the E.R.A. and abortion on demand, what are the "right wing" people, as Dr. Clarenbach called them, for?

"They are for capital punishment and never part of a peace movement," she said.

"They are against regional planning, against fluoridation, against sex education."

Another of the right wing issues is said to be child abuse legislation. This is opposed on the grounds it interferes with the privacy of a family.

"The friction is much deeper than anti-E.R.A and abortion," Dr. Clarenbach said.

"In some of the state meetings these people have voted against world peace, rape crisis centers, against equal opportunity in education.

"There was a negativism demonstrated. Many seemed to come, and in some states they were present in overwhelming numbers: they seemed to come to keep meetings from succeeding.

"They were bent on disruptive tactics and for the sake of disagreement opposed everything.

"The Stop E.R.A. women and the 'total woman' movement people and the Mormons have been very active in the meetings in Utah, Hawaii and Nebraska."

Dr. Clarenbach thinks the activities leading up to the National Conference are going well despite the disruptions, as she called them.

"All the opposition is proof that we are taken very seriously now — the women's movement is. The opposition is very well organized now and we must be vigilant."

Fire will launch the November conference in November. It will come from Seneca Falls, N.Y., acknowledged "shrine" of the women's movement. It will be a torch, and it will start its journey in mid-September.

The cross-country torch relay will culminate in Houston. And the torch will figure in ceremonies opening the National Conference. This torch relay will have at least 3,600 runners doing one mile each. They will include volunteers from various women's groups, celebrities, nuns, high school and college women, local and national athletes, nurses, beauticians and some political figures.

The route isn't figured exactly at this point. Tentatively, it will run through New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York City, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Washington, D.C., Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Dr. Clarenbach said anyone interested in helping to organize the relay or becoming a runner should contact Pat Kery, D-LWY, United States Department of State, Washington, D.C., 20520.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Stephenson

Mary Frances Waddick— Charles R. Stephenson

A couple who attended St. Norbert College together in De Pere, Wis., were married Aug. 6 in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church.

The bride is the former Mary Frances Waddick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Waddick Jr. of Arlington Heights. The groom is Charles Remy Stephenson, son of the Thomas M. Stephensons of Green Bay, Wis.

Mary and Remy exchanged vows and rings at 1:30 p.m. and then greeted 200 guests at Lancer's Restaurant, Schaumburg.

The bride's sister Jean was her maid of honor and bridesmaids were Rita Cole, Arlington Heights, and Margaret Scharff, Kimberley Costello and Patricia Soger, all of Mount Prospect.

THE ATTENDANTS were gowned alike in pale pink chiffon and carried snowflake mums, carnations and pink roses and baby's breath. They also wore pink roses and baby's breath in their hair.

Mary's gown was of white polyester encrusted with Venise lace motifs on the neck, sleeves and waist. She wore a fingertip veil held by a matching lace headpiece and carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath.

John Schmidt, Green Bay, was best man.

Remy's groomsmen included Charles LaHam, Antigo, Wis. David Konsler, Highland Park and Charles Albers and Daniel Ball, Green Bay. Ushers were Richard Reis, DeKalb, and Paul Van Dyke, De Pere.

THE BRIDE and groom honeymooned at Hilton Head, S.C., for a week. They are now in Green Bay, where Remy works for Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Mary graduated from Sacred Heart of Mary High School in '73 and St. Norbert's this year. Remy is a '76 graduate of St. Norbert.

Delores Eiler answers . . . "Should a 3 year old dance?"

Dear Parents:
Let us look into the benefits of dancing for the three year olds.

1. It develops their powers of concentration.
2. It teaches them to take directions and to cooperate with a group.
3. It develops their powers of mental and physical coordination.
4. It develops the ability to remember.
5. It builds self-confidence and poise.
6. It gives them excellent pre-school training by providing a classroom situation in which the process of learning is taking place.
7. It serves to establish many of the desirable attitudes which the individual must learn sooner or later if he is to be an integral part of the society in which he lives.

The teacher of 3 year olds must be a paragon of patience. She must also have a genuine liking for the cute little rascals, and be well versed in the very specialized methods of teaching these tiny tots.

Be assured that your tiny tots' teacher at any one of the Delores Eiler Schools of Dancing will be as described above. Be sure you select the proper school to start your precious little one's exciting journey to learning. A good start is so important.

Sincerely,
Delores Eiler

TV sugar ads and the almighty buck

Television viewers don't know it, but they probably have seen more of Mrs. Olson and her coffee or Mr. Whipple and his toilet paper than they have of the Fonz or Laverne and Shirley.

It's because the time spent watching regular television series and specials just about equals the time a viewer spends watching commercials.

The viewer is being asked, "Have you had your Sprinkle today?" one minute and being encouraged to "Have a Pepsi day" the next. Luxurious cars have become synonymous with the likes of Catherine Deneuve and hair shampoos with the Farrah-look.

THE JINGLES are catchy, the messages are cute, the visuals are appealing and, because it's all so irresistible, the sale is made without the viewer even being aware of it.

It's not a mere accident that the costs of making commercials and purchasing television air time have skyrocketed in recent years. Commercials, depending on how long and how elaborate, can cost anywhere from a few thousand to hundreds of thousands of dollars to produce.

One source indicates that the average cost per minute of prime-time television advertising has now risen to about $80,000. The advertising rates, which networks do not like to disclose and which vary with every show, have risen anywhere from 20 to 30 per cent over last year for the fall season which begins Sept. 19.

ABC, which became the leader in prime-time ratings last season and is boasting that it can now demand as much as $20,000 more a minute for advertising time than the other two networks, has about $500 million in prime-time ad sales commitments for the new fall season. CBS and NBC are each reported to have about $400 million.

OBVIOUSLY, TELEVISON commercials are big business. The networks just can't get enough of them although they reportedly turn away some 15,000 commercials a year because of poor taste in the handling of the material.

As time becomes quite an expensive and scarce entity, and because networks would like to see more of them, the three second, one second and even split-second commercials are on their way. It will be just enough of a message to leave an impression, and it will jam up television air time more than ever before.

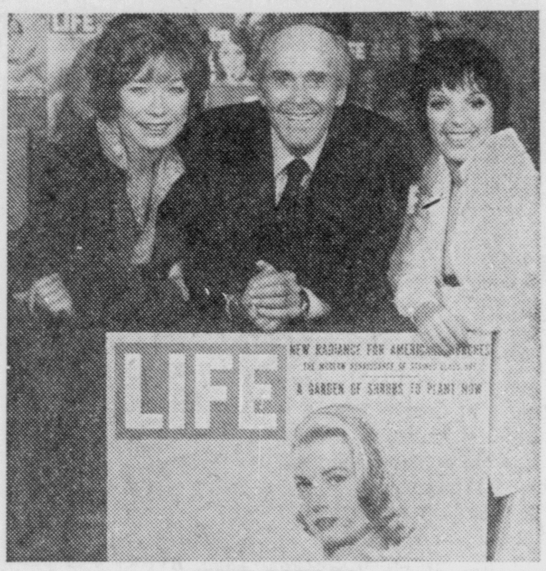

And today's TV commercials are coming under the scrutiny of an organization called the Action for Children's Television. The group is after the sponsors for children's sugar heavy food.

Petitions have been filed with the Federal Trade commission requesting that advertising of highly sugared snack foods, cereals, candy and sweet-tooth products in general be banned during spans of predominantly children's programming, particularly Saturday morning.

Children are vulnerable and need protection from misleading advertising, the group says. Statistics show the average American eats about 94 pounds of sugar annually, about 20 pounds more a year than 30 years ago. The average consumption of candy rose last year for the first time since 1968, according to the Commerce Department. The group says TV helps promote the heavy sugar consumption despite the negative factors of high sugar use.

Deceptive advertising has gone beyond kiddie land into the areas of daytime soap operas and evening prime-time. The Supreme Court has begun to issue orders barring misleading declarations and requiring sponsors to run corrections to previous, incorrect advertising.

Warner-Lambert has been directed by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington and the FTC to correct $10 million worth of Listerine ads that claimed the product prevented or relieved colds.

"LIFE GOES TO THE MOVIES"

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• NBC rebroadcasts "Life Goes to the Movies" at 7 p.m. on Channel 5 in which Henry Fonda, Shirley MacLaine and Liza Minnelli take a backward glance at Hollywood and the era of the silver screen between the 1930's and 1960's.

• Pilots: "McNamara's Band" at 7 p.m. on Channel 7 is about a team of bumbling undercover agents and "Sheila" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 2 stars Milton Berle as a Broadway producer who hires a marriage-minded assistant.

• The White Sox play the Indians at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

"HOSTS" OF A TV special to be aired Sept. 16 on ABC-TV are the two star robots from the motion picture "Star Wars." They are R2-D2, left, and C3PO. The TV special, "The Making of Star Wars," will feature interviews with the two robots plus stars Mark Hamill, Harrison Ford and Connie Fisher and clips of the smash box office film attraction.

Protecting kids from TV no easy task

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Do you watch 'The Partridge Family?'" "Yeah, every day. I hate it."

Now what's a concerned parent supposed to make out of that exchange?

Some parents have an easy time. Their kids want to watch bloodshed and sex, which everyone knows is bad for them. The virtuous, overprotective parent can censor the screen with easy self-assurance.

IN CANADA, the Ontario Royal Commission on Violence in the Communications Industries came down hard on imported American television violence and among other things suggested special tuning and locking devices on sets so parents could preprogram what their kids watch.

For parents whose offspring think blood is groovier than whimsy, decisions are simple. Other parents find themselves in a gray area, uncomfortable with the quality of what the kids watch but unsure whether they should act, react or just leave the room.

"I Love Lucy" is totally unobjectionable — except for the way it pictures men, women, marriage and the English language.

The kids watch "The Brady Bunch" and what do they think? Does everyone live like the Bradys, in a spacious house with plenty of room for six happy children and a goodnatured, live-in housekeeper to help mommy with the chores?

Or does the pioneer simplicity of "Little House on the Prairie" balance things out?

NOT ONLY is the Brady home nothing like the less glamorous dwellings of most Americans, but how many kids live in a family where mother and father never (not almost never) argue?

"The Odd Couple" is being stripped now — that is, shown five days a week. What does a 9-year-old girl who adores the program make of those two?

How can the same child watch "The Partridge Family" (which she says she hates) and beg to stay up beyond her bedtime to catch the latest episode of "Upstairs, Downstairs?" And, except for admiring Susan Hampshire's charm, to which all humans are susceptible, what could a third grader make of "The Pallisers" to keep her glued to the set?

by EDWARD S. LECHTZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — Chances are 50-50 you'll choose a mid-size model if you're planning to buy a 1978 American car.

Now that you know the odds, try to figure out what is a mid-size car.

It used to mean a car between the small ones and the big ones. Now it can mean anything.

Both General Motors and Ford have new models for '78 that fit into the mid-size market. GM calls its models "intermediates" and Ford calls its offerings "compacts."

Both are about the same size. And to confuse things even more, GM's new smaller mid-sized models are shorter than its present compacts.

To make any sense out of an auto market turned topsy-turvy by the rush to build smaller, more fuel-efficient cars — under government pressure, of course — you'll have to do a lot of shopping and a lot of comparing. Sitting in the different models is a must and driving them is a necessity.

GM's new offerings are restyled and resized versions of the Chevrolet Chevelle and Monte Carlo, Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix, Buick Century and Oldsmobile Cutlass.

The '78 Chevelle (193.1 inches long and 3,076 pounds) is a foot shorter and nearly 800 pounds lighter than the current model. Everybody will call it an intermediate model.

Ford's new models are the Ford Fairmont and Mercury Zephyr, replacements for the venerable Ford Maverick and Mercury Comet.

The Fiarmont (193.8 inches long and 2,770 pounds) is 2½ inches longer but 139 pounds lighter than the Maverick. The Fairmont is a compact.

William P. Benton, a Ford vice president and general manager of the Ford Division, expects it to be the company's most popular new car offering ever, topping even the 417,000 original Mustangs sold in the pony car's first year in 1965.

Everybody expected a big battle last year when GM came out with a new, smaller series of standard-size cars and Ford and Chrysler kept their traditionally large models. But GM set some sales records and Ford saw its sales increase so analysts are calling that battle a standoff.

That is what could happen again because the new car market is booming and there is an adage about new cars — a newly restyled model docs well.

Detroit used to have some nifty ways of categorizing its cars.

There were the subcompacts (Pinto, Vega and Gremlin); small specialty models (Mustang II and Monza); intermediates (LTD II, Chevelle, Fury); standards (LTD, Impala, Gran Fury); mediums (Mercury Marquis, Buick 225, Dodge Royal Monaco); and the luxuries (Cadillac and Lincoln).

It's all changing now to small, mid-size and large. There is general agreement about what constitutes the mid-size market.

Ford President Lee A. Iacocca described it as "a combination of the biggest of the small cars — compacts — and the smallest of the big cars — inertmeadeti.'s'

These mid-size models hold more of the domestic market than do the combined sales of all other types of cars that make up the remainder of the domestic auto industry. Through July, mid-size models grabbed 54 per cent of all sales.

Most industry analysts and executives expect the mid-size models to continue as the dominant force of the 1978-model year.

"We expect the compacts and the intermediates to increase their share of the domestic auto market," Iacocca said. "New styling and new car lines stimulate sales and, in 1978, much of the stimulus will be in the compacts and intermediates."

The other new offerings will be on the small, fuel-economy end of the market.

Ford has its Fiesta, a German-built minicar, while Chrysler plans to introduce four new small models at the end of the year: the U.S.-built Plymouth Horizon and Dodge Omni (the first American front-wheel drive small cars) and the Japanese-built Plymouth Sapporo and Dodge Challenger.

More than half of all car buyers interested in a domestic model will be shopping for mid-size cars. They'll probably have to spend more time shopping for their cars as they try to sort out new names and confusing sizes in the marketplace.

Besides the new GM and Ford offerings, all the U.S. companies have "carryover" models they'll be trying to fit into some pigeonhole.

Ford has its Ford Granada and Mercury Monarch models, with front-end restyling, that are only four inches longer than the Fairmont and Zephyr. Also in that category are the conventional intermediates — Cougar, XR-7, LTD II and Thunderbird — that are 2½ feet longer than Fairmont and Zephyr.

In the GM shop, there are the older compacts — Nova, Phoenix, Omega and Skylark — that are longer than the new intermediates but don't have more interior room. The present Nova-sized models will undergo a drastic change in the 1979-model year with front-wheel drive slated for them.

Chrysler will continue to sell the compact Plymouth Volare and Dodge Aspen models, the slightly larger but similar Chrysler Lebaron and Dodge Diplomat models and their regular intermediates such as Cordoba and Fury. American Motors has freshened the styling of its compact Hornet line and rechristened it the Concord.

CHEVROLET'S REGULAR size passenger cars, the Caprice Classic, top, and Impala, will have new trim front and rear and mechanical improvements for 1978, the manufacturer said. Appearance changes include new grille and new rear lamp moldings to give model year identification.

Business briefs

Anderson GM plant strike ends

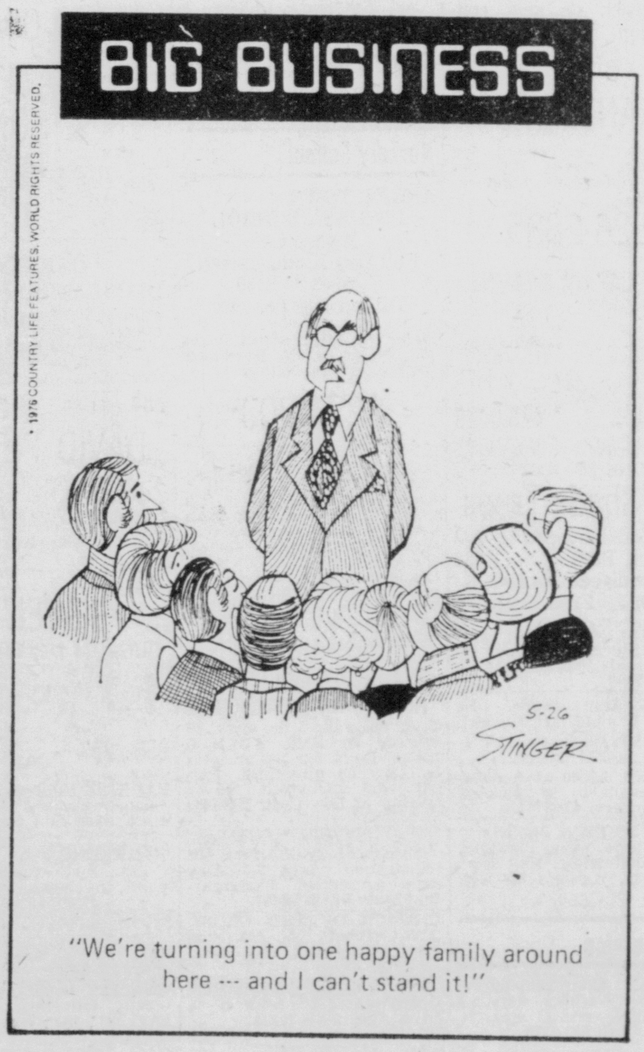

A tentative contract agreement between the United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. Sunday ended the threat of more plant closings caused by a two-week strike at the Delco-Remy parts facility in Anderson, Ind. Negotiators ended 15 hours of intense bargaining at GM headquarters by reaching a settlement for the 12,700 Delco-Remy Division employes. Terms were not revealed, and UAW Local 662 in Anderson did not immediately set a date for a ratification vote. Local 662 official Dick Vest said the first group of returning workers on the afternoon shift Sunday would concentrate on making parts for other departments at the Anderson complex. Full operations were expected to resume after midnight.

Chicago tourist number up

Visitors continued arriving in Chicago in large numbers during the first half of this year, the Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau, Inc., reports. Chicago had 3,140,239 convention participants and pleasure visitors during the first six months of this year, a slight increase over the 3,014,594 visitors during the same period of 1976. During the January-June 1977 period, the Chicago area had 301,695 corporate meeting visitors, 193,202 convention visitors, 783,658 trade show visitors and 1,861,684 pleasure visitors. Visitor spending here reached $456,890,709, a record figure for any six month period. By category, corporate meeting visitors spent $28.5 million, convention visitors spent $36.5 millon, trade show visitors spent $222 million and pleasure visitors spent $170 million. Frank C. Sain, CCTB president, attributed a slight drop in convention attendance to the fact that Chicago has heavier convention business in even-numbered years than in odd-numbered ones.

Truck tax forms due Wednesday

Most owners of large trucks, truck-tractors or buses in Northern Illinois must file a federal highway use tax return, Form 2290, by Wednesday. The tax generally applies to single unit trucks weighing 13,000 pounds or more, to truck-tractors weighing 5,500 pounds or more, to trucks of 9,000 or more pounds equipped for use in combinations and to buses with a taxable gross weight of more than 26,000 pounds, the Internal Revenue Service said. Form 2290 and further information on the proper filing of the federal highway use tax returns can be obtained at the Chicago IRS district office. A reference is the free IRS Publication 349, "Federal Highway Use Tax."

Put and call option game requires expert broker

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — A lot of investors are getting burned in options. The game is so new that neither you nor your broker really may understand what's going on. And the play is so fast that you can lose half your money just by taking your mind off the market for one day.

But like Mt. Everest, put and call options are there. Investors with big money on their minds inevitably will want to try them.

One tip: Don't do it, unless you can find a broker who's really an expert on the subject. And it may not be the broker you usually use.

The big, nationwide brokerage houses generally have good options departments, headed by a real whiz. The same may be true of major regional firms. The whiz and his staff will personally handle the firm's large option customers. In addition, they'll put out daily recommendations on option positions.

THESE RECOMMENDATIONS go over the wire to brokers who deal with the general investing public. Generally, it's better information than you'll get at most smaller firms (unless the smaller firm has made options a specialty).

The problem comes with the follow-up. The broker who actually sells you the option may not understand the nuances of the position well enough to make quick decisions when the market changes.

If a broker doesn't notice until the end of the day that your stock fell $1 during trading, it may not matter. But with options, that $1 could mean a 50 per cent loss, with no hope of recovery before the option expires.

HERE ARE SOME general strategies for option players, from Kenneth Platnick, author of the newsletter "The Option Trader" ($120 a year from CommuniConcepts, 119 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019):

• By selling call options, conservative investors can limit possible losses on stocks they own, and get extra money from the sale of the option itself.

• Option buyers, who take more risks than option sellers, should invest only a small amount of money, until they get a feel for the game.

• Options to buy or sell stock expire on a certain day. If your option isn't living up to expectations, it's important to sell, even at a loss, well before the expiration date. If you hold on until the last minute, hoping for a turnaround, you may not be able to sell at all.

• Options on a particular stock expire in a cycle, one every three months. In general, Platnick prefers to buy those with the most distant expiration date. It gives the options more time to move, and gives him more time to sell if the position doesn't seem to be working out.

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Find out more about a whole new generation in copiers, call or write us today.

Chance of terrorist acts increasing: FBI official

Efforts to cut back intelligence-gathering activities by the government have increased the chances of terrorist attacks in the United States, a deputy assistant director of the FBI recently told Chicago businessmen.

Jim Ingram said to prevent terrorist attacks, "you must get back to the one ingredient — intelligence. We don't have it anymore. It's gone."

Ingram spoke at a seminar, "Crime Prevention — It's Your Business," sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry in Chicago.

Because local and federal agencies are barred by law from guaranteeing anonymity to informants, and because terrorists have developed a sophisticated "underground" in this country, investigators such as the FBI are hard pressed to keep track of terrorist activities, Ingram said.

And the target of terrorists, here as in other countries, will be businesses and corporate executives, Ingram said.

INGRAM TOLD the business gathering, "Each of you represents a corporation that has power, money and publicity, and this is what the kidnapers want."

The FBI agent warned of terrorist activity in such nations as Italy, which averaged one kidnaping a week in 1976, and said similar crimes could spread to the United States.

The terrorists in this country are aided by foreign governments, Ingram said.

"We know there's been foreign assistance, foreign help for finances and other things," he said.

Jan R. Reber, corporate security consultant, said, "Terrorism is a cost-effective solution to generate the capital and attention to publicize a cause."

"Buildings are potential targets (of terrorists)," Reber said. "They view a building like the World Trade Center (in New York City) as a potential vulnerability, they view an airplane as a group of potential hostages already contained in a mobile environment."

"THE CORPORATION is a handy scapegoat for the ills of society," Reber said. He said terrorists often resort to kidnaping of corporate executives to extract ransom, which has run as high as $60 million.

"The corporation is physically vulnerable to terrorists at hundreds of points," Reber said.

Reber described the average international terrorist as:

- Cool, rational, well-educated and from a relatively stable middle-class home.
- Male, age 24
- Heavily armed with machine gun, automatic rifle, pistol or hand grenade.

Terrorists usually work in teams of two for assassinations; teams of three for armed attacks; teams of four for kidnapings; and teams of five for armed attacks with hostages taken, Reber said.

Further, Reber said, terrorists normally enter target countries through legal channels, and perpetrate most of their crimes in the streets. And very few nations have consistent policies for dealing with terrorists, Reber said.

"You must learn to think like terrorists, and meet terrorists on their own terms," he said.

Headwear helps auctioneer's sales

by JOSPEH ST. AMANT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Milton Wershow is an industrial auctioneer who handles the weighty job of selling millions of dollars worth of merchandise every month, but he does it with a light, show-business touch.

A man of middle years and distinguished mien, Wershow has more than 1,000 hats. He chooses from this collection to suit the auction of the moment.

For example, at the recent liquidation of a taxicab company, he wore a yellow cab driver's hat. For the sale of earth moving equipment, he wears a hard hat; Stetson is standard for a cattle or horse auction. He wore a pith helmet when he sold animals for a tourist attraction called Jungleland a few years back.

Wershow heads his own company and has a team of assistant auctioneers. Often he will buy an entire manufacturing plant after estimating its value, then auction it and reap a handsome profit.

"WHENEVER WE can, we buy," he said. "Many people are afraid of auctions because they don't understand the mechanics and they don't want to take part in the sale themselves. If we can buy, we do, and we take all the gamble."

Wershow estimates worldwide auction sales total from $5 billion to $10 billion a year. His own sales are in the hundreds of millions a year.

"We sell a tremendous amount of real estate, heavy construction equipment, wood products ... I know nothing about jewelry so I stay away from it. We liquidate a lot of men's clothing."

Wershow's disarming, sometimes puckish personality plays a large part in his business and he hobnobs with show-business personalities such as Bob Hope and Dean Martin at golf tournaments. For many years, Martin wore on the golf course a plantation hat swiped from Wershow.

THE AUCTIONEER is a fine amateur golfer and the walls of his headquarters are decorated with photographs of Wershow and such professionals as Arnold Palmer and Johnny Miller, and going back farther to Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson.

Wershows has auctioned the estates of such celebrities as Elizabeth Taylor, Shirley Temple, Harold Lloyd, and a Bing Crosby layout at Santa Fe Springs, among other multimillion dollar sales.

He has raised the level of auction sales from the standpoint of prestige and honesty, and he is not bashful about telling you this.

"When I got into the auction business, they used to call them the 40 thieves," he said. "The first guy I worked for would rather have made a dishonest dollar than an honest five dollars.

"Now, it's a legitimate, honest business. If you're honest with the public, you'll draw — if your advertising program is good.

"FAIR MARKET value is a willing buyer and a willing seller. What you don't need, someone else can use.

"I convinced the banks and 50 big-board companies. They didn't like auctions. I handled a big sale for Boeing Aircraft. They were a little afraid but it worked out all right.

"You advertise machinery and equipment no longer needed in future operations. What you doon't need, someone else can use. It's as simple as that."

For example, Wershow recently sold a Du Pont family ranch on the central California coast for $4 million to a Chicago man who had just had his meat processing plant condemned and was looking for a new investment to avoid a big tax bite.

Auctions can be boring, Wershow says, and that's why he wears his hats.

"You walk in wearing a crazy hat and it relaxes the crowd," he said. "When they enjoy themselves, they really bid more. They don't hold back."

Two losses end ambitions of Arlington Legion team

by DON FRISKE

Lloyd Meyer would be the first person to tell you that American Legion tournament baseball games are won by the teams that can best employ the intricacies of the sport.

The double steal. The suicide squeeze bunt. Bang-bang relay throws. And scoring runs without having to hit the ball.

Those are the things that Meyer has taught so well to his Arlington Heights teams in 23 years of coaching. During that time, his players have reaped success by becoming efficient craftsmen with bat and glove.

THAT'S THE WAY it was again this summer. At least until Saturday.

Arlington saw its hopes and aspirations of competing for the national title dwindle slowly and finally die just after 10 p.m. Saturday night. The scene was the Great Lakes Regional tournament in Bellwood and it was not a happy time for those close to the Arlington program.

A team from Blissfield, Mich., had just defeated Arlington in 10 innings, 3-2, It was the second loss of the day for the defending champs in the double-elimination tourney, the first games were far more important in that the players, many of whom were in attendance for the second-place finish in the nationals last year, will not get the chance to go after the top spot again.

IT WAS HARD to tell whether their faces displayed shock or disappointment as they walked off the field for the final time. There was no doubt that both feelings were in the air.

Arlington had been beaten by two teams that did the small things in a way that wins crucial games.

South Bend scored one run in six different innings, twice without a hit, to post a victory after falling behind 5-1 in the fourth. Then Blissfield took the lead in the final game by scoring on a suicide squeeze a few minutes after a perfect relay throw from the coming against South Bend, Ind., in a 6-5 verdict.

Those losses ended Arlington's summer with a 46-12 record. But the shortstop had wiped out Frank DeSimone's bid for an inside-the-park homer at the plate.

"They forced a mistake, something we've always tried to do," Meyer said. "Both teams took advantage of the breaks we gave them."

THE RUN THAT eventually spelled the end for Arlington was set up by two errors and a walk, which loaded the bases for Blissfield in the 10th with nobody out. Fred Ambs then bounced a single into right field, scoring Dave Wahl with the clincher.

"We played the same type of ballgame both games," Meyer said. "We made sparkling plays and then we blew the easy ones, the routine plays you have to make to win. Those beat us."

Arlington opened the scoring in the Blissfield contest with a run in the fourth. John Mertins reached on a walk, went to second on a groundout, reached third on a passed ball and scored on Dan Frase's squeeze bunt. It was a patented Meyer run, and it looked good enough to hold up for the next three innings.

Arlington starter Bob Huber was pitching a strong three-hit shutout going into the Blissfield seventh. But on one pitch, Ambs tied the score with a homer over the left-field fence. Ray Soff followed with a ground-rule double and scored the go-ahead run on a squeeze bunt by Mike Burgermeister.

WITH THE 2-1 lead, the Blissfield coach brought in fastballer Dave Pagel, who had earlier thrown out DeSimone at the plate.

Pagel struck out the first two batters in the eighth with fastballs that popped when they hit the catcher's mitt. But then Mertins connected with one of those speedballs and shot it over the fence in left.

As he was rounding the bases, however, the ball was ruled foul, much to the amazement of even the Blissfield followers. It would have tied the game, but Mertins had to settle for a popout a few pitches later.

"When it first took off, I thought it was gone," said Larry Tuttle, the Blissfield coach. "That's an unfortunate call for them, but that's the way it goes sometime."

ARLINGTON DID manage to tie the score in the top of the ninth when Mike Jennings hit a two-out single to drive in Frase. Blissfield loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth with one out, but couldn't score when Arlington called a pitchout on a suicide squeeze attempt for a double play.

All the trouble started for Arlington during its game with South Bend in the afternoon. After building a 5-1 lead on six hits, including four doubles, Arlington failed to score any more off reliever Greg Heyde.

Heyde, the team's No. 1 pitcher, allowed only four singles during the final five innings while his team came back.

South Bend put Arlington in the loser's bracket by scoring the winning run in the bottom of the ninth on a walk, a wild pitch and a single with nobody out.

IT MEANT THAT Arlington had to play Blissfield later that same day, and the game was to be one of the most intense battles involving the Illinois state champs all season.

"It was the type of game we've been in a lot, but if you're going to be a championship team, you have to win it. We try to do one thing right more than the other team, and we didn't," Meyer said.

But the Arlington coach added that he does not want to sound like he is down on his players. He is proud of the way they battled back to win four straight games in capturing the Cook County title. He is delighted they won a second straight state title for Arlington Heights.

But, as his players would agree, this disappointment could only be measued by memories of last year's trip to the nationals. It was fun, and they were hoping for the chance to do it again.

Punchless pitching, hitting silence Sox fans Sunday

by BOB GALLAS

Milwaukee pitcher Lary Sorensen still owned a 7-1 lead at the time, but nevertheless was fuming after Eric Soderholm had hit a solo home run for the White Sox in the sixth inning Sunday.

Sorensen stood with his back to home plate, staring at the scoreboard, which was exploding in its usual noisy splendor as Sox fans, despite a six-run deficit, starting singing "Na, Na, Na, Na — Hey, Hey, Hey — Goodbye."

"Oh, how I hate that scoreboard — and that song," said Sorensen, who blanked the Sox on a six-hitter Sunday as the Brewers found the jetstream against an assortment of Sox pitchers to win 10-1. Sorensen may have made a mistake by throwing a fastball to Soderholm, but the scoreboard — and that song — kept him from making another.

"I've obviously made a mistake and it's like they're rubbing it in," said the 21-year-old product of suburban Detroit, who didn't have even a complete season in the minors before joining the Brewers in June.

I WAS MAD that I lost the shutout. I knew the Sox hadn't been shut out and I wanted to do it badly. But most of all, I didn't want to hear that lousy song again."

Sorensen, now 5-7, didn't hear that song again Sunday as the Sox lost a game on division-leading Kansas City and now trail by three games, though they still are in second place ahead of Texas and Minnesota, who were both losers Sunday.

The punchless Sox attack, which followed a dramatic 7-6 win Saturday night on Chet Lemon's three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth, wasn't half as punchless as their pitching.

Wilbur Wood started the parade to the mound Sunday but faced only six men, five of whom hit safely and four of whom scored. Wilburg, now 6-7, was back in the lockerroom before his chair was cold and took with him the vision of Sal Bando, who capped the inning by hitting a high knuckleball onto the left field roof.

"I DIDN'T HAVE anything, not even warming up," explained Wood. "Everything I threw up there was too high."

Though Wood spotted the Brewers a four-run lead, it was the relief pitching — or lack of it — that put the Sox out of the game. Bart Johnson took over for Wood and retired the side in the first, but before leaving six innings later, he'd given up five more runs on eight hits. Don Kirkwood worked the final 2 2/3 innings and gave up another run.

Lemon agreed that the No. 1 need of the Sox right now is someone who can be used in long relief situations, but added that finding someone like that has been difficult.

"Everyone here has been trying (to make a deal), believe me," said Lemon. "But it seems like when we find someone who can help us, he can't clear waivers, and everyone who clears waivers isn't much better than what we have now."

LEMON SAID he'll try to use Wood in relief if needed today and Tuesday as the Sox open a two-game road trip in Cleveland. "He needs the work so we'll try to get him in there."

Sunday's crowd of 42,426 (33,027 paid) didn't have much to sing about but was even quieter than usual when Bando's two-run shot literally fell onto the left field roof, making him only the 19th player in history to accomplish such a feat, though his blast was aided by a gusty 23-mile-an-hour wind. Richie Zisk was the last to reach the roof, his blast coming in a June 4 game with the Yankees.

Bando has been on a hitting tear since he's been forced to serve as designated hitter due to a sore heel. He is hitting more than .500 (14-for-27) in eight games as DH, and credits the switch for his surge in hitting.

"The rest has given me a lift," said Bando, whose average is up to .253. "If fact, this is the first rest I've ever had in 10 years in the big leagues."

Bando was asked about the Sox chances to win the A.L. East crown. He labeled defense as the key.

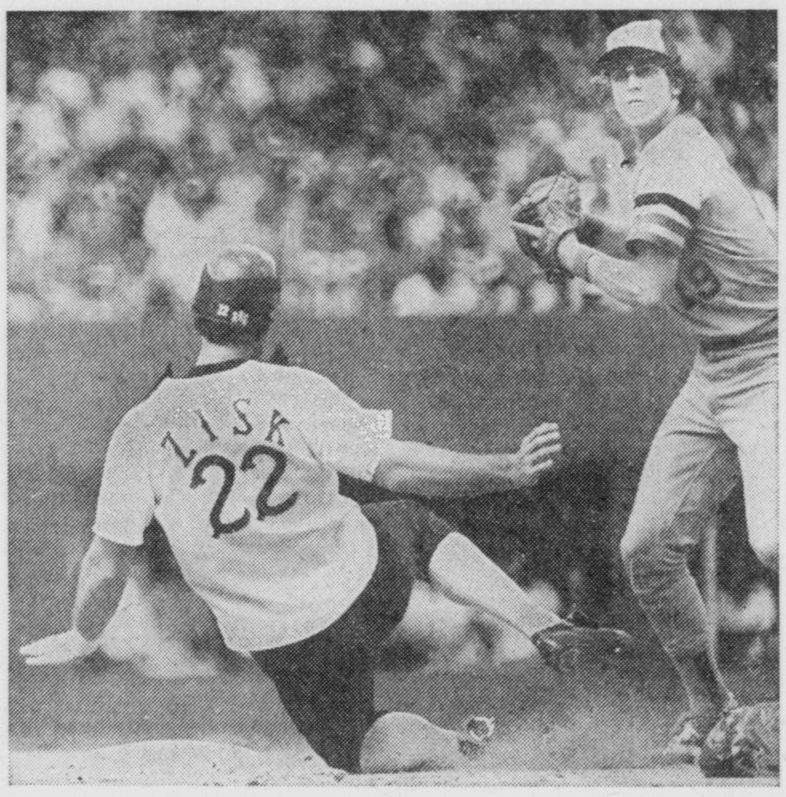

"THE HITTING is obviously there and the pitching isn't all that bad. They're in it because they're so close. If they can tighten up that defense, they could do it."

Lemon apparently agreed. Don Kessinger continued to find his way into the starting lineup Sunday, starting at shortstop. The move gave Alan Bannister a much needed day of rest and put another left-handed bat in the lineup against the righthanded offerings of Sorensen, as Jorge Orta returned to second, where Kessinger has been playing. Ralph Garr also sat out the action Sunday as Richie Zisk took his spot, moving from right to left. Oscar Gamble patrolled right field in an alignment that tightened the Sox outfield defensively.

But defense had little to do with the outcome as the Brewers prevented a series sweep by rapping out 16 hits. Milwaukee manager Alex Grammas was asking after the game how to buy a copy of the Sox theme song.

"We might try playing it to Lary (Sorensen) every time he pitches. It sure makes him mad."

SOX SHORTS: Lamar Johnson extended his hitting streak to 12 games Sunday, and is 21-for-43 during that time, a .488 pace . . . The pitching matchups for the Cleveland series will be Steve Stone (13-9) vs. Rick Waits (7-5) tonight and Ken Dravec (7-6) vs. Wayne Garland (10-15) Tuesday.

Cubs fail to take advantage, fall to lowly Giants, 4-1

SAN FRANCISCO — Opportunity knocked on the door Sunday, but once again the Cubs could not open it and seize the advantage. Or perhaps you could say the Cubs don't like favors.

For the second consecutive day, the Cubs, playing a less than .500 ball club, the San Francisco Giants, lost while the Eastern Division leading Philadelphia Phillies fell too. Thus, the third place Cubs, who could be just six games behind the Phils, remain eight back after the Giants defeated Chicago, 4-1, Sunday.

Since the Cubs' current road trip began Wednesday night in Atlanta, Chicago has won only one of the five games.

A TEAM the Cubs might take a lesson from is the Eastern Division's second place team, the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates now are just 3½ games behind the Phils, because they captured a three-game set against the San Diego Padres.

In Sunday's game, the Cubs and Giants produced 10 hits each, but San Francisco used them better. Both teams did all of their scoring early.

The Cubs only lead and run of the day came in the second inning. Two left field doubles by Larry Biittner and Manny Trillo gave the Cubs a 1-0 advantage.

However, the Giants fought back, scoring three runs one inning later. Leadoff batter Gary Alexander hit a single off Cub third baseman Steve Ontiveros' glove, went to second on pitcher Ed Halicki's first of two sacrifice bunts, took third on Derrel Thomas' single and crossed home on Tim Floi's second base ground out.

Chicago then decided discretion was the better part of valor and intentionally walked ex-Cub Bill Madlock.

THAT STRATEGY brought up Willie McCovey, the Giants' veteran slugger, who is only six away from 2,000 hits. McCovey showed he still possesses life in his bat by blasting a high fly ball off the right field wall for a double that scored Thomas and Madlock. The rbis gave McCovey 1,400 for his career.

The Giants increased their lead to the final score in the fourth while knocking out Cub starter Dave Roberts. This time, Halicki singled home another ex-Cub, Vic Harris, who had doubled.

Pete Broberg replaced Roberts (now 0-1 this year and 3-13 lifetime against the Giants, and secured the final out in the fourth while blanking San Francisco in the fifth and sixth innings. Rookie Dennis Lamp held San Francisco scoreless in the seventh and eighth innings.

Meanwhile, the Cubs stranded 10 runners against Halicki. Two double plays by the Giants' infield helped Halicki earn his 12th win in 22 decisions.

The Cubs continue their road trip against the Dodgers in Los Angeles tonight. Another Cub rookie pitcher, Mike Krukow, (8-10) duels veteran Tommy John (15-5). Krukow beat John 6-2 at Wrigley Field Aug. 18.

Cosmos win soccer bowl, 2-1

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Giorgio Chinaglia scored on a header with 12:41 left in the game Sunday to give The Cosmos a 2-1 victory over Seattle for the North American Soccer League championship in Soccer Bowl '77.

Chinaglia's goal decided the dramatic and tense contest before a record NASL championship game crowd of 35,548. The game was the last in the league for Pele of The Cosmos unless the legendary player changes his mind about his announced retirement.

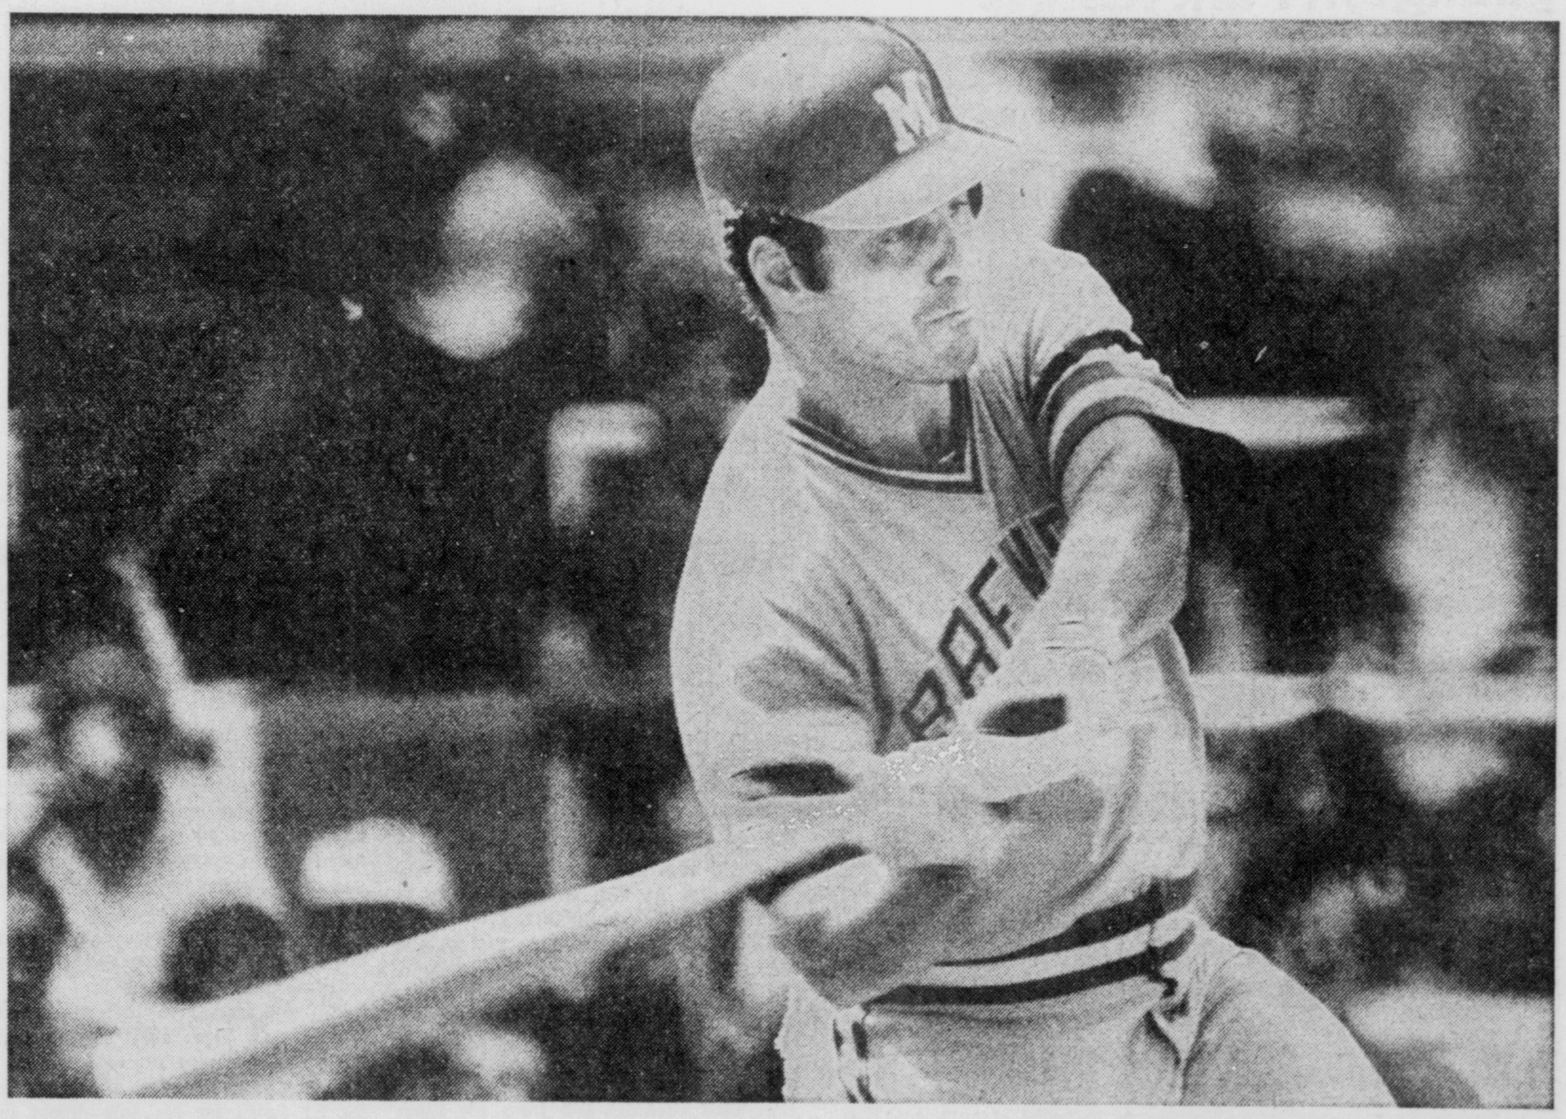

Despite the heroics of Chinaglia, who set a league playoff record with nine goals in six games, teammate Steve Hunt was named the game's outstanding player.

HUNT SCORED an unassisted goal before the game was 20 minutes old when he caught Seattle goalie Tony Chursky careless in front of his own goal mouth and stole the ball and drilled it from about five feet for the game's first score.

Hunt also served a perfect pass for Chinaglia's header that won the game.

Pele, while not a factor in the game, had predicted it would be close and said a score of 2-1 or 2-0 would win the championship. The contest turned out as touted, the Cosmos offense against the Sounders defense.

Hunt would up with a playoff record seven assists and Chinaglia's 20 points on nine goals and two assists also were record.

Royals make life hard for the West

From Herald News Services

John Wathan slammed a two-run home run and Fred Patek chipped in with a two-run single Sunday when the Kansas City Royals battered Ross Grimsley and the Baltimore Orioles 5-0 behind the combined five-hit pitching of Andy Hassler and Doug Bird.

Wathan blasted his second home run of the season into the right field seats after Amos Otis drew a walk in the fourth. It was the 23rd home run given up by Grimsley, 12-7.

Winning pitcher Hassler, 7-5, left the game after six innings as a result of a swollen left leg suffered when he was struck by a line drive in the first inning. Hassler had allowed two singles and walked three batters. It was the 11th shutout by Royals' pitchers this season.

CRAIG NETTLES tripled with one out in the sixth inning and Reggie Jackson singled him home for the game's only run when the New York Yankees defeated the Texas Rangers 1-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Ron Guidry.

GUIDRY'S PERFORMANCE raised his record to 11-6 and was his fifth complete game of the year. He struck out eight without issuing a walk and at one point retired 16 straight Rangers between hits.

Carl Yastrzemski singled home pinch runner Steve Dillard in the seventh inning to push the Boston Red Sox to a 6-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins and enable them to remain two games behind the Yankees in the American League East.

Bo moves up

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler has moved into the No. 2 spot among the nation's top active coaches ranked by winning percentage. Schembechler's collegiate mark stands at 116 wins, 28 losses and 6 ties for a percentage of .793, just a shade behind the current leader, Joe Paterno of Penn State (101-23-1, .812). Ohio State's Woody Hayes ranks fourth with a .765 percentage on 222-65-9 won-lost mark.

Major league baseball

Yastrzemski, who had driven in a first-inning run with a groundout, singled to right after Tommy Helms was hit by a pitch and replaced by Dillard. Dillard had advanced to second on a sacrifice by Butch Hobson.

JASON THOMPSON hit his 26th home run and California outfielders committed two key errors to help the Detroit Tigers score a mistake-filled 12-9 victory over the Angels.

Bobby Bonds hit two home runs, each with a man on, to take the AL lead with 33 for the year but his muff of Thompson's double while fielding it off the wall in the sixth brought in the run which snapped a 9-9 tie.

Earl Williams stroked a run-scoring double in the sixth inning and Mitchell Page slugged his 14th homer of the season in the eighth when the Oakland A's downed the Toronto Blue Jays 6-2 behind the six-hit pitching of Vida Blue.

Rico Carty drove in five runs with a pair of homers and his second triple since 1972 and Ron Pruitt smacked a three-run homer to spark the Cleveland Indians to a 10-6 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

George Foster slammed a three-run homer and Dave Concepcion drove home four runs with a pair of doubles leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-0 romp over the Philadelphia Phillies behind the seven-hit pitching of rookie Paul Moskau.

The victory was the fifth in a row for the Reds and gave them their 12th win in their last 15 games. Moskau, pitching his first career complete game, struck out six and walked none to even his record at 4-4.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, with Jim Rooker spacing seven hits and Fernando Gonzales slamming a three-run homer in the third, trimmed the San Diego Padres 10-1 and moved to within 3½ games of first-place Philadelphia in the NL East.

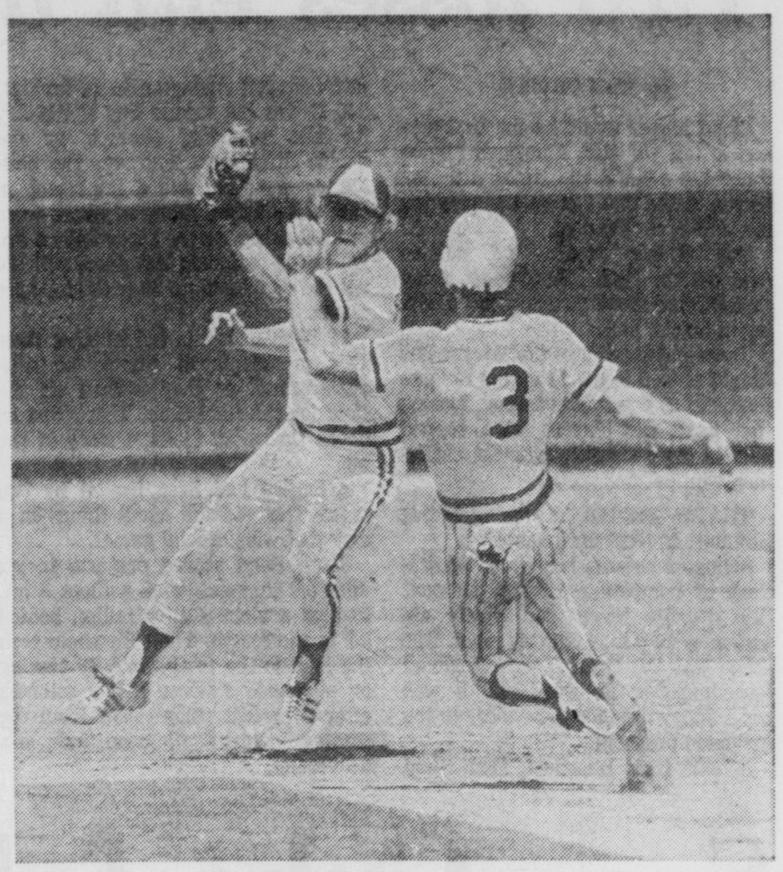

It was the fourth straight win for the Pirates who have picked up four full games in the past four days.

STEVE GARVEY drove in five runs with three doubles and two homers, including a grand slam in Los Angeles' seven-run seventh inning, and Don Sutton hurled a six-hit shutout to lead the Dodgers to an 11-0 rout over the St. Louis Cardinals.

In fashioning his 47th career shutout to tie Gaylord Perry for the most among active major-league pitchers, Sutton, 12-8, struck out five, walked none and kept Lou Brock off base in his three at-bats. Brock remained one stolen base short of equalling Ty Cobb's modern major league record of 892. He was deprived of his last at-bat when he was ejected from the game in the eighth inning for arguing on a pitch.

Catcher Gary Carter's throwing error allowed two runs to score and Joe Ferguson hit a two-run home run to highlight a five-run Houston eighth inning which lifted the Astros to a 7-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Rowland Office drove in three runs with a homer and a double and Eddie Solomon won his fourth game leading the Atlanta Braves to a 6-4 triumph over the New York Mets.

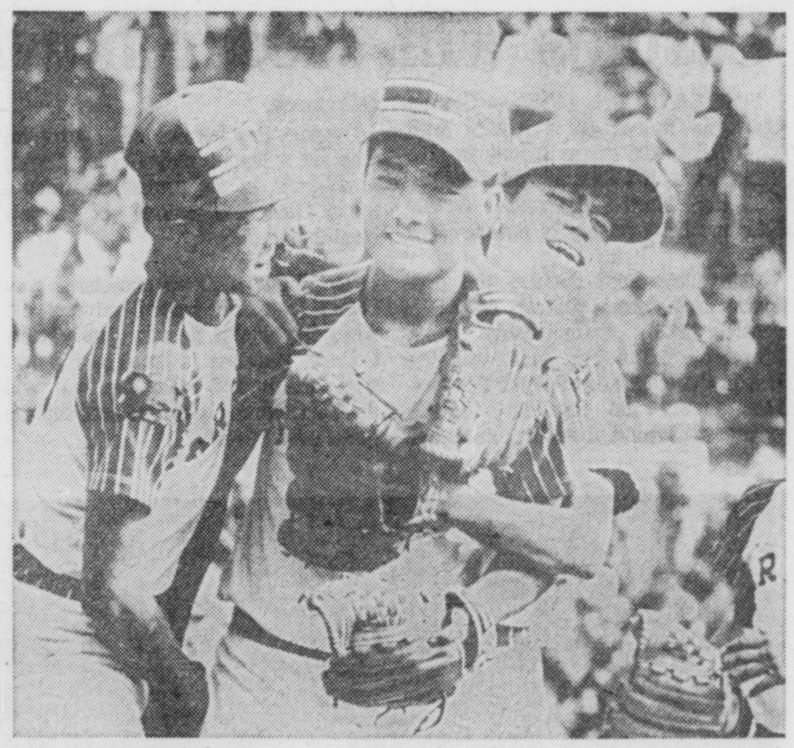

GARY SUTHERLAND of the San Diego Padres has the ball in his glove and is waiting for Phil Garner of the Pittsburgh Pirates in action Sunday. Garner was out stealing in the third inning of a game won by the surging Pirates, 10-1.

Williams leads romp over Soviets

U.S. cagers take Student gold

SOFIA, Bulgaria (UPI)— Powered by hot-shooting Freeman Williams of Portland State and Sid Moncrief of Arkansas, the U.S. National basketball team overran the defenseless Soviet Union, 87-68, Saturday to take the gold medal on the final day of the World Student Games.

PITCHER CHAING Chen-Jung is congratulated by team members after winning the World Series Little League title game in Williamsport, Pa. Taiwan beat El Cajon, Calif., 7-2.

The basketball romp came atop a spectacular splashdown by U.S. swimmers, who took four of five gold medals on the last day of competition.

The American basketball team outran and outrebounded the frustrated Soviets from the start, batting down and stealing five Russian shots in the first half. But a quick, tight Soviet defense kept the Americans from getting inside and held them to a 39-34 lead at the half.

That was when Williams, last year's top college scorer, broke it open.

HIGH-LEAPING Calvin Natt of Northeast Louisiana brought down two key rebounds to start Williams on a four-basket spree that put the U.S. ahead 53-38 after four minutes of the second half.

"I don't hit like that all the time," Williams grinned after the game. "Only when I'm hot."

The Russians never recovered. Moncrief moved inside through their faltering defense to run up 16 points and Williams, Natt and Indiana State's Larry Bird all joined him in double figures.

"With all those scorers, it was a real team effort," coach Denny Crum of Louisville said. "Of course, Williams' shooting didn't hurt.

"BUT THIS IS a great team with a lot of talent. Most of them are still underclassmen. I think almost all will get the chance to play pro ball."

The U.S. had already demolished the Russians 129-95 in a second round game Monday, but Crum said the Soviets were a far tougher team Saturday. "They played their quick men instead of their big men," he said. "That gave us much more trouble."

Taiwan Little Leaguers win sixth world title, 7-2

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Chiang Chen-Jung pitched a four-hitter and had three hits Saturday to lead Taipei, Taiwan, to a 7-2 victory over El Cajon, Calif., in the championship game of the 31st Little League World Series.

The win marked Taiwan's sixth world title in seven tries since 1969 and was its 17th straight victory in World Series competition.

Chiang struck out nine and walked two in finishing the Little League tournament with an 8-0 record. He also went three-for-four to finish the series with a phenomenal .833 average (10 hits in 12 at-bats).

THE CHAMPIONS from the Liteh league in Taipei batted around in the first inning to score three unearned runs, taking advantage of the first of four El Cajon errors. Chiang drove in two of the runs with a double and the third run scored on an error.

El Cajon scored its first run in the third inning on a double by Brian Dean and a single by Devin Lundford.

Taiwan scored one run in the third and two in the fourth, using only two hits to do the job. The winners were aided by El Cajon errors, passed balls and wild pitches to score the three runs.

TAIWAN'S LAST run came on a double by Chu Tien-Psu and a single by Hung Chi-Hsiung.

El Cajon scored its other run in the fourth when Britt Ward singled and scored on an error and a wild pitch.

Johnny Osborne went the distance for El Cajon for his only defeat in eight tournament games. He pitched a six-hitter and struck out eight but suffered from wildness, walking seven and uncorking four wild pitches.

Irwin's closing 68 good for easy win

PINEHURST, N.C. — Hale Irwin shot a 68 Sunday to take a five-stroke victory over hot Leonard Thompson in the Hall of Fame Golf Classic as he turned in the lowest score of the year on the PGA tour.

The 20-under-par 264 was even more spectacular in that it came on the famed Pinehurst Country Club No. 2 course, which has been called one of the world's 10 best.

Irwin, who came to the sandy, pine-tree laden course with the sole aim of qualifying for next week's World Series of Golf, bogeyed the first hole Sunday to slip to 16 under par. But that was long forgotten as he went on to make four birdies and an eagle three on the 16th hole by chipping the ball into the cup from about 70 feet over a sand trap.

Thompson, who grew up about 35 miles away and was a member at Pinehurst for 10 years, put on a hot streak with a record 7-under-par 29 on the back side as he birdied seven holes and finished at 15-under-par 269 after shooting a 66 Sunday.

Orantes, Dibbs breeze to triumphs

BROOKLINE, Mass. — Third-seeded Manuel Orantes, the top surviving seeded player, breezed through his quarter-final match at the U.S. Professional Tennis Tournament Sunday, downing Columbia's Ivan Molina, 6-4, 6-2.

In the other quarter-final match, fourth-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., scored a straight-set victory over Texan Dick Stockton by the same score, 6-4, 6-2.

Sunday night at the Longwood Cricket Club, Jaime Fillol and Patrico Cornejo, both of Chile, were to play a third quarter-final match.

Poland's Wojtek Fibak drew a bye into the semifinals when top-seeded Jimmy Connors had to withdraw from the tournament Saturday because of a back injury. Connors checked out of his Newton hotel room Sunday but did not say where he was headed.

Records fall in U.S. swim success

EAST BERLIN — Three world marks tumbled Sunday when the United States, led by a stunning record performance from their 400 meter freestyle relay quartet, defeated East Germany 176 points to 168 after a two-day meet between the world's strongest swimming nations.

In a historic swim, East Germany's Christiane Knacke broke the one-minute barrier in the women's 100 meters butterfly for the first time ever, clocking 59.78 seconds to surpass the old record of 1:00.13.

East Germany's Ulrike Tauber improved her own world record for the second time in a fortnight when she notched a 2:15.85 in the women's 200 meters individual medley.

The Americans then set the most stunning record of the three. The 400 meter freestyle relay team of Jack Babashoff, Joe Bottom, Rick DeMont and Jim Montgomery was clocked in 3:21.11, knocking more than three seconds off the old world standard of 3:24.87 set by an American team in 1975.

Lauer closes fast for Berg prize

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Bonnie Lauer, a 26-ear-old Michigan State graduate, knocked in six birdies Sunday en route to a 67 and a two-stroke triumph over Laura Baugh in the $55,000 Patty Berg Golf Classic.

Lauer's 6-under-par final round gave her a 54-hole total of 212, 7-under-par, enabling her to win a duel between two golfers who had never won a tour event. Baugh bogeyed two holes on the back nine to finish with 72, 1-under-par, and a 54-hole total of 214.

Lauer, the 1976 rookie of the year, had opened with a 70 but slipped to a 2-over par 75 in Saturday's round.

She started fast Sunday with birdies on the first, third, fourth and eighth holes en route to a 4-under 34 on the front side. Lauer birdied 11 and 16 and didn't bogey a hole in her round, the best of the tournament.

Soph season ends for 'The Bird'

DETROIT — The sophomore season of Mark "The Bird" Fidrych ended abruptly Sunday when Detroit Tigers officials decided to let him leave the team so he could rest his ailing right shoulder.

Fidrych, the 1976 Rookie of the Year and the ace of the young Tiger starting staff, has not pitched since he developed tendinitis July 12. He was placed on the disabled list July 20 and his repeated attempts to resume throwing have been aborted because of the lingering pain.

Mantle is impishly alive, buoyant

Jim Murray

The vice president of Reserve Life Insurance Co. strode through the airport. He didn't look much like an insurance executive. In denim jacket, jeans and pointed cowboy boots, he looked more like a bulldogger on his way to a rodeo.

The plain-looking girl in the long dress and the granny eyeglasses pinned a carnation on his lapel and a slow grin spread over the boyish-looking face with the gray eyes and blond hair. He waved a $20 bill at her and she gave him only $10 in change.

"Hey!" he protested. "Ain't that kinda expensive for a li'l ole carnation?" The girl pulled a copy of the Bhagavad Gita out of her purse and pressed it on him. But it didn't look to Mickey Mantle as if it had any pictures in it. He brushed it aside and, laughing, went in search of a restaurant.

IT WAS MICKEY (Himself) Mantle, characteristically on his way home from a golf tournament. "I didn't have any ones on me," he apologized to his group for his runaway philanthropy. "What was she collecting for anyway?" "Hare Krishna," someone told him. "Ain't they supposed to shave their hair like a Mohawk Indian?" the veep wondered with a frown. "Boy, wouldn't she be a mess with one of them haircuts?!"

Two people approached for an atuograph. Mickey's eyes danced. "Do you know what goes 'mark, mark'?" he asked. He waited, then roared. "A dog with a hair lip!"

He wanted to get into Western Air Lines' private Horizons Club — it was Sunday, and the upstairs restaurant was closed in Salt Lake City — to phone home and get a cup of coffee. Mickey Mantle Jr. was with him, but Mickey didn't trust his own well-recognized physiognomy. He pointed to a reporter traveling with him. "I'm jest a dog-eared old executive, but this fella here owns the Los Angeles Times," he lied, then laughed. "Tell him you know Art Kelly, the president of the air line," he prompted the reporter.

IN 1977, Mickey Mantle, legend, bon vivant, son of Mutt, and father of Mickey, is impishly alive and buoyant, and he finds this a source of wonder and surprise. Mickey is something he never expected to be — 45, going on 46 years old. His father and two uncles died before they were 40, and Mickey thought he detected a trend.

Mickey Mantle was one of the 10 best ever to play the game of baseball, and maybe one of three. He did his number in the era of night baseball, integrated baseball, artificial turf, the slider, jet lag — and on one leg. Osteomyelitis contracted from high school football injury was a constant specter. For 18 years, the most familiar sight in the game was this blond young bull with a torso right out of Greek mythology running with the short purposeful but regal glides of the home run trot around the basepaths after hitting a home run — 552 times in his career counting World Series.

When Mickey first came up to the great pantheon of baseball that is Yankee Stadium, he achieved a reputation as a moody kid, uncooperative suspicious. But he was mainly scared. No too many people are ready to walk out of the zinc mines of northeast Oklahoma and into the bright lights of New York.

MICKEY WAS always a sucker for a hard-luck story, a stock promotion — or a homely girl selling carnations. Mickey always paid for the cabs, the checks and the rent for teammates. He could do things on a ball field even the old-timers never saw — hit a ball clear out of the neighborhood, or go down to first base in 3.1 on a drag bunt.

Laid end to end, his homers would have doubled Henry Aaron's. You couldn't fool Mickey Mantle on a ball field. Off it, he was half-owner of more non-existent corporations than Getty had real ones.

He reflected quietly on his career the other noon between planes. "People think I didn't give a damn, but I cried like a baby when we lost the 1960 World Series to Pittsburgh. Damn, that hurt!" What about the 1963 four-straight debacle to the Dodgers. Mickey shook his head. "Naw, that didn't hurt. They were two-to-one a better ballclub than we were. And Koufax and Drysdale! Whew! You were lucky you could hear the ball."

HE PLAYED HURT much of his later career. But he still played in more games as a Yankee, 2,466 (an incredible 65 of them in World Series) than any man who ever wore the pinstripe uniform.

What does he think of the big salaries of today, someone wanted to know. A slow grin spread over the features. "Damn! I'd like to see some of these guys come in to Mr. Weiss with these demands today. Man, that'd be like bumping into a cold shark, or a clothes pole in the dark!"

Did he feel he was underpaid? Mickey scoffed. "Shoot no! Me and Whitey (Ford) figured out I struck out 1,800 times and had 1,800 bases on balls. That's 3,600 times I didn't do nuthin! If you figure you get to bat 500 times a year, that's seven years I didn't do a thing! Got paid for every one of them!"

And Mickey (Himself) Mantle laughed uproariously and reached for the autograph pad being thrust at him. He looked at the autograph seeker. "Hey, did you hear the one about the dog who went 'mark, mark' . . . ?"

Jim: "How about some articles on experts at their best and worst, with maybe a little emphasis on their mistakes."

Oswald: "I have a jim dandy for you. It is taken from the finals of the life master pairs of 1940. I sat North and my partner was one of the great players. He became declarer at six spades. West thought a long while and finally led the queen of clubs. As you can see, that lead gave him his contract on a silver platter. Yet, he refused to finesse against the jack of clubs, tried the heart finesse instead and went down one."

Jim: "Down one would not be a bottom. I assume most pairs were in six notrump or six spades. Without that queen of clubs lead or a heart lead against notrump by North, they all were down one."

Oswald: "That is just why my partner did not make the hand. He had noted West's long study before leading that queen of clubs and decided that it might well have been from queen-small. He also saw that after the spade finesse lost he would have lots of company at one down, if the heart queen was in the wrong place also. So down the expert went."

Ask Andy

Goose step: it's flying together for these birds

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Gary Brownsworth, 12, of Okeene, Okla., for his question:

WHY DO GEESE FLY IN GROUPS?

A goose, closely related to both the swan and duck, is a web-footed bird that has about 25 different close relatives. Thirteen of the varieties live in Canada and the United States. These birds vary in size from 20 to 40 inches long and all have extremely wide wing spreads.

Best-known of the North American geese is the wild Canadian goose. He has a wide white band that runs across his throat and cheeks and he can be found all the way from Labrador and the Arctic Ocean area to Mexico. His nest is made on low mounds in the marshes and is built of grass and leaves lined with down.

All wild geese are migratory birds. They fly north in the summer and south in the winter. Instinct directs them to fly in groups and they often form in large V-shaped formations. It undoubtedly is safer for the birds to fly great distances in groups rather than alone.

Geese have been known to fly as high as 29,000 feet. They are very swift, often flying 50 miles per hour. And they are noisy, too. They honk loudly as they take off, fly and land.

As instinct shifts large groups of geese each fall and spring, they often follow what appears to be definite migration pathways.

Geese like to eat grains and vegetables. They have been known to damage wheat crops, and farmers often hire men to keep the flocks of birds away. But geese are cautious and intelligent. Often they feed only on wide stretches of water, marshes or fields where hunters cannot easily hide. Then a number of birds in the flock seem to stand guard against possible danger while the others eat.

Other popular wild geese include the salt-water brant who lives in Greenland and migrates south to the eastern coast of the United States. Closely related is the black brant who lives on the Pacific Coast.

Domesticated geese, who are real favorites on most farms, are for the most part descendants of the graylag goose of Europe. They are much larger than their wild ancestors and they also have lost their ability to fly.

Domestic geese, and probably wild geese, too, mate for life. The male, who is called a gander, helps incubate the eggs and also assists in raising the youngsters after they are hatched.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Debbie Zobel, 13, of Colorado Springs, Colo., for her question:

WHAT CAUSES THUNDER?

Primitive people used to say that thunder was made by two clouds bumping into each other — or that the gods were expressing anger — or that the heavenly spirits were bowling and knocking pins around.

Today we know that thunder is actually the loud sound caused by the violent expansion of air that has been heated by lightning. Air is immediately heated when an electric charge passes through it. The heat causes the molecules of air to expand and as they seek more room they collide violently with layers of cool air and set up a great air wave which produces the sound of thunder.

By counting the seconds between the flash of lightning and the sound of thunder, you can tell how close the storm is. Five seconds between flash and sound equals one mile.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006 making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
